

Give Veterans Job, Forget Sympathy, USES Suggests

By Elizabeth A. Harrold
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Omaha, Neb. (AP)—Employers are eager to hire returning war veterans because they are prompt and disciplined, according to Claude R. Golding, veterans employment representative of the U. S. employment service.

"But some employers are just a little too eager," Golding said. "They should offer them a job and leave them alone. Instead, they often give them too much sympathy."

Golding, a veteran of World Wars I and II who served two years in this war as an army captain, has been back in civilian life six months.

"A man in the service is oriented to army-navy ways. He doesn't have time to think of civilian affairs," he said. "Then he is discharged and suddenly becomes a civilian—but in clothes only."

Differ in Outlook

Veterans differ in their psychological outlook, Golding said. Some are determined to come back to their prewar living habits quickly; some are rebellious and won't take orders from anyone, as they had to from their top sergeants in the army; some found the army secure and expect to be looked after in civilian life, and others are reluctant to accept responsibilities.

Frequently, the war veteran who has been "through it all" is more psychologically suited to normal life than the veteran who has had a couple of months of life in the service, Golding said.

It's no secret that thousands of physically handicapped young men will return from the battlefields seeking jobs—and more than that—security.

For these men, as well as for other physically handicapped persons in Nebraska, the U. S. employment service of the war manpower commission has set up a special services section.

According to the USES, a handicapped person is like a non-handicapped individual in more respects than he is different, because he has sufficient abilities remaining to be a useful member of society.

Test Physical Abilities

The service determines the physical activities of a person—whether he can walk, talk, see, feel, hear, kneel, lift—and the conditions under which he can work—inside, outside, in high places, in noise, in dust, in cold temperatures. The person is placed at home-front jobs on the basis of such qualifications for the job.

Each one presents an individual problem, according to Louise Furay, an interviewer for the special services section.

"A person with arthritis is placed at a job which requires no lifting or standing; an asthmatic person is given a position which does not subject him to dust, and a blind person is offered work which requires sensitive hands," she said.

During 1944, the USES Omaha area office placed 619 handicapped persons in jobs. War veterans totaled 295 and of this number, 242 were veterans of World War II.

Industries in Nebraska are adjusting themselves today for handicapped persons—those without arms or legs, with heart ailments, with poliomyelitis, the deaf and blind—to give them what they're asking—security.

How to do with eggs

In times like these it's a wonderful thing to know a lot about eggs—for, properly prepared, eggs are the basis for a wide variety of delicious dishes.

DO YOU KNOW?

Egg Equivalents

In most recipes calling for eggs, medium-size eggs are used as the basis for measurement.

4 to 6 whole eggs equal 1 cup
8 to 10 egg whites equal 1 cup
10 to 14 egg yolks equal 1 cup

To prevent yolk of hard cooked eggs from darkening: Remove from heat and plunge immediately into cold water.

Eggs should not be washed before storage because water removes the protective coating on the shell essential to keeping quality of eggs.

Egg yolks store well when covered with cold water, milk or salad oil; covered tightly and stored in refrigerator.

Egg whites store well when covered lightly and stored in refrigerator.

For best volume eggs should be at room temperature before beating.

Eggs should always be cooked at low temperatures as high temperatures toughen the protein.

BOILED OR SOFT CUSTARD
(A way with egg yolks)
A delicate, smooth sauce

4 egg yolks 2 cups milk
1/4 tsp. sugar 1 tsp. vanilla
1/4 tsp. salt extract

Beat egg yolks slightly with spoon in top of double boiler; add sugar and salt; mix well; add milk; and cook over rapidly boiling water about 10 to 15 minutes, or until mixture is slightly thickened and coats spoon, stirring occasionally. Remove from stove at once; add flavoring; and pour into cool bowl. Chill before serving. Makes 2 1/2 cups custard.
