Dudrey Brothers Meet on Island

The barrel was finally rolled out on Saipan in the South Pacific when Robert E. Dudrey, R. M. 2/c with the navy, docked on the island where his brother, Lt. Jack A. Dudrey, was serving with the marine corps.

Since Bob knew where his brother was stationed, both young men looking forward to the rendezvous—provided the navyman's ship lowered anchor off the right island. Then, after two years of separation, a converted luxury liner steamed into port and the brothers met.

Both boys, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Jack A. Dudrey of Bend, attended the Bend high school. Jack is a graduate of the University of Oregon and Bob attended that institution for two years. They are nephews of R. A. Ferguson, county treasurer.

Embarrassed? Not Johnson When He Remembers Cigar!

Lots of folks get into the wrong pews.

But when they get confused in hotels and sit with foreign groups—that's something else!

But Carl A. Johnson, president of the Bend Chamber of Commerce, tells this one on himself: He journeyed to Portland to attend a meeting of chamber of commerce officials. Sauntering into the lobby of a hotel, he was greeted by several important and affable gentlemen. Soon he joined the file and entered the dining room.

"The meal was swell, and oh boy! that 25 cent cigar!" Johnson recalled happily.

Soon the chairman introduced the speaker. Theme: automobiles. Johnson squirmed. His meeting was at an entirely different hotel!

Ingrid Bergman 'Oscar' Winner

Hollywood, March 16 (UP)—Ingrid Bergman, all choked up, Bing Crosby, all grins, and "Going My Way," all powerful, today walked off with almost every major "Oscar" at the makers' 17th annual award presentation.

"Going My Way," Paramount's picture about two catholic priests, dragged down seven awards—including four of the six top honors—"Wilson," 20th Century Fox studio's story of the world war I president, followed with six—all technical citations.

Miss Bergman, who just missed getting an Oscar for her role in "For Whom the Bell Tolls" last year, took top honors for her work in "Gaslight," opposite Charles Boyer. Crosby's award was for his role in "Going My Way."

Approximately 2,000 persons, including movie celebrities and every fan who could afford a ticket jammed Grauman's Chinese theater to witness the presentations.

Leo McCarey, who produced, directed, and wrote "Going My Way," was high point man for the evening. Twice he dashed down the aisle to grab one of the plastic (gold sprayed) statues—one for the best direction and another for the best original story.
