Attorney Accused Of Being Drunk

Seattle, March 23 (UP)—The second degree murder trial of Leonard Iverson, 64-year-old Kent farmer charged with shooting to death an elderly negro neighbor, was adjourned late yesterday after Superior Judge Matthew Hill accused one of the defense attorneys of being "in an obvious state of intoxication."
During questioning of a witness Hill stopped the trial, excused the jury, and verbally lashed defense counsel James Tynan.
"You have stood there with a self-satisfied smirk on your face as though you were trying to taunt and lead the court into comment," Hill said. "I have never seen so deliberate violation of all the rules of trial conduct. . . . The court's impression, Mr. Tynan, is that you are intoxicated."
Tynan denied that he was drunk and said he was trying merely to protect his client, but Hill adjourned the trial until today "to give counsel an opportunity to sober up."
Iverson testified he killed George Crisp last Feb. 15 with a .22 caliber rifle during a quarrel and as Crisp lunged at him with a knife. He said he fired in self defense.

China Railroad Men Learning Yanks' Methods
Omaha, Neb., (UP)—Not all of China's fighting men are in Asia. Seven Chinese nationals arrived here recently to study American railroads' methods by working for the Union Pacific railroad "from the ground up."
The men are among the first of 110 engineers and transportation officials sent to the United States by the Chinese government's lend-lease agency, China Defense Supplies, Inc. They are graduate engineers with more than two years experience in transportation work. None of them has been to the United States previously, but all can speak and write the English language.
The civil engineers will start as "gandy dancers" for the Union Pacific, laying ties on the roadbeds. After a few weeks of this labor, they will be advanced periodically until finally they will use the technical knowledge they learned at their universities.
Although the men are required to observe the rules of the railroad and will work as much as a regular employee, their presence will not cut down the size of any crew nor give them seniority.
They will be graded on character and ability for reports submitted to the Chinese government at its request. Expenses and pay will be handled by the governments of China and the United States.
Much of China's 10,000 miles of railroad is in occupied territory, but the country's tentative program calls for the construction of 50,000 miles more railroad.
The Chinese working at Omaha include: Kao Pu-Wei and Hsu Linson, civil engineers; Kuo Cheng Chu and Chen Manning, bridge engineers; Chang Ke-Cheng and Cheng Chung-Yuan, operating officers, and Sheng Tsu-Si, signal engineer.

OREGON STATEHOUSE JOTTINGS

By Eric W. Allen, Jr. (United Press Staff Correspondent)
Salem, Ore., March 23 (UP)—Only about 200 bills which passed the 1945 Oregon legislative session remain to be signed or vetoed by Gov. Earl Snell this week.
The governor has been signing them at the rate of nearly 20 or 30 a day, and he explains that it is against his policy to let the bills become law without his signature.
He and his staff are working full-time studying the proposed laws.
The deadline for putting his signature on bills is April 10. All bills signed by then, except those carrying the emergency clause, will become effective on July 1. Those which have the emergency clause become effective as soon as they are signed and filed with the secretary of state.

The governor is "ahead of schedule," he said, and hopes to finish work on the measures before the deadline day.
Any bills unsigned by that time would become law on the same date as the signed bills—July 1 if not carrying an emergency clause, April 10 if they do.
No bills have been vetoed since the legislature adjourned, although two were returned with the governor's disapproval during the session.
Most of the appropriation bills passed during the session carry the emergency clause, and there were a number of others which have already become law, or soon will, because of the clause.
The emergency clause is attached to a bill when conditions seem to justify its need. Appropriation bills carry it because they must go into effect immediately to finance the operation of state government.
A bill carrying such a clause cannot be referred to the people for a vote, and one of the fights during the 1945 session was over the emergency clause on the "PUD" bill (now law since the governor's signature last week). Opponents of the measure wanted it referred to the people.

Proponents of the bill, however, claimed that there was justification of an emergency clause because the situation which the bill was designed to clear up was still present.
If the measure was delayed for a vote, probably at the next general election, a situation such as the bill sought to prevent might arise, they said.
