Mortar Shells odged By Yank

lwo Jima (Delayed) -A graus and smiling destiny seemed guide the feet of this young arine.

Cpl. Harry D. Baker, Portland, re., took shelter in a hole blasti by a heavy Jap mortar shell marines advanced slowly marines advanced slowly ss the northern end of the

He decided to move out, think ng lightning might strike in the ame place. He had just left when other Jap shell dropped square-into the hole.

Baker then moved back in the lee, but then left it again, and e enemy put another mortar ell in the same spot. Later he as down in the hole a third time hen his instinct told him that Japs must have a fixed morar zeroed in on the spot. He hastily evacuated, just a lew seconds before another shell runched the same spot.

Three times was enough. He
