

Co. I Veteran Ending Furlough

A Co. I veteran of more than three years' service in the Pacific theater of war, 1st Sgt. William A. Brown, son of A. M. Brown, 1729 East First street, Bend, headed the end of his furlough today as he headed for the reassignment center at Santa Barbara, Calif.

Sgt. Brown was three times winner of the purple heart. On Blak, where he was wounded twice, he narrowly escaped death when a bullet passed through the right side of his chest. The young sergeant received his third battle injury on Hollandia. It was on Blak, returning veterans reported, that Co. I boys suffered their heaviest casualties.

Attached to Co. M of the 162nd infantry when he received his furlough to the states, Sgt. Brown has seen few of his former Co. I comrades in recent months. Also, he mentioned, the original company has been pretty well broken up and there are few Central Oregon men now in the unit that was commanded by the late Major J. L. Chute when it sailed overseas more than three years ago. One of the Co. I boys seen by Sgt. Brown recently was Bob Marr. On his trip to the states, Sgt. Brown was accompanied by Cpl. Ralph Sieber.

Sgt. Brown's various stripes and other decorations include a re-enlistment stripe. It was more than four years ago that he first signed up with Co. I, then an Oregon national guard unit.

Dog Question Is Giving Officers 'Doggone' Time

Members of the Bend police department are having a doggone hard time of it since the dog tie-up ordinance took effect Sunday, they reported.

The police docket shows that hardly an hour passes that some resident doesn't telephone, reporting stray dogs, or that their pets have vanished.

As a result of the calls, the population at the city pound is rapidly increasing, four stray dogs having been impounded there yesterday, officers said.

The question of missing dogs is just about as irksome as that of those running at large, causing early victory gardeners no end of trouble, they say.

Among those who have reported their dogs AWOL are H. A. King, 138 Greeley avenue; Mrs. Norman C. Luckenbill, 444 East Greeley avenue, and Mrs. Sumner Deltrick, 1518 West First street. Mrs. Deltrick said that her missing dog is a sable collie, and is a pet of a soldier in the service. She expressed the opinion to officers that the dog had been stolen.

Safety in Brakes To Be Stressed

A demonstration between faulty and good brakes will be made here on Thursday, as part of the nation-wide campaign for safety through adjustment of automobile brakes. The demonstration will be made by Sidney King, director of the safety division of the Oregon secretary of state's office.

In a letter to Police Chief Ken C. Gulick, King said that the test will be featured by the use of a detonating system which will fire a "shot" of yellow chalk on the pavement at the time the brakes of a car engage, and will accurately check the distance the machine comes to a halt at a given speed.

Tentative arrangements have been made to conduct the test near the police station.
