As another caution against premature battery failure, Foote urged car owners to beware of battery "dopes". He declared that wartime conditions, impelling all car owners to take every precaution to keep their vehicles in operation for the longest possible period of time, have fostered a battery "doping" racket that is sweeping the country. "These racketeers", he said, "are preying on the car owner and battery dealer, selling them flour, sand, epsom salts, or just any old white powder as the panacea for all battery troubles."
