

Ernie Pyle to Be Buried Among Soldiers He Immortalized, in Army Cemetery on Nippon Isle

BY MAC R. JOHNSON
(United Press War Correspondent)

Okinawa, April 19 (UP)—Ernie Pyle will be buried among the soldiers he immortalized.

The beloved little war correspondent killed by a Japanese machine-gunner yesterday probably will be laid to rest in an army cemetery here in the Ryukyus where he covered his last campaign.

The soldiers he loved brought him back from the battlefield, back to where the noise of the guns is distant and dull. They lifted his pint-sized frame from the ditch where he fell, victim of a sneak Japanese machine-gun ambush.

One of his hands still clutched his green fatigue cap. They put him on a litter, and crossed his arms, and then carried him back to the rear. It wasn't easy. The Japanese machine-gunner seemed jealous of his prized victim. It was five hours after Ernie was killed before anybody could get to his body.

Gunner On Job
Corp. Alexander Roberts, army photographer from New York City, tried to get into take pictures. He said everything anybody would try to enter the clearing where Ernie had been killed, the gunner would open up.

First, three tanks were sent in to remove the body. But the fire was too hot for them. Then planes tried to locate the machine-gun nest.

Finally Roberts crawled into the clearing on his belly, pushing his camera ahead of him. "Ernie's face was not twisted in pain or agony," he said. "He looked pleasant and peaceful. If there hadn't been a thin line of blood at the corner of his mouth, you might have thought he was sleeping."

Jeep Ambushed
The hidden machine-gunner ambushed a jeep in which Ernie was going to the front with Lt. Col. Joseph B. Coolidge of Helena, Ark. Both men leaped into a roadside ditch.

The dirt along the ditch told how desperately the gunner had tried to kill both of them. "The bullets had chewed out the earth a foot deep trying to get the men in hiding," Roberts said.

Both men peered over the top of the ditch during a lull in the firing. The machine-gun chattered again. Three slugs ripped through Ernie's green and yellow camouflaged helmet.

When Coolidge, who had ducked, turned toward him, Ernie was dead. He had been killed instantly. Ernie always said he would get it and that he had used up his

Jaycees Hear Plea For More Paper

Paper and more paper! That is the crying need of the armed forces, according to L. E. Utter, vice president of the Pacific Paper Materials company of Longview, Wash., who was here conferring with members of the Bend Junior chamber of commerce. The Jaycees here are sponsoring salvage paper pick-ups in the city.

Utter told Don Higgins and George Thompson, co-chairmen of the Junior chamber salvage committee that daily the demands of the army, navy and Red Cross for paper is mounting. He explained that his purpose in coming to Bend was to inspire greater paper donations by the residents, and that he was carrying the message into all parts of Oregon, Washington and Idaho.

Shortage Is Critical
The Pacific Paper Materials company is a processing plant where the local Jaycees have shipped tons of salvage paper for the war effort.

"The shortage of paper is most critical," Utter told Thompson and Higgins. "Although the war appears to be reaching a climax in Europe, greater need for cartons, blood plasma containers and shell wrappings is felt in the Pacific. This is due to the greater area necessary to cover in waging the war against the Japs."

Higgins said that with the arrival of warmer weather that Bend residents would require less paper in starting fires in their homes, and suggested that every effort be made to save it. He said that another city-wide pick-up would be announced later.

Brake Testing Plans Outlined
As part of the national traffic safety campaign being conducted now, all Bend automobile drivers who are stopped by police in routine traffic law enforcement, will have the brakes of their cars tested, it was announced today by Chief of Police Ken C. Gulick. The safety drive, emphasizing care of brakes, is being waged between April 15 and June 1, the chief said.

Because authorities estimate that most of the automobiles now in use are eight years of age, and likely to be unsafe in traffic, police everywhere are checking brakes, Gulick explained. This is because of the officers' belief that if the brakes are in good order fewer accidents will happen and the motor vehicles will be longer preserved.

Shoes with fabric uppers, and in most cases soles other than leather, accounted for 15 per cent of the total of civilian shoes manufactured in the United States in 1944.

CITY APPOINTS FORESTER
Cleveland (UP)—Charles R. Coolcy, newly-appointed city forester, has set himself a goal of restoring to Cleveland its former title as "the forest city." He says the job will take at least 10 years to accomplish.
