

U. S. Casualties Near One Million

Washington, April 19 (AP)—Officially announced U. S. combat casualties, approaching 1,000,000 reached an overall total of 912,200 today. This was an increase of 12,810 in a week.

Meanwhile, German casualties on the western front are mounting by the hundreds of thousands.

Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson disclosed at his press conference today that British and U. S. armies have captured 2,100,000 Germans since Normandy D-day last June 6. Of this total, 900,000 were captured in April alone.

1,600,000 Captured

Just a week ago the total western front prisoner bag since D-day was announced as 1,600,000.

The U. S. combat casualty total included 813,870 army and 98,330 navy, marine corps, and coast guard losses since Dec. 7, 1941.

Stimson reported that U. S. army casualties in Europe during March "were limited" to 47,023. This included 6,214 killed, 35,443 wounded, and 5,366 missing.

Losses Mount

Ground force losses in Europe since D-day, he said, now total 473,215, including 79,795 killed by the Germans, 334,919 wounded, and 58,501 missing.

Stimson said the army's March losses in Europe were suffered in three decisive campaigns which destroyed a "great part" of the enemy's strength in the west and made possible the allies' "relatively easy" crossing of the Rhine.

He added, however, that he "would not have anyone think that even in this past week or two the allied forces in Germany have had an easy time of it; on the contrary, we have run into centers of the stiffest kind of resistance."

Truman Holds First Presidential News Conference

A poised and confident Harry S. Truman, his desk completely cleared of the gadgets and trinkets FDR loved so well, tells his first presidential news conference that he will run the Government for the time being from his Washington desk. He gave wholehearted endorsement to the foreign and domestic policies prevailing at the time he took office.

Rider Badly Hurt When Horse Falls

Thrown from his horse while riding late yesterday near Powell Butte, Harry C. Terwilliger, proprietor of the Greenwood Grocery, and who resides at 235 East Greeley street, was seriously injured, and today was a patient in St. Charles hospital. Attending physicians said that Terwilliger suffered a severe head laceration, dislocated left shoulder, fractured left wrist, and possible internal injuries. Blood plasma was administered last night.

Terwilliger was riding with N. R. Gilbert, president of the Rim Rock riders, of which the victim is vice president. They were engaged in trying to head some wild horses into a stockade west of Pilot Butte when the accident occurred.

Horse Returns

Gilbert said that apparently Terwilliger's mount had stepped on a round stone in loose sand, causing the horse to lurch Terwilliger against a juniper tree. His first knowledge that his companion was thrown, Gilbert said, was when he saw his horse riderless and on a run. Rushing to the scene, Gilbert said that he found Terwilliger lying on the ground, his head bleeding and with his shoulder dislocated. He bound the head wound and replaced the dislocated shoulder.

Gilbert then rode five miles to where he had parked his automobile, returned, and took the victim to the hospital.

Hours later Bend police were notified that there was a horse in the yard of the H. E. Starke home at 825 East Twelfth street, saddled and with out a rider. Terwilliger had kept his horse in a corral adjacent to the Starke home, and the animal had returned there from a distance of about 15 miles.

Old Magazine Tells Parents of Manner Son Battled Japanese

A copy of a magazine more than a year old has provided Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Coahran of Bend with a description of air action in the south Pacific on Armistice day, 1943, in which their son, T/Sgt. W. H. Coahran, Jr., was forced to bail out behind the Japanese lines in the Guadalcanal area. The now aging copy of the magazine, "Flying," discusses the exploits of the far-famed squadron known in early days as the "Wolf Pack," composed of marine fighter pilots. It was to this squadron that Sgt. Coahran was attached.

Early heroes of this squadron included Major Joseph J. Foss, Captain Marion Carl and Lt. Col. Harold W. Bauer. Here is the magazine's account of the fight in which the Bend air sergeant took part:

Coahran Bails Out

"On Nov. 11, the Japs decided not to observe Armistice day. At 9 a. m. 20 Jap planes came over—12 dive bombers and eight Zeros to protect them. The American squadron took off in brass confidence. They learned a hard lesson. Coahran, a staff sergeant, got peppered on the first pass. He bailed out. The other pilots of the squadron circled his umbrella and protected him on the way down. Laird, a sandy haired lieutenant from California, shot down a Zero while he circled. Coahran, however, landed behind the Jap lines. He never came back."

That, so far as Mr. and Mrs. Coahran know, tells the story of their son's final action in the Pacific. They are eager to get extra copies of the magazine "Flying" containing the account. The magazine is dated March, 1944.

County Realtors Meet in Bend

Members of the local real estate group at their meeting this week heard from Mrs. H. A. King, of the King-Craft Toys, a discussion of Bend's newest industries and its possibilities in peace days. Data dealing with the ever-increasing output of the local factory were presented by Mrs. King, who also demonstrated some of the articles produced here. She pointed out that maimed veterans, now receiving training, will have jobs available here in the era of peace.

The meeting of the realtors was held in the Pine Tavern.

Carl J. Lindh spoke on "Is Real Estate Inflated," and also discussed provisions of the new G. I. bill of rights. Miss Eleanor Bechen touched on "Trends of Desires in Building," and Walter Davon spoke on the examination given applicants for real estate licenses.

Plans are being made to have Claude Murphy, state real estate commissioner, and members of the state realty association here for the May meeting of the Deschutes county unit.

aboard the vessel until reaching Honolulu. There he obtained a job driving a delivery truck for an electrical supply house, and remained with the firm until he became manager of two of its departments.

The former Bend school boy returned to the states last December, holding a family reunion with relatives. Since that time he has been in Los Angeles and San Francisco. Lawrence, who reported that his father is now in Ashland, expects to spend about two weeks here fishing.

WAC VETERAN REJOINS

Old Town, Me. (AP)—After serving in the Wacs 10 months, Ida Francis of Old Town received an honorable discharge to care for her sick mother. She married a soldier who later was killed in action in Europe. Now she has rejoined the Wacs.

Former Bend Boy Returns for Visit

After an absence of 10 years from Bend, Alden Lawrence, whose father, Jess, was a former compositor on The Bulletin mechanical staff, returned here today with the observation that "the old town hasn't changed much."

The first thing that Alden, who for the last 10 years has been in the Hawaiian Islands, noticed when he arrived was that there is a new courthouse.

Lawrence was a student in the Central grammar school and the Bend high school 14 years ago. After leaving school here, Lawrence decided to "see the world," and made his way to San Francisco. Discovering that he was $10 short of the fare to the Hawaiian Islands, he stowed away on a vessel. After two days at sea he said "I gave myself up," and worked
