BUT THE FIGHT GOES ON

From whatever significance is to be attached to the reported statement by Adolf Hitler that organized German resistance has ceased, it would be well to eliminate any hopeful thought that the Germans have quit fighting.

These last named will fight again. They are perhaps the most important part of the war picture in Germany today. Those who are still in combat against the allies represent the present and the immediate future of the war.

As to "organized resistance" or the cessation of it, there may be some question as to just what is meant by the phrase. Presumably the term is intended to convey the thought of large scale organized effort in conformity with planned action.

The fact that the scale of organization is smaller, however, must point to the breaking up of the larger units, of the progressive disintegration or what was once the mightiest armed force in the world.

For the forthcoming San Francisco conference all this is well-timed indeed. In its task of world planning, the conference will have no academic question to dispose of in deciding on the manner in which Germany is to be managed as insurance for peace.

German treasure hoards which are being uncovered as allied armies advance are vast by personal standards, but shrink to insignificance by national standards.

This blocking of post-war penetration is by no means complete, however, according to a recent Collier's magazine article, which told of German-owned industries, including munitions plants set up in Argentina, of heavy credits transferred by way of Swiss banks and even of actual shipment of large sums in bullion, also to Argentina.

Whichever it is, we may be sure that the gold taken by our forces in Germany will be put to better use.

Bend's Yesterdays

Cpl. Mark Winkle Medal Winner

Wilmington, Calif., April 23—Corporal Mark L. Winkle has been awarded the good conduct medal at the Los Angeles port of embarkation, a transport corps installation. He is assigned to the headquarters detachment at Camp Ross, detachment area of L.A.F.E.

The award is for enlisted men who have demonstrated fidelity through faithful and exact performance of duty, efficiency through capacity to produce desired results, and whose behavior has been such as to deserve emulation.

Library Grounds To Be Beautified; Plants Are Sought

Former members of the Bend Garden club, now inactive, and others interested in the beautification of the Deschutes county library grounds are to join Friday in putting the rock garden, at the rear of the library, in shape.

Mrs. S. A. Thompson will be in charge of the work arranged for Friday afternoon.

With plans completed for the renovation of the rock garden, an appeal was made for various rock plants that can be used on the grounds. Local residents having extra plants are being asked to bring them to the library this week, before Friday noon.

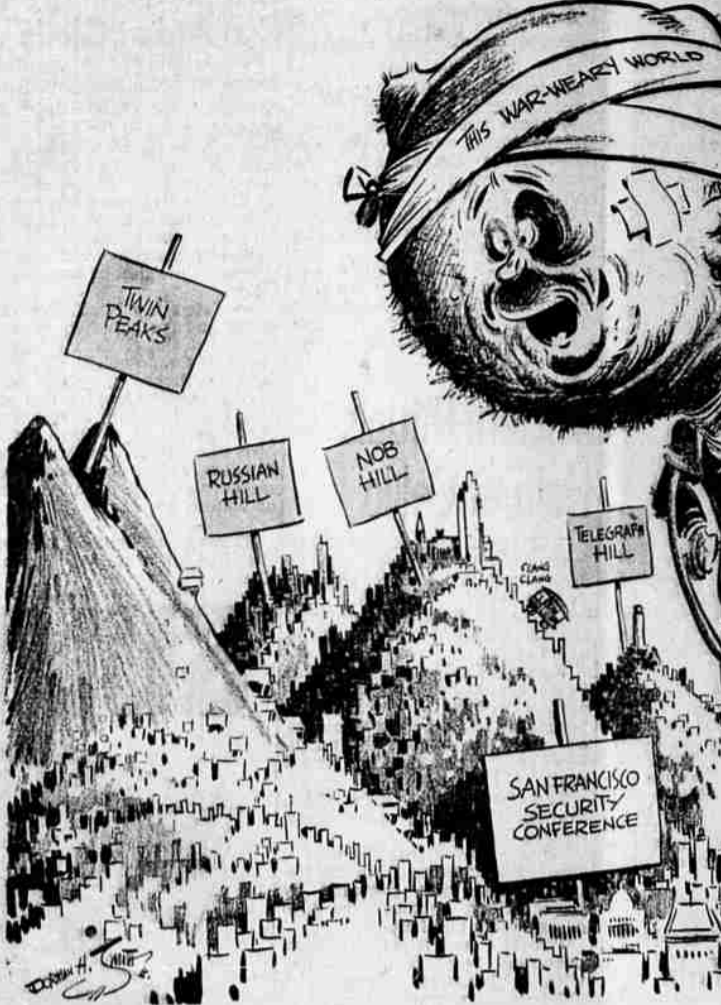

TWO FACE CHARGES Two more operators of Bond street men's recreation centers have been arrested on warrants charging them with operating punch boards without license. Local police reported today.

Two others were arrested last week on the same charge, and the latest to be accused are John Montgomery, proprietor of the D & D club, and Earl Wood of the Downing hotel.

William Baer of the Waldorf, and Dan Murphy of the Pastime, were arrested on the charge last week. All are slated to appear before Municipal Judge H. C. Ellis this evening.

There's Hope in Them Thar Hills

THE AMERICAN HOUSE By Virginia Chase

CHAPTER I My father was a doctor and proud of his calling, but he liked to fancy himself a businessman as well.

The American House was the village hotel. It had been closed for almost two years. "Oh, my mother said, looking disappointed. She had obviously hoped for something more."

Late one March afternoon in the year 1909 my mother and I were alone in the sitting room, waiting for him to come home from his office. She was sewing and at the same time helping me with my arithmetic.

My mother was a very handsome woman. She had thick, chestnut hair, which she twisted into a figure eight, and dark eyes with heavy brows and lashes.

He crossed the room, touched me lightly on the head in passing, and sat down in the wicker rocker by the window. It crackled under his weight. "Oh, I'm not so busy," he answered lightly.

"I've got $2500," he told her. I looked closely at my mother. Her cheeks were flaming, but she spoke without losing her composure.

My mother sighed. The chalk pond had been had enough and the woodlot that had turned out to be 20 miles from a highway.

My mother frowned over her stitches. "It isn't just its reputation," she said. "It's the prospects. No one has ever made a go of it since the mines closed."

"Maybe no one has made a go of it," he granted. "But times have changed. Think of the tourist trade. The road from the Junction is going to be gravelled, and by summer automobiles will be coming through here every day."

Our nearest city was the Junction, 15 miles to the east. Two trains passed through it every day. Its sidewalks were paved and its streets were lighted with gas.

She sighed again. She was beaten and she knew it. "I suppose you will go ahead," she told him. "But I am not going to have anything to do with any hotel," she added with a vehemence that was not native to her.

Mrs. G. R. Hyslop Is Oregon Mother

Portland, Ore., April 23 (AP)—Mrs. G. R. Hyslop, Corvallis widow and mother of six children is Oregon mother for 1945 and candidate for title of American mother, Mrs. George R. K. Moorhead, selection committee chairman, announced over the weekend.

Nominated by the Corvallis Women's club of which she is president, Mrs. Hyslop is active in Red Cross, USO, PTA, and numerous patriotic and civic groups. Five children graduated from Oregon State college, and the sixth was attending when he entered service. Two brothers had already joined.

Four requirements Mrs. Hyslop successfully fulfilled were proof of her mothercraft in her children's achievements; possession of seven motherly virtues; a sense of social and world relationships and activity in community betterment, and friendmaking ability. Members of the Oregon committee include Mrs. Moorhead, Salem, Mrs. Charles Lemons, Pendleton, and Mrs. Emma McKinney, Hillsboro.

SPEEDING IS CHARGED

Walter Glen Humbert, 38, a farmer residing at Route 1, Box 294, today had posted $10 bail for his appearance in municipal court as a result of his arrest yesterday by Officer Lynn Bartholomew on a charge of violating the basic rule. Officer Bartholomew said that he arrested Humbert after a chase from Wall street on Greenwood to East Eighth street, and alleged that the driver was speeding at more than 50 miles an hour.

McGrady May Be New Labor Chief

Washington, April 23 (AP)—President Truman is reported today to be considering Edward F. McGrady for nomination as secretary of labor.

McGrady, assistant secretary of labor from 1933 to 1937 and a long-time figure in the American Federation of Labor, has been in charge of labor relations for the Radio Corporation of America and is serving in this war as special labor consultant to the secretary of war.

Whether McGrady gets the job or not, one thing is sure: one of the first cabinet members to go will be the present secretary of labor, Frances Perkins. McGrady, according to reliable information, is acceptable to the AFL. The congress of industrial organizations may not be quite so agreeable, but some of Truman's close associates say this factor will not influence the appointment.

Questions Raised If this analysis is correct, it raises a number of questions about the current White House stature of the CIO's political action committee. The PAC had a strong White House position in the time of Mr. Roosevelt, due primarily to the heavy burden the PAC carried during the past election.

McGrady, 73, got his labor background in the newspaper printing pressmen's union (AFL) which he once served as president. He has figured frequently in serious labor disputes by playing the role of a government conciliator.

SUPPER IDEAS to get EXTRA RED POINTS!

SAUSAGES, APPLE RINGS and mashed potatoes for rainy April nights. Keep draining off the fat as you cook the sausages. Fills up your fat salvage can. Every drop is needed by our country for the battlefield and home-front essentials.

CORNERED BEEF HASH can be made with a little meat and lots of potatoes, and still be superb. When you're preparing the corned beef, remember to save those little trimmings of fat. Melt them down; strain them into the salvage can.

CREAMED CANNED FISH, when it's popped into a casserole and under the broiler to brown, looks like company's coming. But be sure you pour off the oil it's packed in. Remember, it's the small amounts, that soon add up to a pound and those very welcome 2 extra red points and 4 cents! This message has been approved by WFA and OPA and paid for by Industry.
