Bend Sergeant In Signal Group

Sixth Army Group, Germany—In the capable and experienced hands of men of the 57th signal battalion rests a large share of responsibility for maintenance of communications for the U. S. Seventh army in Gen. Jacob L. Devers' Sixth army group.

Veterans of D-day landings at Salerno and Anzio in Italy and in southern France, these communications experts know what it means to work hard and move fast.

"Men of the battalion have met every demand on skill and energy," said Lt. Col. Arthur C. Hill, 39 Freeman street, Auburn-dale, Mass., commanding officer. "In a recent six-weeks period, when troop movement called for extra effort, our construction companies laid 554 miles of telephone cable, 597 miles of field wire, and took over and rehabilitated 2,145 miles of French wire."

Fully Equipped—Essentially a wire construction battalion, the 57th is composed basically of two signal construction companies, an operations company, and a headquarters company. Attached to the battalion to insure full communications coverage are signal photo, signal pigeon, and radio monitoring detachments.

The 57th signal battalion began overseas service in February, 1943, at Oran, North Africa. Its members, under shelling and bombing at Anzio, improvised plows to bury their wire, and thus improved communications.

The battalion was awarded the Fifth army plaque and clasp in the Italian campaigns. Courage of its personnel is attested by two silver stars, six bronze star medals and 13 soldier's medals.

Members of the battalion include Sgt. William E. Roats, Bend, Oregon.

The Bend a cappella choir received a No. 3 rating. Also taking part in the evening festival, but not competing, was the Redmond high school band, directed by William Tweedie.

Dumbarton Oaks Rector's Theme

The international conference at San Francisco and the efforts of those participating to establish the foundations of future world peace will be the subject of special prayer and intercession at the Trinity Episcopal church tomorrow at 11:00 a. m. The Dumbarton Oaks proposals for an organization for world peace, which form the basis of discussion at the current conference, will be explained and discussed by Rev. George R. V. Bolster, and a simplified chart of the proposals will be placed in the hands of worshippers.

The preacher will indicate salient points of difference between the proposed organization and the old League of Nations covenant and will emphasize the dangers of public defeatism, ignorance, distrust and perfectionism which threaten the success of the San Francisco discussions.

The anthem, "What Shall I Do to Inherit Eternal Life?" will be presented by the Trinity Episcopal choir under the direction of C. Dale Robbins. The public is invited to attend, the announcement states.
