General Freed?

Maj.-Gen. Arthur W. Vanaman, USAAF, above, of Millville, N. J., may have been liberated from a German prison camp. A U. S. Army general was reported to have entered Switzerland from Germany, and General Vanaman, former commander at Wright Field, Ohio, is the only U. S. general captured by the Germans—in June, 1940. His wife, Blanche, has homes at Butler, Pa., and Kelly Field, Texas.

3rd Local Firm Gets War Quota

The third local firm to reach its quota in bond purchases for the Seventh war loan drive is F. S. Simpson and company, tobaccoists, who today went "over the top," according to L. B. Carter, chairman of the committee soliciting bond purchases by business houses. Simpson's organization was just behind Niebergall's jewelry, which made the quota yesterday. The U. S. Employment office was the first organization to pledge the designated amount of purchases.

Flow of New Food Items Is Due Americans

By Theodora Limber (United Press Staff Correspondent)
Chicago (U.P.)—Tulips will fly in from Holland and Easter lilies from the West Indies. Residents of little southern and western towns will eat steaks such as they never saw before, and tree-ripened figs, papayas and nectarberries will grace supper tables all over the world shortly after they have been picked. J. Prescott Blount of United Airlines told the 39th annual meeting of the American Meat Institute.

Transporting of perishable by air will change the habits of Americans throughout the country, he predicted, and will revolutionize entire industries. Just as important, it will make the work of the American housewife still easier, as well as offer her new food for her table.

"The important volume of flowers moving by air prior to the war is only a drop in the bucket compared with what we will see in the years immediately ahead," he said.

The location of flower-growing industries probably will be changed greatly on the maps of the world, due to airplane transportation, he added.

Spark New Trends
For instance, the big metropolitan markets of the east, such as New York, are the greatest luxury market, he explained. Once, when fresh vegetables were considered a luxury, acres of greenhouses sprang up in the east to fill this demand. When the refrigerator car was invented, the greenhouses changed their crops of vegetables for flowers.

Now, with the transportation of flowers by air, the greenhouses perhaps will produce penicillin, or with some conversion, mushrooms. "Business is constantly adjusting itself to new trends," he added.

A great opportunity for the air transportation of meat, also lies ahead, Blount said. The quality of spring lamb and fresh pork through careful handling and fast air service can be improved greatly.

He pictured quality meat being flown to markets all over the world at 15 cents a ton-mile in huge transports of 10-ton payloads.

"We feel there will be an economic limit rather than any engineering limit to the size of future planes," he said.

Will Trim Meat
Meat will be trimmed and dressed to decrease the weight load. But the trimming and dressing of finest Chicago beef and super quality Omaha steaks, and fancy, full oven prepared, young frying chickens will save the housewife considerable time and trouble in preparing meals.

Pre-cut, trimmed and attractively packaged in cellophane or piliophane meat and high quality specialty items, such as calves liver, franks and fancy sausages will attract young men and women fed up on army food and anxious to try all the new thrills in setting up housekeeping, and will find their way to remote American communities and points outside of the U. S.

Years ago bush operators flew meat in Alaska for a rate of $1.00 a pound. Just prior to the war some airlines were hauling by air express regular shipments of extra fancy trimmed steaks to certain famous west coast steak houses at 75 cents a pound. During the war, the air transport command regularly has flown 7,000 pounds of beef quarters from Ft. St. John, Canada, to Ft. Nelson in the Yukon territory of Alaska.

New Fruits for East
The fresh fruit and vegetable business, however, Blount said, will exceed all other producers of air cargo.

"First, we will see an interesting assortment of things that will be either entirely new to eastern markets, such as nectarberries and Queen Ann cherries from our northwest, and ripe papayas and natal plums from southern California, or things that are entirely out of season, such as California strawberries during fall months," he said.

Second, Wayne university is now conducting taste panel experiments on the benefits of tree-ripened fruit such as figs, tomatoes, etc., he said.

Third, commodities such as spinach and perhaps peas, cauliflower, asparagus and sweet corn probably will be prepared at the originating point for final consumption by trimming, shelling, and husking.

Bend to Vote

there. Signs designating safe places for building campfires were ordered.

W. L. Van Allen, representing the chamber of commerce, reported that a committee of that group had not yet reached a decision on proposed revised parking regulations in the downtown districts. At the last commission meeting, several business men sought private parking spots, and expressed a dislike for the present one-hour parking limitation.

The commission voted to renew its request to the county court to employ a full-time juvenile officer after the mayor, chief of police and commissioners noted what they called "violations of the curfew."

Rev. R. H. Prentice, a member of the Bend Civic Recreation committee, appeared at the meeting and called the attention of the commission to a presidential order abolishing the civilian defense after June 30. He pointed out that the committee would be operating without authority after that date, and suggested the city assume responsibility for the committee and provide liability insurance for playgrounds.

On motion of Commissioner Munkers, the body voted to retain the present members of the committee, who are Prentice, Anne Forbes, Dr. George Winslow, Rev. G. R. V. Bolster, Mrs. Ollie Bowman, and Mayor Niebergall. They are to serve until Jan. 1.

Committee Retained
Stray horses in the city, and particularly in the Awbery section, came in for criticism, and police were ordered to locate their owners and have them keep their animals in corrals. The horses were said to be causing damage to lawns and victory gardens.

Fire Chief LeRoy Fox reported for April, saying his men answered 28 calls, most of which were trash and flue blazes. Only one fire caused any loss and that was at the Dr. J. C. Vandeventer home.

Firemen had completed a survey of business houses, buildings and places of lodging, and reported one Bond street rooming house unsafe, Fox stated.
