

Potato Quarantine Is Still Effective, Officer Stresses

In order to protect the high quality of Central Oregon's far-famed Deschutes netted gem potatoes, a rigid quarantine is being continued in Deschutes, Crook and Jefferson counties, with persons importing potatoes from any other area, for any purpose whatsoever, facing prosecution, Ben Davidson, federal state shipping point inspector with headquarters in Redmond, pointed out today.

"We have a $2,000,000 potato industry in Central Oregon, and every means must be enforced to maintain the high standards which have been established," said Davidson, who is also a representative of the Oregon state department of agriculture, division of plant industry and market enforcement.

The quarantine was established several years ago to prevent the introduction from infected areas of bacterial ring rot, which has never been present on Deschutes potatoes.

Supplies Available

The only exception to the exclusion order is for early stock from the Stanfield fields of potato grower Emil Zivney, who raises the white rose variety and is a certified producer of disease-free tubers.

Except for new potatoes ordered for the local market before the Deschutes crop is ready for digging, adequate supplies for Central Oregon consumers are kept in cold storage and released by the cooperative growers' pool as the need arises. The supply on hand at present is sufficient for local needs, Davidson said.

Launched simultaneously with the potato quarantine is a restriction order preventing the importation into Oregon of fruits from areas in 36 states and the province of Ontario in Canada, where the oriental fruit moth has ravaged various forms of almonds, apples, apricots, cherries, chokecherries, hawthornes, loquats, peaches, nectarine, pears, plums, quince and prunes.

Fruit prepared for shipment inside or outside of infested areas must carry certificates of acceptance, and must comply with the oriental fruit moth requirements of the state of destination. Fruit from quarantined areas must be fumigated according to department of agriculture regulations, and may not be sold in areas free from the pest.

Deschutes Fund Inclusion Asked

Washington, May 24 (AP)—Rep. Lowell Stockman, R. Ore., said today he had asked the senate appropriations committee to restore $50,000 for the Deschutes irrigation project in his state to the interior department budget.

The funds were eliminated by the house committee, which also reduced $5,500,000 general investigation budget for Oregon and cut $1,500,000 from the department's administrative funds for the state.

"In reducing that item from $5,000,000 to $2,500,000," Stockman said, "the house committee failed to suggest how the bureau of reclamation could function if personnel were limited by this figure."

He told the senate committee the full investigation funds would enable the interior department to start reconstruction work in Oregon which would bring in new construction contracts.

The Deschutes project, he said, would be crippled in its function of irrigating Jefferson county lands unless the $50,000 were restored.

Bend Man Sees Ship Shell Isle

Aboard a U. S. Battleship off Okinawa (repeated) — a portion of the crew, first class, whose mother, Mrs. Emma Bell, lives at 440 East 2nd St., Bend, Ore., is fighting against the Japanese in the Pacific.

The ship, which saw service in World War I and has blasted the Japs through five previous campaigns of this war, underwent numerous air attacks during the last few days before the Japs' two torpedoes launched against her were repelled.

At 6:30 a.m., along with other ships of the task force, the battleship began her final bombardment on pillboxes, airplane revetments, observation posts and caves. Scores of navy planes struck at inland targets at the same time, while to seaward landing craft were moving in.

At 7:30, smoke from the inland batteries screened the island. In a fun that came an hour later, some of his mates were able to watch through the smoke with binoculars as the first waves of marines hit the beach.

Anxiously awaiting reports of the marines' progress over the ship's loud speakers, he and the crew sent up a cheer at the news that strategic Yontan airstrip had been taken. The ship's bombardment had paid off.

U. S. Casualties Near 1,000,000, Officials Reveal

Washington, May 24 (AP)—Officially reported U. S. combat casualties edged close to 1,000,000 today with losses in all theaters totaling 996,089.

The new total was 9,875 more than a week ago, the smallest seven-day gain in many months.

The overall total included 886,523 army and 109,654 navy, marine corps and coast guard casualties. The army figure reflects actual fighting through the greater part of April, before the German surrender.

Toastmaster Club Plans Are Made

Tentative plans for the establishing of a local chapter of the Toastmasters of America, were discussed at a meeting last night of directors of the Bend Junior chamber of commerce, in the chamber offices. Completion of plans was not made owing to the failure of a state officer of the Toastmasters to arrive from Portland.

Ray Cooper, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Clarence Bush, of the Bend Lions club, attended.

Bretton Woods Policy Approved

Washington, May 24 (AP)—The house banking committee approved the Bretton Woods agreements by a 23 to 3 vote today, giving the administration a thumping first-round victory on that sector of its foreign policy front.

The vote strengthened hopes of administration supporters for house approval of the agreements by an equally top-heavy majority.

"It was harmony with a capital 'H,'" said Committee Chairman Brent Spence, D., Ky., sponsor of the legislation to ratify the agreements.

Cambridge, Mass. (AP)—In response to a questionnaire from the secretary of his Harvard class of 1904, President Roosevelt wrote that his hobbies are "the same, only more," that he has written "altogether too much," and that he has traveled "about a million miles." As to public services performed, he noted simply: "President of the United States."

Anna Margaret Penn, 90, mother of the late Mrs. Norman W. Boles and grandmother of Nancy, Patsy and Peggy Boles, died on Tuesday in Coquille, local friends have been notified. Funeral services for Mrs. Penn were to be held in Coquille this afternoon.

A native of Indiana, Mrs. Penn came to Bend about five years ago, to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. Boles, and moved to Coquille when the Boles family went from here to the coast city.

Mrs. Boles preceded her mother in death early last November, at Coquille.

Helicopters are being considered for use in fighting forest fires in the near future.
