Library Features Alaskan Display

An exhibit of Alaskan souvenirs loaned by Mr. and Mrs. John L. Hightower is on display at the Deschutes county library, Miss Eleanor Brown, librarian, announced today.

The articles were collected by Hightower in the summer of 1944, when he was with the U. S. coast geodetic survey.

Included in the collection are two pair of Cape Prince of Wales Eskimo shoes made of waterproof walrus hide. One pair is for summer wear, and the other is the winter model, Hightower pointed out.

Other outstanding pieces in the exhibit are a piece of mastodon tusk from the conjunction of the Arctic Circle ocean, some pieces of mastodon teeth, and a pair of salt shakers which Hightower fashioned of ivory from the St. Lawrence Island.

Also in the display is a cribbage board which was made from a walrus tusk, and numerous snapshots of Alaskan scenery and fishing excursions. Some of the pictures show brook trout which weighed up to 15 pounds apiece. The collection will be on display at the library.

Michael Rastovich In Signal Company

With U. S. Supply Forces in France—Experts in the quick rebuilding and operation of everything from the old fashioned party telephone line cranked by hand to modern 100-line telephone land and marine cables, members of the 814th signal service company have had a key part in the support of the American Seventh and French First armies since the landings in South France last August.

One of the members of this Signal company is Michael Rastovich, of Rt. 1, Box 387, Bend, Oregon, who is now serving in France.

The company was the second American military unit to enter the ghost city of Bizerte. Torn by bombings, port demolitions and artillery fire, Bizerte's telephone system appeared a hopeless mass of jumbled wires, cracked transformers, missing insulators and smashed switchboards. Yet within hours the 814th had restored a measure of order and workability, so that military messages could flow in the major Allied languages over telephone lines and in Morse over the telegraph.

Mrs. R. P. McRae, publicity chairman for the Auxiliary, through the co-operation of radio and press has advertised it well and the Camp Fire girls are making a city house-to-house canvass as a final reminder.

A city collection center has been maintained at the west barracks and depositories established at the various community centers over the county. The Lions club will furnish trucks for the pick-up and be assisted by the Boy Scouts.
