An attendance of 75 is the goal for tomorrow, Rev. Robert McVenna reported.

CAP Encampment Dates Are Fixed

The Civil Air patrol will hold a two weeks' encampment between August 19 and Sept. 2, at the Portland army air base, with perhaps 10 cadets from Bend participating, it was announced today by Lt. Larry Lermo, commander of the local CAP. The Bend cadets will be chosen by merit, and the encampment will cost them nothing, Lermo said.

The officers also reported that enlistments are again open for CAP members and cadets, and that information may be obtained and Monday nights when the CAP meets, or during the week from Ward Coble at the Lumbermen's Insurance agency.

At the regular meeting of the CAP tonight at 7:30 o'clock, two army training films will be shown. It was said. They are entitled "Survival of the Fittest," and "Story of the Helicopter."

O.S.C. Dean Tells Of School's Needs

Passage of the state building measure at the Oregon special election June 22 will insure attainment of three objectives—proper caring for the wards of the state, meeting the most pressing needs of higher education and providing a building fund which will be an important factor in employment in the post war era, it was explained to the Bend Kiwanis club this noon by E. B. Lemon, dean of administration and assistant to the president at Oregon state college. Lemon was introduced by Dr. H. C. Staples, chairman of the local committee supporting the building fund bill.

Of the $10,000,000, three-fifths will go for the construction of buildings under the jurisdiction of the state board of control, such as boys and girls training school, hospitals for mental cases and the penitentiary, Lemon mentioned, while two-fifths will be for buildings at institutions of higher education. In the second class, he said, the need is great. In the first class, he stressed, it is much greater.

New Taxes Not Needed

Analyzing the bill, the speaker pointed out that no additional taxes will be required, as it is provided that the money will come out of income tax surplus. This now amounts to $16,000,000.

Need in the post-war period will be especially urgent in higher education because of the large enrollment of ex-service men and women, Lemon emphasized. State schools were crowded before the war. After the war there will be an intolerable situation if a program of construction is not put under way.

Pioneer Woman Is Dead in Bend

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Thursday from the Niswonger and Winslow chapel for Harriet Elizabeth Black, a resident of Bend since 1918, who died Sunday afternoon at her home, 1391 Newport avenue.

Mrs. Black, born Feb. 15, 1867, was an Oregon pioneer, crossing the plains from Yankton, S. Dak. in 1872 in an emigrant train with her parents. After traveling three months, the party settled on the site which is now Milton-Free-water.

In 1871 she was married to William Keatner at Medical Lake, Wash., moving soon after to Oregon to homestead near the Row river. Eight children were born to them, of whom five survive. They are George Keatner of Cottage Grove, Archie Keatner of Seattle Wash., and Mrs. Ida Taylor, Will Keatner and Arthur Keatner, all of Bend. Mr. Keatner died in 1908. His wife later remarried, and Mr. Black also preceded her in death.

Besides her four sons and her daughter, she is survived by 20 grandchildren and 22 great-grandchildren.

Burial will be in Greenwood cemetery.

Big Power Veto Views Explained

San Francisco, June 4 (UP)—Here is how the two views over use of the big power veto in the world security council would affect the handling of a specific dispute:

Assume that nation A and nation B—neither a member of the security council—are involved in a dispute. One of them or some other nation calls it to the attention of the security council.

Russia's position—discussion of the dispute between A and B is the beginning of a chain of events that could lead eventually to the council using armed forces for a settlement. Therefore, the Russians argue that there must be unanimity among the big five from the very beginning of that chain of events inasmuch as there must be unanimity in all subsequent action.

Position of U. S.

The U. S. position—it is impossible for the security council to determine whether it should assume jurisdiction of the dispute until it can discuss it and hear any statements A or B want to make. Therefore, the Americans argue, the chain of security council action which ultimately may lead to use of international forces begins with the council's decision to investigate; there is therefore no need for unanimity of the big five on preliminary discussion.

If one of the big five is party to a dispute, all, including Russia, agree that the involved party should not be allowed to veto any attempts by the council to settle the dispute by peaceful methods.

Balloon Attacks

Kamikaze suicide planes as a "damned nuisance rather than a menace" despite the damage they have inflicted on American naval units off Okinawa.

Fast carriers from his third fleet launched bombers and fighter-bombers against Japan's suicide-plane bases on Kyushu, southernmost of the enemy's home islands, Saturday and Sunday.

The attack Saturday thwarted enemy plans for a new series of suicide attacks on American forces in the Okinawa area, a dispatch from the carrier task force reported.

At least 36 enemy planes were destroyed or damaged Saturday despite adverse weather which forced the carrier aircraft to attack from only 100 to 200 feet altitude.

Raiders Made

The raiders ran into what one pilot called "a skyful of Japanese planes" and all American aircraft returned damaged or within a few minutes of running out of gasoline.

Another force estimated by Tokyo at 260 carrier planes attacked Kyushu yesterday. Few targets were found. Six enemy planes were shot down and three destroyed on the ground. Tokyo claimed that 16 American planes were shot down.

Long-range navy planes from Iwo added to the destruction in the enemy's home islands. Liberators and Privateers sank three small cargo vessels and damaged a picket ship, a patrol vessel and a lugger yesterday.

At his press conference, Halsey said the quality of Japanese airmen was deteriorating rapidly.

"When I left," he said, "I thought they had their third team in. It looks as though they are down to their fifth or sixth now."

Not a Target

Halsey praised the work of the Superfortresses, but indicated he believed they should bomb emperor Hirohito's palace. Fires started in a Superfortress raid on Tokyo May 26 spread to the palace, but it never has been a specific target.

"What difference does it make?" he asked. "I don't see how you can draw a line between the homes of the humble or the palatial. The emperor represents God in Japan. He should pay for impersonating God."

New Nippon Plane Outflies Corsair

Aboard Admiral McMain's Flagship off Ryukyus, June 3—(Delayed) (UP) (Via Navy Radio)—American carrier pilots returning from strikes against Kyushu reported today they encountered expert Japanese pilots flying new fighter planes that outperformed even the U. S. Corsair.

"Our Corsairs couldn't stay up with the new Japanese planes, which are damn good," said Lt. Cmdr. Stockton Birney Strong, New York, N. Y., who led today's raid.

Strong, a veteran of the Pacific air war, said "The Japs thumbed their nose at us."

For the second straight day outstanding enemy pilots flying superior aircraft pounced on our fleets of planes from Admiral William F. (Bull) Halsey's Third fleet. They collided with our airmen during strikes against air fields on Kyushu, Japan's southernmost home island.
