Montana Elects Republican, Wesley D'Ewart, to Congress

Helena, Mont., June 6 (AP)—Montana's second district today had elected its first republican to congress since the democratic landslide of 1932, giving 55-year-old Wesley A. D'Ewart a seven to six margin over his democratic opponent, Leo C. Graybill, in the first congressional election since President Truman took office. Unofficial returns from 501 of the district's 754 precincts today gave D'Ewart 22,407 votes to Graybill's 18,799. These results represented the bulk of the ballots cast in the lightest vote in Montana's history. Steady drizzling rains throughout the state were largely responsible for the small turnout—less than one-third of the registered voters. D'Ewart, a southern Montana rancher and stockman and outspoken critic of centralized federal control, led Graybill from the start of the counting and was slowly but steadily increasing his lead in most of the 39 counties in the district today. Graybill, 51-year-old Great Falls attorney and state legislator, conceded defeat at 11 o'clock last night, when scattered returns showed him trailing in all but the northeast section of the district and even in his home town. Robert Yellowtail, full-blooded Crow Indian running independently had polled a larger than expected vote of 2,907 at the latest count. Yellowtail resigned as superintendent of the Crow Indian reservation in southeastern Montana last spring to enter the congressional race. D'Ewart, 16 years a state legislator and leading opponent of the Missouri valley authority proposals, appeared to be sweeping the stockraising areas of the large, sparsely populated district, while Graybill held an edge in the wheat-raising areas of the northeast corner.

American Occupation Zone May Be Confined to Bavaria

Most of Conquered Region Expected to Be Turned Over to Russian and British Troops

London, June 6 (AP)—United States armies will turn over most of the territory they conquered in Germany to British and Russian troops and occupy only Bavaria, it was believed today.

The Ninth army will yield such cities as Leipzig, fifth largest in Germany, Magdeburg, Chemnitz and Erfurt to the Russians. The Ninth had taken over much of the First army's sector when the first returned to the United States.

The Rhineland and the Ruhr, including Cologne, pre-war Germany's third largest city, Dueren, Dusseldorf and Essen, will be taken over by British occupation forces.

Though largely conquered by the American First, Ninth and Third armies, the Ruhr and Rhineland have been administered lately by the American 15th army.

Few Armies Needed Unless radical changes were made yesterday at Berlin, correspondents who have been traveling with American armies in Germany believed the American occupation zone will be confined to Bavaria in southwest Germany.

This sector probably will extend as far north as Frankfurt, at present Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters, and certainly should require no more than one or perhaps two of the four American armies at present in Germany.

Flier Loses Life In Oregon Surf

Oceanlake, Ore., June 6 (AP)—The backwash of strong ocean breakers yesterday claimed the life of Sgt. Stanley Wanvig, RCAF visitor who had never seen the sea until the morning he drowned.

The tragedy was first of the vacation season at Ocean Lake. With his brother, H. A. Wanvig, and his brother's three children, all of Canby, the Alberta, Canada airman had gone swimming.

Then the undertow of a strong north current off the rock shelf began sweeping the bathers out. The father brought a daughter, Evelyn, 13, to shore, and a son, Richard, came in alone, although Genevieve, 10, with the sergeant, were seen 200 yards out attempting to support each other. Her father, reentering the water, managed to save the girl.

Officials Coming To Inspect Canal

To make a preliminary inspection of the North Unit irrigation project canal before actual priming and puddling operations are begun, R. J. Newell, acting director for the U. S. Bureau of reclamation, and H. R. Birney, chief of canals, are due here tonight from regional headquarters in Boise, Ida., it was announced today. The officials were expected to check the big waterway where water had been turned into it for the first time yesterday.

Local bureau officials said that approximately five acre feet of water had been released in the ditch, and that the water reached a point approximately three-quarters of a mile below the intake. Water had been turned on only for the purpose of removing mud which had collected above the head gate and beneath the fish screen mount.
