

Negro Sentenced To Die In Chair; Confession Read

Gallup, N. M., Feb. 21 (AP)—Louis Young, 44-year-old negro convict, today was sentenced to die in the electric chair April 23 for the knife-slaying in Santa Fe last November of Pretty Mrs. Eloise Kennedy.

At the end of one of the shortest murder trials in New Mexico court history, a 12-man jury early today ended two hours of deliberation with announcement that Young was guilty of first degree murder. He was charged with killing Mrs. Kennedy, a former Denver socialite, with thrusts of a butcher knife in the bathroom of her fashionable apartment.

Young burst into a negro spiritual as he was led from the courtroom after hearing his death sentence. Officers restrained sobbing Leon G. Kennedy, Jr., Santa Fe bank employe and husband of the slain young mother, as he lunged toward the retreating figure.

No Clemency Suggested

The jury made no recommendation for clemency. Judge William A. Barker, who ordered the trial held here rather than at Santa Fe, set the execution date after asking Young if he would care to make a statement.

The negro rose to his feet and said: "I am here to suffer a penalty. I am not guilty. You will find in the bible that all vengeance belongs to God."

Young, a trusty prisoner at New Mexico state penitentiary, then complained that he had been denied an opportunity to defend himself, but thanked the court-appointed defense attorneys, Fletcher Catron and Frank Andrews, for their efforts.

Arguments Heard

Final arguments in the speedy trial were heard last night. District attorney David W. Carmody, the prosecutor, rested his case at noon yesterday. The defense presented its case at the opening of the afternoon session and rested at 3 p.m.

Over objections of the defense, the state entered as evidence a confession to the crime, allegedly signed by Young.

According to the confession, read aloud to the packed courtroom, Young, who knew Mrs. Kennedy from having worked for her in the past, followed her into the bathroom of the apartment the afternoon of Nov. 19 and "asked her for a date."

"She said she was going to tell on me. I got scared and stabbed her," the written statement said. "I slashed and stabbed as quick as I could." The death weapon was a thin-bladed butcher knife.

Confession Quoted

Young said he was in the building housing the Kennedy apartment by assignment of New Mexico state police chief Frank Young, who resigned shortly after the slaying. Young often did housework for the police chief's daughter, who also occupied an apartment in the building.

The confession, taken by Santa Fe authorities several days after the crime, then quoted Young as saying he heard someone walking outside the apartment house and fled in fear.

The infant daughter of the Kennedy's slumbered undisturbed in its crib in the bedroom adjacent to the bath while Mrs. Kennedy was slain. Her husband discovered her body on returning from work later in the afternoon.

Mail Order Love Costs Real Cash, Lonely Man Avers

Puyallup, Wash., Feb. 21 (AP)—Love came high for Paul S. Schwald of Puyallup.

In fact, he said today, it cost him more than $1,000 to find out that his mail-order sweetheart already was married.

It all started when Schwald answered a Lonely-Hearts club notice in a detective magazine and began corresponding with a woman in Port Huron, Mich., who called herself Geraldine E. Dennison.

The post office box romance hit the peak when the woman accepted an engagement ring, along with more than $1,000 dollars of Schwald's money, ostensibly to join him at Puyallup, he charged.

Schwald's love chilled, he said, when days passed without an answer from the woman. Finally, he turned his troubles over to postal inspectors in Seattle.

Yesterday he was notified that a woman identified as Mrs. Beulah Geraldine Brill had been arraigned at Detroit on charges of using the mails to defraud Schwald.

The disillusioned Puyallup lover said he hoped to get his $1,000 dollars back—or at least the stamps he says he sent the woman to answer his letters.

CITY CHARGE FACED

Astor Jarvis, 37, of Bend, was arrested late last night by Bend officers on a charge of being intoxicated on Bond street, and was due to appear in municipal court this evening. Bail was set at $15.

Shipment of Silk Reaches Seattle

Seattle, Feb. 21 (AP)—The first shipment of raw silk to be unloaded in Seattle since before the war arrived in Seattle yesterday aboard the S. S. Peter Moran.

The shipment of 180 bales, a small fraction of the amount that passed through the port in former years, was accompanied by four boxes of jade and pearls valued at 100-thousand dollars. The shipment was consigned to Chicago.

The Moran's out-bound cargo will consist of 8,800 tons of wheat for delivery to the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration in Shanghai, officials said.

Truman Trying To Avert Strike

Washington, Feb. 21 (AP)—President Truman today intervened personally in an attempt to avert the threatened nationwide railroad strike by the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, both independents.

He scheduled a noon conference with BRT president A. F. Whitney and BLE president Alvanley Johnston, presumably to urge them to utilize fully the peaceful procedures of the railway mediation act to settle their wage and rules dispute with the major carriers.

Completing Poll

The 300,000 members of the two unions are completing a poll favoring a strike to enforce demands for $2.50 a day pay increase and important rules changes. Under the railway procedure, the next step would be to set a strike date and for Mr. Truman to appoint an emergency board. Appointment of the board would force delay of the strike for 30 days.

Eighteen other major railroad unions and 131 railroads have agreed to submit the union demands for $2.50 a day pay in-

Couple Is Married By Long Distance

Seattle, Feb. 21 (AP)—Take it from Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Wilson, their daughter had a lovely wedding yesterday, even though she was in Frankfurt, Germany, and the bridegroom was in Kellogg, Ida.

The Wilsons took part in the ceremony—a four-way long-distance telephone marriage.

The bride was WAC sergeant Lois Arlene Wilson, 23-year-old former University of Washington student and the bridegroom, Reid Chapman, a former army staff sergeant.

Mrs. Wilson says her daughter, stationed in Frankfurt, expected to be released from service soon, and will be re-married in New York City when she returns from overseas.

Mrs. Wilson listened in to the wedding on her home phone, while Mr. Wilson offered his congratulations from his Seattle office. The newly-weds first met in Marselles.
