

Red Priest Wins Decisions; Fans Burst Into Song

By Jack Cuddy
(United Press Sports Writer)
New York, Jan. 21 (AP)—Al (Red) Priest, New England's debonair middleweight "champion," headed back to Boston today with songs on his lips, but with woe in his heart.

The jeering songs he heard last night during his hilariously disappointing New York debut comprised the first serenade ever accorded a bout in Madison Square garden. Smaller clubs and Ebbets field had had serenades but never the more circus-specter garden.

To the strains of "let me call you sweetheart," Priest won a split 10-round decision over his adagio-dancing mate, "Cowboy" Ruben Shank of Denver. Though Priest received only a split decision from the ring officials, the decision of the 9,146 fans was unanimous.

Bout Is Let-Down
Priest, whose home is in Cambridge, Mass., and whose stronghold is in Boston, provided metropolitan fans with the greatest let-down in years for at least since the Joe Louis-Billy Conn fiasco last June, for he had been publicized as the greatest crowd-pleaser to toss leather in Beantown since the heyday of John L. Sullivan, the Boston "strong boy."

Instead, the unathletic-looking guy with the thin frizzle of red hair, performed like an anemic novice. Because of Priest's record of 25 victories in 26 professional bouts, and because of Shank's wide open swinging style, the New England hot-shot went into the ring at the prohibitive odds of 5-1. Before the bout was finished, that price sounded as goofy as Priest's advance press notices.

Appears Willing
Red appeared willing to fight, but he seemed to lack a fighter's equipment—skill, punch and ruggedness. At long range he was lost. Coming to close quarters he was fairly effective with inside uppercuts, but when he fell into one of their constantly occurring clinches, he was futile. Belly punches almost buckled him, and his left brow began bleeding in the third round.

As the two principals went through their dancing repertoire of waltz, samba, minuet, conga, ballet, rhumba and fandango, the flabbergasted fans—who fortuitously had paid only up to $8 tops for their pews—went through the various stages of vexation: (1) booing, (2) incredulous laughter, and (3) derisive songs.

Fans Sing
In an effort to be impartial, the fans favored Shank with a heart-stirring rendition of "Home on the Range." They also sang "Roll Out the Barrel," perhaps just to keep in good voice and to keep their minds off the monotony being perpetrated in the ring.

Priest, who scaled 155½ to 157½, and Shank was 155½ to 157½ in the 10th round; and Shank was staggering—whether from blows, fatigue or boredom one could not be certain. The gate was only $29,605.

Coasting Along In The Sport World

By Ben Cook
(United Press Sports Writer)
Los Angeles, Jan. 21 (AP)—A bumper crop of professional baseball players—and would-be players—will cavort during the next three months at spring training camps in California, Arizona and Hawaii, a United Press survey showed today.

More than 1,000 players will compete, starting next month, for spots on four major league teams; eight Pacific Coast circuit clubs, and squads in two class C circuits.

The record flock of trainees will be scattered from Tucson, Ariz., where the Cleveland Indians of the American league will report February 16, to the

Bob Feller Signs With Cleveland

Cleveland, Jan. 21 (AP)—Baseball's strikeout king, Bob Feller, today signed a 1947 contract with the Cleveland Indians calling for the greatest earnings of a player in the game's history.

Shortly after the signing, President Bill Veeck of the Indians said that Feller's income from a basic salary and a bonus on attendance "to my knowledge will be the greatest in the history of baseball."

Babe Ruth received a straight salary of $80,000 a year in 1930-31. The agreement was reached after a 10-minute conference in Veeck's office. He said there had been only several other preliminary conferences.

GANZAGA FIVE WINS
Spokane, Wash., Jan. 21 (AP)—Gonzaga University's powerful independent basketball team had little difficulty in downing Pacific Lutheran of Tacoma, Washington Interscholastic league contender, 56 to 37, last night.

Gonzaga led 33 to 15 at halftime and used reserves liberally. Harry McLaughlin of the Lutes and Tom Hardy of Gonzaga tied for high-point honors with 16.

Bend And Albany Still Top League

BIG SIX STANDINGS

	W.	L.	Pct.
Bend	3	1	.750
Albany	3	1	.750
Salem	2	1	.667
Corvallis	2	1	.667
Eugene	1	2	.333
Springfield	0	5	.000

While getting in shape for the Friday night game here with the Albany team, the Bend Lava Bears will have their eyes on a game to be played by Albany and Salem at Salem tonight.

Should the Albany club win against the state capital team, it will move ahead of Bend in the Big Six standings. However, if Albany loses the game, Salem will move into a tie with Bend for the Big Six lead and Albany will drop all the way down to fourth place.

In either case, however, the Lava Bears will have to win Friday night to come out on top with a Big Six lead.

Bears Get Rest
The Lava Bears have no games this week before the Albany contest and expect to be in the best shape of the season. Heavy practice sessions have been scheduled for the week by Coach Claude Cook to work out kinks in the Bears' fast-break type of play. So far this season the Bend five has been unable to get their offensive rolling for an entire game and have won their games by high-scoring spurts.

In spite of the fact that the Bears have been at the top spot in the Big Six for most of January, Salem and Eugene still rank as favorites to end the season with the league title. Eugene has lost several upset games, but is now believed ready to make a strong comeback and Salem is in a position to move into the league lead with several more wins. These two favorites will play a game at Salem Friday night while the Albany team is here for its game with Bend.

Buddy Young Cuts His Classes Again
Chicago, Jan. 21 (AP)—Buddy Young "has not signed a contract with any professional organization," a close friend of the Illinois football and track star said today, but there were increasing indications that Young might not play for the Ill' grid team next fall.

Although he was scheduled to take his first final examination yesterday, he failed to show up and instead served as a pallbearer at the funeral of Dolores Evans, a friend of long standing in Chicago.

It was the second time since the Rose Bowl game, when Illinois trampled U.C.L.A., that Young violated a strict university rule concerning attendance. He did not return from the Christmas holidays for his first class, which made him ineligible for track until it could be made up.

Bulldogs To Play 'Forbidden' Game
Los Angeles, Jan. 21 (AP)—Los Angeles Bulldog football stars today openly revolted against the Pacific Coast conference football league insisting they will play a forbidden game Sunday with a group of college stars at Gilmore stadium.

President Rufus Klawans of the conference ordered players of his league out of the coming game after the Bulldogs won the Pacific Coast title Sunday from Tacoma Indians.

The Hollywood Bear squad reportedly joined the fight and they too will play this week-end. Bear coach Glen Galvin will help Bulldog coach Bill Sargent drill the pro grid outfit, it was reported.

Bulldog players in the game were released from their contracts and will re-sign after the contest.

Trains laugh at winter!

You can forget about cold weather, rain and snow when you travel in a warm, steam-heated train.

Steel rails are the smoothest, safest highway ever invented—safe when wet.

Next time you travel, let the engineer do the driving for a change. Our lowest fares for chair car and coach accommodations are good on most of our very fastest trains.

What's the Difference?

ALMOST daily someone asks one of our people: "Just what is the difference between beer and ale? The thousands and thousands who have come to prefer our Columbia Ale recognize a difference. They can taste it. And there is a natural curiosity as to what accounts for it.

The primary element which accounts for the distinctly different effect so many sense, and enjoy, in Columbia Ale is the distinctly different method of fermentation employed in its brewing.

In the fermentation of beer a type of yeast commonly known as "bottom yeast" is used. This, as the name implies, rests at the bottom of the tank and the fermenting action is from the bottom upward.

In the case of ale the reverse is true. A highly-cultured yeast of a "surface" or "top-type" is used. This yeast floats buoyantly at the top of the tank and the fermenting action is from the top downward, rather than the bottom upward.

This distinctly different method of fermentation is primarily the difference between beer and ale and accounts for the light, smooth "texture" so many have recognized in Columbia Ale.

If you have never tried a bottle of Columbia Ale, why not do so next time you drop into your favorite tavern? Or better still, take a few bottles home and enjoy one before dinner, during the evening or at bedtime. You'll find it pleasing in taste, moderate in content and thoroughly wholesome. And, just as thousands of others have done, don't be surprised if you acquire a distinct preference for this distinctly-different beverage.

FORD TRUCKS LAST LONGER

You know sometimes these ads are a little difficult to write because there just doesn't seem to be anything new to brag about, or anyone in particular to talk about so the inclination is to start my tongue wagging and walk off and let it wag.

I haven't told you how good Ford products are because that takes too much space and the quality speaks for itself—so I should talk about something else.

Then I could tell you how good the organization is but I've told you that so much you should know it by now. If you aren't certain try us out—I can assure you we don't add anything to your bill—we charge only for the parts used and the actual time spent on the job.

Maybe the best way to cover the subject is to say that we have nearly every service that any other place in town has—the only difference being that we do it better. Try us out on that sometime and prove it to yourself.

Well, there you have it—I just started it going and the darn thing goes by itself.

Better order your new Mercury now. We are Central Oregon dealers for Mercury you know.
