

St. John's Star Not Consistent In Hoop Work

By Oscar Fraley

New York, Jan. 21 (AP)—Harry Boykoff, the St. John basketball star who bears a working resemblance to Abraham Lincoln and an overweight telephone pole, has been described variously this season as a hero and a bum but coach Joe Lapchick will take him—and any other little Boykoffs who happen to come along.

The six foot, eight inch Boykoff has been criticized frequently this season for his ineptitude in hitting the hoop from the altitude at hand. In one game he crated only two points and in another got five, which set the basketball Bossellas howling on Lapchick's heels.

Joe, who never went to college or played college basketball but came up off the east side side-walk to court fame as a member of the original Celtics, handled it as well as any man with a sheep-skin. He passed it off as due to Boykoff being overweight, a fact he unsuccessfully has been trying to impress on the big fellow.

When that fact appeared in the public prints, Highpockets Harry took the lead out and soon was his average, almost immediately, to a cushy 20 points. The 12 missing pounds, which shaves pretty thin when spread over 80 inches, was the difference as noted by the astute Lapchick.

Joe, who was one of pro basketball's earliest and brightest stars, doesn't have to apologize for the way he handles his hardwood chores at the little Brooklyn school. He is frankly envious of the boys under him for their educational advantages but when it comes to basketball they listen closely. Proof is the fact that St. John's, with Lapchick and his protégé, Boykoff, won the National Invitation championship in 1943.

The star of the team was, of course, Boykoff. But there's no doubt that Lapchick turned the stumbling novice into the player he is today. Big Harry still is a bit on the awkward side but you can blame much of it on the fact that he took time out for a hitch in khaki. He came back last year just before the season opened and the refurbishing job started all over again.

Lapchick is the first to admit that Harry isn't a really great player. "He could be the greatest center of all time if he had a bit more coordination in his legs," Lapchick asserted. He has a great pair of hands and can hit the basket equally well from either inside or outside.

But Joe will settle. "I hope he never graduates," Lapchick laughed. "And as for this criticism about not shooting for records with him, he doesn't need records. He's a record in himself, that boy. I hope he has 12 children and they all come to St. John's to play under me."

Greenberg's Pay Held Too High; Switch Made

Orlando, Fla., Jan. 21 (AP)—

Hank Greenberg's $60,000 salary, which may jump to $75,000 this season, was the reason the Washington Senators waived on the major league home run king, owner Clark Griffith said today. Griffith said that was too much money to pay a 30-year-old player, despite Greenberg's 44 home runs and 127 runs batted in last year. The Senator leader added that he thought that was why most other American league clubs allowed Greenberg to go from Detroit to the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National league.

Police Schools Set For Oregon

University of Oregon, Eugene, Jan. 21 (Special)—A series of regional schools for city policemen, to be sponsored by the Oregon Association of City Police Officers, is planned for 12 Oregon cities. It was announced by Henry F. Reistler, executive secretary of the association of research assistant in the university bureau of municipal research and service. Planned for March and April, the training program will cover basic police subjects and will be open to law enforcement officers from all levels of government.

Plans tentatively call for schools to be held in Albany, Astoria, Bend, Coos Bay, Corvallis, Eugene, Klamath Falls, La Grande, Medford, Pendleton, Salem, and The Dalles. Policemen from smaller towns will be invited to attend classes in the nearest town where schools are set up.

The program will consist of one day of training each week in each of the cities, for an eight-week period. Cooperating in the plan are the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Portland police bureau, the League of Oregon Cities, as well as the bureau of municipal research and service.

Tribute Is Paid Veteran Group At Lodge Program

"No higher praise can be bestowed on any man than to say of him, 'He served his country and served it well,'" said F. C. Donnell, in paying tribute to 19 world war 2 veterans at a meeting of camp No. 9794, Modern Woodmen of America, Friday night in Norway hall. The meeting was in the form of a "Good Neighbor" program honoring the camp's ex-servicemen and women. The speaker, who is state manager of the lodge, was here from Portland for the occasion.

Following O'Donnell's address, a leather embossed billfold was presented to each veteran on behalf of the camp, by Bert Ferguson, who said that the gifts were sentimental symbols of gratitude for their contributions to the sum total of victory.

Pherrin Moody responded for the veteran group, expressing appreciation for the gifts and for the honors accorded them. The affair started with a potluck dinner, and special entertainment was provided by Deane Fox, local magician. Dancing was enjoyed later in the evening.

The event, which is part of a "Good Neighbor" program being observed in Modern Woodmen camps throughout the United States and Canada, drew an attendance of 45 people. Besides O'Donnell, out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Volney Grant, of Redmond.

Mrs. Marie Moody was chairman of the committee organizing the affair, assisted by Rollo Morgan, Bert Ferguson, Roy Kutch, Jacob Corriker and W. L. Moody.

The dance, which will be held at the grange hall, was planned at a recent grange meeting. Mrs. Del Mattson is community chairman in charge of arrangements.

Plans for the pinochle party were made at a club meeting last week at the home of Mrs. Pete Klobas, when the 12 members present decided to have the party at the Eastern Star grange hall for the benefit of the polio fund. Miss Lola Mae Franks was a guest at the meeting.

Mrs. John Franks will be hostess to the unit when its next regular meeting will be held, on Thursday, February 20.
