

Pork Price Boom Faces Housewife; Pig Crop Small

Chicago, Feb. 21 (AP)—A price boom in pork developed today and livestock men predicted it would hit the housewife's purse in about two weeks.

The increases will continue for about three months, livestock men said. Before it is ended, some butchers may be selling pork roasts for 90 cents a pound and center chops for $1.25, one source said. Easter hams, he said, may retail at $1.00 a pound.

The boom—resulting from the small spring pig crop—already has hit the hog market, where shipments from the farm have been gradually tapering off. Hog prices spiraled to record levels yesterday in the nation's major hog markets.

Time Lapse Faced

The public, however, will not pay the increased price for its pork appetite immediately. Hogs in the form of fresh pork—generally take between seven and 10 days to travel the circuit from the stockyard to the kitchen. In the case of ham and bacon and other cured products, it takes about two weeks longer.

Bad news for the budgeting city housewife also developed in the Chicago grain mart. Wholesale wheat futures prices—soaring 30 cents a bushel since January 1—foreshadowed a possible hike in the price of flour and cereals.

Millers were reluctant to talk about it, but were quick to point out that "flour prices, after all, are determined by the price of wheat."

The increasing price of wheat futures was attributed to heavy government purchases for overseas shipment to meet a goal of 325,000,000 bushels by June 30.
