

Five Men Added For Expansion Of Forest Work

Corvallis, Aug. 21 (Special) — Expansion of work in the Oregon forest laboratory and increase in enrollment in the school of forestry at Oregon State college has made necessary the appointment of five new staff members—three in the research laboratory and two in the instructional field. Dean Paul M. Dunn, director of the laboratory and head of the school has announced.

The two additional instructors are Harry I. Nettleton, Portland, a former staff member recently with the O & C lands administration, and G. Lloyd Hayes, El Centro, Calif., with the research branch of the U. S. forest service since 1934.

Nettleton will return to this college, from which he was graduated in 1921, as associate professor. He was with the U. S. Indian service for several years and in the position he is now leaving he supervised studies related to reforestation, fire control and public relations.

Forest Fire Authority
Hayes, a graduate of University of Idaho and Yale is a recognized authority on forest fires, a subject on which he has published some 30 papers. He will be in instructor in forestry.

New appointees to the laboratory staff are William G. Baker who will become chief of the industry investigation section; Mortimer D. Macdonald and Leif D. Espenas, both to be technologists.

Baker was formerly head of the wood products department in the school of forestry here and has been with the U. S. Forest Products laboratory in Madison Wis. He has had much practical experience with the lumbering industry in Oregon, both before and since his graduation from Oregon State.

Both Macdonald and Espenas are graduates of the New York State college of forestry. The former is a specialist in plywood manufacturing who, since serving four years in the army air force has been with several commercial concerns. Espenas is a specialist in operation of dry kilns who has been engaged in lumber season research in the U. S. Forest Products laboratory at Madison since 1942.

Mild, Mellow Rocking Chair rivals wave-rocked whiskeys of old!

When the author of "Two Years Before the Mast" sailed round the Horn a century ago, skippers stowed a keg of whiskey aboard. Rolling with the ship, the whiskey acquired a deeper, finer flavor!

To capture this same fine taste when ashore, skippers lashed kegs beneath their rockers. Rocking brought out the same mellow smoothness you'll enjoy in my Rocking Chair Whiskey.

Today, gentlemen, modern science improves on both methods. Controlled agitation in my special blending process gives Rocking Chair a ripe, smoothness of taste.
