Barkeeps Job Includes Windsor Tie Knotting

Milwaukee (AP)—Joe Cherba, bartender, says his work isn't just a matter of mixing drinks.

Every Saturday night a young man comes to the bar, waits until Cherba isn't busy and hands him a necktie.

Cherba loops the tie around his own neck, makes a Windsor knot and hands the tie back to the young man, who puts it on. The scene is without dialogue except for the fellow's parting, "Thanks, Joe."

Pistol Toter in Bank Just Wanted Change

Seattle (AP)—Officials at a local bank were puzzled.

A young man, carrying a pistol in one hand, and a paper sack in the other, walked into the bank.

He noted the startled look on a teller's face.

"This is not a stickup. Just want this $50 bill changed into quarters."

The teller changed the bill.

The young man left without explaining the pistol.

Stocks Turn Up In Late Trading

New York, Aug. 21 (AP) — Stocks registered a small gain in late trading today after earlier hesitancy.

Some of the buying reflected the feeling that Anglo-American agreement on restoration of inconvertibility of sterling had eliminated for the time being some of the uncertainties created by the British economic situation.

Another factor was the publication of good earnings statements by several companies, including Household Finance, Cluett Peabody, Raybestos and Truax-Traer coal. There was, in addition, a bigger dividend for holders of Great Western Sugar common. And carloadings were slightly higher.

All sections of the list shared the small recovery, which got underway in the steels. Youngstown Sheet & Tube led its group with a rise of more than a point. Bethlehem, Republic and U. S. Steel were firmer.

Vets Making Good In Interior Dept.

Washington (AP) — The Interior department is proud of its veterans who came back to make good within the department.

For instance, there's Tom Atkeson, an assistant biologist for the fish and wildlife service down in Decatur, Ga. Atkeson makes speeches and shows wildlife films to sportsmen's groups in the area along with his other duties. Yet this young veteran lost the sight of both eyes and boths his hands in a land mine explosion in the European theater.

Another young veteran, Wayne Garrett of Altus, Okla., has made a unique record at Interior. He started out in the bureau of reclamation as an engineering aide with a $1,440-a-year salary.

Garrett served as a marine pilot during the war. When he returned to the bureau it needed a man to fly its plane in the west. Garrett got the job—and a jump in salary to $5,905.20 a year.

Atkeson and Garrett are just two examples of 60 per cent of the Interior veterans who are holding better jobs in the department than they had when they went into the service.

1947 Freshman Nervous But A Solid Citizen

New Orleans (AP)—Today's college freshman may drink more coffee than his dad did. And he may be a little more nervous than the first-year student of a decade ago.

But the freshman of today is in no danger of becoming a physical wreck or psychoneurotic than his grandad was.

Dr. Lloyd J. Kuhn, director of student health at Tulane University, has studied the life and habits of the young men. He has decided they are solid citizens.

Kuhn says the chief difference between the freshman of today and 20 years ago is that "they are coming to school a little younger and slimmer," and possibly a bit more nervous.
