Students 'Solve' Roulette Wheels, Win Huge Sum

Reno, Nov. 21 (AP) — Two college students who parlayed their $300 savings into approximately $13,000 with what they hoped was a foolproof "system" at roulette decided to knock off "for awhile" today while they were still ahead about $8,000.

The University of Chicago students, Albert Hibbs, Chillicothe, O., and Roy Walford, San Diego, told Harold Smith, one of the operators of Harold's club, that they "might be back tonight, but we aren't sure."

Still clean-shaven and neatly dressed after spelling each other in eight-hour shifts for 60 consecutive hours at a roulette wheel, Hibbs and Walford knocked off at 4:50 a. m.

Both Are Tired

"We just thought we better quit for awhile," Hibbs said. "We're both pretty tired."

The break came after number nine, on which they had been betting continuously on one wheel hoped to come up for 108 consecutive rolls.

The pair reached their peak yesterday when their total winnings at Harold's and another club where they had previously played the number 21 reached $13,000. They stopped $5,000 ahead the first time when the management changed the wheel.

Hold Conference

Shortly after Walford came on at 4 a. m. the two young men "looked at each other, put their heads together, whispered and picked up their $1,065 worth of chips," a watcher said.

They said they hadn't counted their winnings exactly but they were "between $7,000 and $9,000." Smith confirmed that his club had lost somewhere between $2,000 and $4,000.

Apparently the two players had reached the "mathematical point" at which they had previously said they would abandon their "system" at least temporarily.

Washington Pass Blocked By Snow

Olympia, Nov. 21 (AP) — The 5,540 foot Chinook pass was officially closed to traffic for the winter today by Highway director Clarence Shain. Slides and heavy snow had blocked the road at Park junction on the west side and Lodge Pole camp on the east side of the summit several weeks ago but highway engineers had hoped to reopen it.

Shain said the slides and snow would make reopening of the pass difficult and hazardous to the public.

MAN HELD INSANE

Coeur d'Alene, Ida., Nov. 21 (AP) — Arthur Lynch, arrested here Wednesday when he held three men at bay on a downtown corner with a loaded rifle, today was on his way to the state asylum for the insane at Orofino. Lynch, who had told officers he was "after" someone, was adjudged insane yesterday in probate court.

'Banana Bear' Mystifies Zoo Officials; Called Coati-mundi

By Henry Minard
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Seattle, Nov. 21 (UP) — "Bos'n" weighs one pound but he holds more surprises than a pound of hash. No one's sure yet what he is.

It's owner calls him a banana bear but doesn't know why except that's what it said on the tag when "Bos'n" arrived here from Portugal two weeks ago.

Even experts at Woodland Park zoo say they never heard of a banana bear.

From the tip of his stiff tail to the end of the long boneless snout "Bos'n" represents more zoological items than a small menagerie.

His approach is that of a diffident anteater but his exit resembles that of a surprised skunk.

Anyway, as far as George Browne is concerned, "Bos'n" has proven his worth. "He can lick his weight in rats," he said.

Browne carries the "what-is-it" on his shoulder as he makes the rounds repairing adding machines.

Browne says he's been stopped by hundreds of people, at least half of which he estimates, have torn up their liquor ration cards.

"Bos'n" is no problem to feed. If it's "eggless Thursday," well you can't give him his favorite dish—eggshells. But he'll settle for chewing gum, coughdrops or coca-cola. "Bos'n" turns up his flexible, rotating nose at meat.

Hunters, you can have your Labrador retrievers. We'll take "Bos'n." He not only brings back the bird but plucks it too. Yes, he eats feathers.

"Bos'n" just squeaks into the bear category, having a bear-like head.

His forefeet are human in appearance with long claws and he walks like a hyena.

Woodland Park zoo finally came up with a possible clue to the origin of "Bos'n." "Maybe its a coati-mundi," said one expert.

Coati-mundi? oh that's just one of those animals that's half raccoon and half anteater.
