

Ty Powers' Girl Friend May Face U.S. Deportation

By Patricia Clary
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Hollywood, Jan. 21 (AP)—Federal authorities debated today whether to deport actress Linda Christian, Tyronne Power's latest girl friend.

The international travels of Miss Christian, Mexican-born daughter of Dutch parents who has lived in a dozen other countries, so confused immigration officers that they issued a technical exclusion order pending intensive study of her status.

The government said her papers were so mixed up it would take weeks to figure them out. Meanwhile, she was paroled to custody of her studio.

Permit Expires
"I do a lot of traveling," Miss Christian explained. "There are so many papers, sometimes it's confusing. I needed just one more little paper with my picture on it and I didn't have it, that's all."

Officials said her border-crossing card had expired and she lacked a re-entry permit and immigration visa.

Her exclusion was ordered yesterday after she talked things over with a three-man inquiry board. She immediately gave informal notice of appeal to the immigration commission in Philadelphia.

Reporters told Miss Christian after the hearing that the easiest way to solve her problems would be to marry an American.

"I've thought of that," she said.

Must Wait Year
It will be at least a year before she can marry Power, whose wife, Annabella, filed suit for divorce Saturday, the day Miss Christian arrived. Power's secretary drove her to and from the immigration hearing. She said she spent a "quiet evening" with Power Sunday.

Power, 34, and Miss Christian, 23, began their romance in Italy last fall and visited Acapulco, Mex., together in December.

"I don't discuss my romances," she said. "But if I did have a boy friend, it would be Ty."

Blind, She Makes Living By Laundry Business

Omaha, Neb. (AP)—Mrs. Vivian Cotley, blind almost since birth, earns her living by doing neighbors' washing and mangling.

State assistance department officials believe she is the only sightless person in the country earning her living that way. She takes in about $25 a week, according to Harry L. Hines, director of the blind program.

Officials of a washing machine company sold the equipment at cost and taught Mrs. Cotley to use the washing machine and the iron. Dials, Hines said, were especially marked so that she could set them by touch.

Hospital Held Not At Blame In Death Of Babe On Desk

Minneapolis, Jan. 21 (AP)—Coroner Russell P. Heim today blamed tracheal bronchitis for the death of a four-month-old baby boy who died on the desk of Mayor Hubert Humphrey while the parents waited to complain that the infant was denied admission to a city-owned hospital.

"Although we have not completed our investigation, I do not think there was any dereliction of duty among hospital personnel," he said.

He said that an autopsy showed that the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jensen died after the trachea, or windpipe, became plugged and infected.

Developed Swiftly
"The bronchitis apparently developed very swiftly — almost overnight. It is not unusual for a child of this age to be stricken with something like this," he said.

Humphrey directed the city welfare board to open "a full and exhaustive inquiry" today into the baby's death.

"This is a shocking tragedy," Humphrey said. "The parents of the child have my deepest sympathy. We will hold a full public inquiry to determine all the facts."

The baby's parents said they went to city hall to ask Humphrey to direct officials at Minneapolis General hospital to admit the child, Arthur, Jr.

Taken to Hospital
They had taken him to the hospital clinic the night before, but the physicians who examined him said he was not sick enough to be admitted.

The baby's grief stricken mother said she pleaded futilely with the doctors. She said a nurse told her the baby had a 102-degree fever.

"I told them time after time that my baby was too sick to move," she sobbed.

Mrs. Jensen, who also has a four-year-old daughter by a previous marriage, said she and her husband were taking the baby to the clinic again yesterday morning when they decided to ask Humphrey to help them.

Is Tree Surgeon
"We thought the mayor could get them to let us go right in so we wouldn't have to wait in line," she said.

Jensen, 45, said he is a tree surgeon, but that during the winter months he has "some trouble making ends meet." He said that he usually can pay the everyday costs of living but that it was impossible for him to pay to have the child treated by a private doctor.

Dr. D. W. Pollard, superintendent of the city hospital, said the infant was examined Monday night by two experienced physicians who felt that his condition was not serious enough to warrant hospitalization.

Recent experiments show that there is no difference in the effect of fluorescent lighting and darkness on cut flowers during storage.
