That, however, is not what we are talking about. The big news is that for the first time in the history of Oregon's legislature, it is going to take its tax troubles "to the people", right into their living rooms by the fire and pour everything into their ears by radio and remote control.

Thursday evening, January 20, commencing at 8 o'clock the house committee on taxation is going to stage a "Town Meeting of the Air" in the hall of representatives. The committee is to sit down in a group in the well of the house chamber. Members of the house who want to listen in and be the applauding audience will occupy their usual seats. The taxpayers and Mr. and Mrs. Public will be up in the gallery.

Ralph Moore, chairman of the committee, is to be the interlocutor, or the moderator if the show gets too hot. Representative Lyle Thomas of Polk, is going to tell about the "state budget." Giles French, is going to discuss tax revenues and proposals. David Baum, of Union, is going to discuss "Supposed Surpluses." Ben Day, of Jackson, will talk about "The relation of state and local tax programs." J. P. Short, Redmond, will impress upon his audience the "Vital need for economy in state government."

KOAC, the state owned radio at Corvallis, is going to spread the news direct from the capitol building. It has invited any other state station to "cut in and listen" should any of them decide they want to cooperate.

So, there you are, if you want to get the inside dope about taxes and things right hot and fresh out of the official horse's mouth, just tune in and fill up.

Room Honored Miss Helen Mason's second grade room won the room count for the largest percentage of parents present. There will also be a special award to the room with the highest percentage of parents on the PTA roll by March 20, it was announced.

Besides Coyner, L. T. Standifer represented the Bend school board at the meeting. He was introduced.

After the meeting, a committee of PTA mothers served refreshments.

Intensification of a "propaganda war", and said these efforts by America have borne fruit in the past because they were based on facts. He urged that the world be fully cautioned that the United States will not tolerate another war of aggression.

"The Voice of America," America's broadcast to the people of Russia, is a very feeble voice, the retired commander declared.

Admiral Zacharias believes that the European situation will be settled in the near future, and that then the attention of the world will be focused on the Far East. He predicted that Russia will not be able to control China, and added: "China is back to normal now, but instead of fighting four or five civil wars it is fighting only one." In 1927, the speaker declared, Chiang Kai-shek was more communist than the leaders

"air minded" if you know what that means. Of course it is not such an innovation for some member of the assembly to get up in the air over some piece of legislation but it is something new when the whole concern gets modern and gets airborne.

When you stop to think it over it is not so strange however because the president of the senate and the speaker of the house both are that way every time the occasion offers. President Walsh is a sky pilot in his own right who flies hither and yon, while Speaker Van Dyke takes to the air with the greatest of ease whenever he wants to go from one place to another more than 10 miles away.

Open House Held At New School Reid school patrons and visitors, 135 strong, attended open house last night at the new school, in connection with a regular meeting of the PTA. Vance Coyner, of the Bend school board, outlined the school district's four-year "pay as you go" building plan, of which the new Reid school is a part. After the program, visitors were taken on a tour through the classrooms, with Albert Nelson, Reid principal, and J. W. Bushong, city superintendent, as guides. A quintet from the high school music department, composed of Peggy Terwilliger, Ann Nelson, Pat Blakely, Mary Fowler and Suzanne Gillfillan, sang "The Whippoorwill Song" and "Julia Line," accompanied by G. W. Russell. The organization's charter, received from the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, was displayed by A. W. Westfall, president, who conducted the meeting. Room Honored Miss Helen Mason's second grade room won the room count for the largest percentage of parents present. There will also be a special award to the room with the highest percentage of parents on the PTA roll by March 20, it was announced. Besides Coyner, L. T. Zacharias Talk (Continued from Page 1) Tells of Experiences Admiral Zacharias touched on his early contacts with the Japanese, referred to his intelligence activities and mentioned his years spent in Japan learning the Japanese language. In his years in Japan he made acquaintances which years later proved of value in his efforts to bring about the surrender of that nation, he mentioned. "We have been thrust into the leadership of the world, and we must accept this leadership if we are to maintain peace," the speaker said in conclusion.
