Redmond Team Beats Prineville

Prineville, Jan. 21—The game between Frank's Tavern team of Redmond and the Pine Products boys of this city failed to measure up to anticipations Wednesday night, when the Redmond team overpowered the Lumberjacks 42 to 27 in a double header of the central Oregon town league here. Ballyhooed as a feuding battle, the first half of the game was so uninteresting that many spectators left for home. In the second half, however, the players of both teams provided some thrills as they warmed to a fighting action, shooting baskets from long distances. Fox was star for Frank's Tavern with 14 points, while Noble was high point winner for Pine Products with 11.

The first game of the double-header session was between the Farmers' Supply company team of Culver and Houk Motor company of Prineville. The visitors kept a slight lead throughout play, and grew better as time ran out, defeating the Houk team 46 to 35. Fitch led in Culver scoring with 16 points while McFadden accounted for 19 Houk tallies.

It looks as though we may hitch our wagon to a star, as Secty. Forrestal reports tests being made on rocket satellites. The story is as involved as a child's excuses, but it seems that if you shoot a rocket fast enough and on the right angle it won't come down. It'll just keep going around and around the earth, like a star. Rig it with TV and bombs and you've got a bombing set-up that's out of this world. As the enemy's country turns under the satellite you watch the television screen... and pull the trigger. Or a bombardier can perch up in the rocket. Volunteers take one step forward.

From all the reports, it will not only be instructive but we will be seeing all the new automotive equipment — both service and operating, so we will be able to give you a lot better service as well as advice on the new accessories.

Sport Parade

By Oscar Fralay
(United Press Sports Writer)
New York, Jan. 21 (UP)—The tall, square-shouldered fellow with the shy, piano key smile leaned back comfortably in his chair and allowed that Joe DiMaggio ought to have a pretty good season and maybe the Yankees would surprise those clamoring Indians and ried Sox.

"The big guy should know, for it was old joltin' Joe talking about himself and the ball club for which he is the wheel horse."

"It seems that every season since I've been in the majors, I've had something wrong with me," he recalled. "I've had sore arms, bad heels and what not. But right now I feel great, in real top notch physical condition, and maybe this will be a right big season."

It is acknowledged that as goes DiMaggio, so go the Yankees. And with the Yankee Clipper avidly awaiting the opening of spring training, the club which finished only two games out in last year's torrid pennant race may give them a bit of a surprise. Joe thinks so. "After all, we have a good club," DiMaggio insisted. "If we get good pitching, and we could easily enough, we'll be in there at the finish."

Joe had another heel operation during this off season for removal of a heel spur. It had plenty of time to heal and on a recent trip to Florida, Joe tried hitting some gungoes and the heel gave him no trouble.

That Florida trip was an indication of the place which Joe holds in the hearts of American youngsters.

He had planned a vacation in Europe. But the boys and girls at Mending Heart village in Miami, children recovering from heart diseases, had named Joe their mayor. The National Children's Cardiac foundation, which operates the home, asked Joe to accept the title and help raise funds.

Joe is a sucker for kids. He has one of his own and little Joe bosses the old man around as if he were a bush leaguer. So Di Maglio canceled his European vacation and flew to Miami to talk with 17 children who admire him. It was a big day at Mending Heart village when Joe arrived to take over as mayor. And the voice of Jimmy Brown, a saucer-eyed kid with blond hair, cracked when he handed DiMag the key to the home.

And then there were the bed patients, youngsters too weak for the outdoor ceremonies. Joe visited with them, handing out gifts and signing the inevitable autograph books. The kids wore bright, shining faces and a nurse whispered:

"He does more good than all the medicine in the world." Giving up his vacation to do creditable things like that may be one of the reasons Joe feels so good right now. At 34, the baseball grind may soon catch up to him. But the Yankee Clipper doesn't think so.

Leahy Not Interested In Professional Ball

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 21 (UP)—Football coach Frank Leahy of Notre Dame indicated today that he was not interested in an offer to coach the professional Washington Redskins for a reported salary of $50,000.

"If I could not coach at Notre Dame, I would not want to coach anywhere else," said Leahy. "I hope sincerely that I can stay at Notre Dame for a long period of time."

"If Ray shows enough against me in Miami, and if the public thinks he's a good contender, I'll be satisfied to have him as a contender for the title," Louis said.
The champion said that Jack Allen, a Toronto sports promoter, had offered him $250,000 for a five-month, coast-to-coast exhibition tour of Canada next spring and summer. He said his advisers were studying the proposal.
