

Displaced Doctors Called Europe's 'Forgotten Men'

Geneva (AP) — More than 2,500 experienced doctors, many of them of the highest skills, are the "forgotten men" of Europe's displaced persons camps, according to a survey made by the International Refugee organization. IRO said the proportion of doctors to the population of the camps is one of the highest in the world. Countries which have clamored for agricultural and industrial workers among the DP's have turned a deaf ear to pleas to resettle medical men. The report says that virtually no resettlement of doctors has taken place, "although people in many parts of the world desperately need medical care."

Not Over-Age
Nationalities of the doctors range from Bulgarians to Ukrainians. At least two are former holders of Rockefeller medical fellowships. Another is the author of over 70 medical publications. An IRO screening of the doctors by a board of competent medical men showed that 80 per cent of them are under 50 and 60 per cent under 45. Among those screened, 81 doctors have long teaching experience as professors or lecturers in 19 different special medical subjects.

Dr. R. L. Coigny, IRO health director, said in the report that medical societies oppose immigration of doctors for fear of the lowering of medical standards or of professional competition.

Needs Cited
"Medical standards would not suffer from admission of refugee doctors, most of whom are excellently qualified, while standards in some countries might even be improved," Dr. Coigny said. "As for competition, no country in the world has sufficient doctors to maintain the best possible level of health in all its areas."

The United States is the only country which has indirectly encouraged the medical man. Its displaced persons act gives a preference to refugees "possessing special educational, scientific, technological or professional qualifications." However, the U. S. has not stated the number of doctors it will admit.

The few who have left the camps for other countries have had to disguise their professional status and pose as mechanics and farmers, the report reveals.

Americans in Turkey Solve Duck Problem

Ankara (AP) — American members of the military aid mission to Turkey who felt their duck shooting style cramped back home by game laws and bag limits have found their hunter's paradise on Lake Emir near here. American fliers passed over the lake and saw its surface swarming with ducks and no hunters. The Turks considered the lake too remote and the dead ducks too hard to retrieve.

The Americans solved the retrieving problem by using rubber pneumatic life rafts from their military planes. Then the ducks had to face the latest secret weapon from the Americans' arsenal when gunners were stationed in a line, barrage fashion. A low-flying trainer plane was used literally to shoot the ducks into the muzzles of the guns.

The latest joke in Ankara is that the Americans are eating so much duck they are afraid to open their mouths for fear they will quack.

Family Celebrates 4-H Club Week

Powell Butte, March 9 — No family in Crook county is celebrating National 4-H club week with a greater sincerity than that of the R. W. Michel family, whose ranch lies between the Redmond-Prineville highway and Crooked river just to the east of here. Indeed, every week of the year is 4-H club week on the Michel farm, where Mr. and Mrs. Michel's three daughters are all engaged in club projects.

Shirley and Donna Michel are grooming each a fine feeder calf in preparation for the coming Crook county 4-H exhibits scheduled for the coming mid-August. Their younger sister, Betty, is just as active. Betty is a member of a lamb club. She declares that her Southdown will be a prize winner come mid-August.
