Radio, Record Shop Planning Another Unit

A Greenwood avenue branch of the Radio and Record shop will be opened Monday, July 25, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Riles announced today. The new shop, in the George Moty building at 228 Greenwood, will specialize in the repair of automobile radios and the sale of radio parts.

Repair of home radios and the sale of phonograph equipment and records will be continued at the downtown address on Franklin avenue. The new shop will provide needed space for working indoors on built-in car radios, Riles said.

John B. Davenport, who has been employed in the repair department at Riles' for some time, will alternate with Riles in taking charge of the Greenwood avenue shop. Jerry Foster has been added to the staff at the downtown store.

The new shop has been granted the exclusive Delco Radio distributorship for Central Oregon districts, Delco, Philco and Motorola radios are carried at the downtown location.

Portlander Put On 4-H Faculty

Redmond, July 21—Cecil Root, of the Portland Pacific Power and Light company, will be a member of the faculty for the annual tri-county 4-H summer camp, to be held next week at the Skyliners' lodge near Bend. Donald Benscoter, county 4-H club agent, said today. He will teach classes dealing with aspects of electricity.

Others on the staff will include Charles Ross, extension forester from Oregon State college; Gus Woods, Crook county agent; Ann Davis, Crook county home demonstration agent; Ruth Shelton, Deschutes county home demonstration agent, and Benscoter, who will be camp manager. Mel Hagood and Hollis Ottaway, Jefferson county agents, will also be at the camp, each for four days of the period.

The camp will open Saturday evening, July 23, with 4-H club boys and girls between the ages of 9 and 12 to register for half a week. They will leave camp after breakfast July 27, and the older 4-H'ers, 13 years of age and over, will sign in to stay until after breakfast Sunday, July 31. Church services will be held both Sundays.

About 125 youngsters from Crook, Jefferson and Deschutes counties are expected for the first camp session, and 75 others for the last half of the week. Courses will include basketry, leathercraft, photography, geology, crepe paper work and physics.

Those who attend are asked to take sleeping-bags or adequate bedding, personal items, flashlights, and empty jars for making decorative objects of crepe paper braid.

SO HE WOULDN'T TALK?
Tacoma, Wash. (UP)—Detectives Jack Thore and R. E. Dupper-thaler stopped Gilmer Massie, 29, for questioning. When Massie did not speak clearly, they made him open his mouth. Inside, they found two $10 bills wadded up. He was booked for investigation of theft.

SELLER MUST BEWARE
Tuscaloosa, Ill. (UP)—Mr. and Mrs. Louis Carter filed a suit for $10,000 for injuries and inconveniences they say they suffered when a man fell off a tavern stool and knocked Mrs. Carter down. Under Illinois' dram shop act, owners of taverns serving a person who becomes intoxicated are liable for damage he may do while drunk.

Stock Market Has Reaction

New York, July 21 (UP)—Traders who had run up sizeable profits in the recent prolonged stock market rise took a few profits today and prices softened, with volume dropping sharply.

The market had risen in 18 of the past 26 sessions and was entitled to a technical reaction, the experts said.

Otherwise there was no change in the market condition and no adverse news developed.

Speculative activity in Common wealth & Southern cooled off with the general market. This issue again topped the list of activities but its volume was very small compared with recent sessions.

Industrials lost the most and rails and utilities yielded small amounts.

Selective buying went ahead in some special issues and a few of them were carried to new highs. Hudson firmed in an otherwise lower automobile list. Oils, liquors, coppers and chemicals eased.

Northwest Airlines made a new high on a favorable earnings statement, a factor which also helped Transcontinental & Western to rise. American Airlines ruled steady on fairly active turnover.

was taken in order to give several persons an opportunity to raise money for payments, he explained.

An emergency ordinance was given the first reading, providing additional authority in controlling irrigation hours in the city. Previously the city could fix a closed period, such as between 1 and 4 p.m., but had no legal power to enforce the edict. Cuthbertson pointed out, Farnham said that 10 days must elapse, under the law, between the first reading and passage of an emergency ordinance.

Booklets Approved
The commission accepted the offer of an advertising firm to print 3,000 copies of Bend traffic regulations, for free distribution here. Cost of the publication will be defrayed by advertising sold here, it was explained.

The question of continued watering of the city ball park, to settle dust prior to games, was considered. It was decided that the city would provide the water, but that in the future it would be up to game sponsors to do the sprinkling. This decision is based on the cost to the city, as part-time work on Saturdays frequently requires payment of a full day's wage to the city employee, it was explained.

The state highway commission again will be requested to make a survey of traffic at Franklin and Wall streets, to determine whether or not signal lights would be advisable there as a means of expediting travel, it was decided. The commission rejected a previous request for traffic lights, but conditions at this intersection now are more congested than before, it was pointed out.

A request by Larry Baxter, for $300 damages to his grazing land along the Deschutes river from fire that started recently at the city dump, was referred to the city manager for negotiation.

All members of the commission were in attendance at last night's meeting.

Senate Defeats Reservations To Atlantic Pact

Washington, July 21 (UP)—The senate late today defeated a move to write into the North Atlantic treaty a reservation specifying that the United States is not committed by the pact to supply western Europe with arms, including the atom bomb.

The vote was 74 to 21 against the reservation.

The proposal was beaten shortly before the senate took a final vote on ratification of the historic treaty.

The reservation was sponsored by republican Sens. Kenneth S. Wherry, Neb.; Robert A. Taft, O., and Arthur V. Watkins, Utah. It would have notified the other 11 pact signatories that the senate did not regard the treaty's mutual assistance provisions as a promise of arms aid.

Gang Shooting

bedded. They and beautiful show-girl Dee David, 26, were wounded by the gunfire as they stood at the floodlight entrance to a popular filmland restaurant.

Conference Called
State attorney general Fred N. Howser yesterday called a top-level policy conference attended by Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz, Police chief William Worton, District attorney William Simpson, a representative of the governor's crime commission and their chief assistants.

Howser announced he "had specific information as to the sources which might attempt to assassinate Cohen," but could not divulge it. He said he had been anticipating gang warfare for some time.

Howser called the shooting "typical" of the defiance of law that he said prevails in Los Angeles, where the current vice investigation has caused a widespread shakeup in the police department.

Meanwhile, the county grand jury went into a last-minute huddle today to consider criminal indictments charging perjury or bribery. It has heard lengthy testimony charging that certain vice squad policemen accepted payoffs from callhouse madam Brenda Allen. Cohen himself revealed information that touched off the inquiry.

The rare atmosphere, from some 400 miles above the earth outward, has a uniform temperature of approximately 4000 degrees Fahrenheit, a group of scientists recently stated.

General Marshall

A. The two world conflicts which have occurred in the past 35 years have made it unmistakably clear that an aggression on any of the free nations of the Atlantic community involves all of those nations.

The time has long since passed when this country could defend itself adequately by waiting until an attack physically reached its shore. In the world of today we know that an all-out armed attack anywhere in the North Atlantic area would in fact be aimed at the United States.

Q. Do you believe the pact will contribute to world peace by deterring any would-be aggressor, or is there a likelihood that it will be regarded as a threatening gesture toward "encirclement of a non-participating nation?"

A. I feel certain that the Atlantic pact will contribute to world peace.

Q. Do you think a military assistance program on the scope of the $1,130,000,000 first-year plan already outlined will make any significant contribution to security in Europe? Or will it serve chiefly to bolster recipient nations against internal disorders?

A. Obviously the military assistance program outlined by the administration for the first year cannot provide the European Atlantic pact signatories with the means to defend themselves effectively against an overwhelming armed attack on their territory. It is and should be only supplementary to their own self-help effort.

Importance Cited
Q. Do you believe the arms program will assist materially in meeting the objectives outlined by Secretary of state Dean Acheson and Gen. Omar N. Bradley of preserving the territorial integrity of western Europe in event of war, and thus avert an emergency occupation with later liberation?

A. The arms program I consider is important looking toward the preservation of the territorial integrity of western Europe. Every practical effort must be made toward insuring that, in the awful event of another war, the nations of western Europe would not be overrun with the consequent necessity of later liberation.

Downey

reclamation director in California. He said Bashore, then commissioner, recommended against the appointment.

Comment Repeated
Chairman Joseph C. O'Mahoney, D., Wyo., asked Downey if Bashore had any later comment on Boke's work after Boke became director.

"I am sorry you asked that," Downey replied. "Yes, he later wrote that he made a mistake, that Boke was doing a fine job."

"At that time (late 1944 and early 1945) Mr. Bashore was in a dreadful controversy with Mr. Straus (then assistant secretary of interior) and what Mr. Bashore called the gang that surrounded Mr. Straus. Mr. Bashore sat in my office with tears in his eyes and told me he was a beaten man; that he loved his job but could no longer endure the pressure and political manipulation coming from Mr. Straus."

Downey also told the committee that he wrote his critical book about the reclamation bureau "to give the bureau the right to sue me for libel." No such suit has been filed.

The hearing started with Downey asking that all witnesses including himself testify under oath. He was sworn in. The first installment of his testimony dealt primarily with Straus' letter recommending Boke. He called the letter "50 per cent false, 25 per cent distortion and 25 per cent some kind of talk I can't interpret." He charged the letter falsely stated that Boke attended Antioch college from 1927 to 1931. He was there only until 1929, Downey said. The letter said Boke did engineering construction work that "carrying charge consisted of 'carrying things for an architect.'"

MOUSE GOES ELSEWHERE

Bushnell, Ill. (UP)—The fire department here got a new kind of alarm: "mouse on fire." Mrs. William Dudman said a mouse started a blaze in a closet by chewing on matches and then ran across the floor, on fire. The firemen put out the blaze in the closet but never did find the mouse.
