His inquiries were published in central Oregon and, he has told us, brought nothing to tie to.

The notice of his search that appeared in the Central Oregonian, of Prineville, did however, bring an interesting re-miniscence that is of particular interest here in Bend. This was in a letter from Mrs. Pearl Beale, of Monument, Oregon and here is what Mrs. Beale wrote:

Monument. Oregon Atgust 27, 1949

I have just read your inquiry in the Central Oregonian in regard to the name Pelton for the dam site on the Deschutes river. This may be it.—Pelton is a name of a pioneer family. Mrs. Pelton was a widow with two sons, Horace and Jim. She owned a stock ranch in Sams valley, Oregon. She married a Mr. Sisemore who owned a stock ranch at Farewell Bend on the Deschutes, where the town of Bend now is. They rode all over that country. My father, Joseph Woodruff, left Milton, Oregon October 8, 1888. We stopped at Mr. Sisemore's place on Saturday eve to rest our teams. Mr. Sisemore and father went antelope and sage hen hunting. Mr. Sisemore tried to persuade father to homestead land in that vicinity, saying that some day there would be a dam in that river and what a great productive country it would be. Our destination was Union creek. In a couple of days we went on, located at Union Creek, Oregon, the last week of October. Mr. Sisemore and the Pelton boys passed our Union Creek place twice a year, as they drove cattle from their Farewell Bend place to Sams Valley for winter beef. In the spring, often crossing 8 or 10 miles of crusted snow on the old highway south of Crater Lake they would drive by our place, often holding the cattle there over night. My maiden name was Pearl Woodruff, and my homestead is now known as Woodruff Meadows. Horace and Jim are dead, they were older than I. There were two children born to the Pelton-Sisemore marriage, a daughter Hattle, and son Lin, both dead. The only one left is Lin Orth Sisemore, grandson of the old Mr. Sisemore place, where Mrs. Beale and her father spent the night nearly 60 years ago, is now the Brooks-Scanlon yard and mill site. Sams valley is over near Medford.

the night nearly 60 years ago, is now the Brooks-Scanlon yard and mill site. Sams valley is over near Medford.

Mrs. Beale's information is insufficient to tie the name of the pioneer family to which she refers to the Pelton dam site. P. L. 32 gave the District of Columbia daylight-saving time but somehody else may be able to go further Who can do so? but somebody else may be able to go further. Who can do so? And to think that you can hunt antelope and sage hens in this vicinity!

OIL BY LEGISLATION the processing of certain visa cases for admission into the U. S. Strolling through the book of laws enacted by Oregon's of alien fiances and fiances of Strolling through the book of laws enacted by Oregon's 1949 legislature we have come upon chapter 365 which is an act, to quote its title, "To regulate the drilling, prospecting for, production and conservation of natural gas and oil," etc. Now we suppose slickers will take the field to sell Oregon oil well stock and point to this law to support their claims that they are offering a good investment. "Why would the legislature enact such a law," they will ask, "if it did not believe that there was oil in Oregon?"

There may be an Oregon oil field. Many thousands of dolars the designation of the finances and fiances of GIs.

lature enact such a law," they will ask, "if it did not believe that there was oil in Oregon?"

There may be an Oregon oil field. Many thousands of dollars have been spent in various parts of the state in drilling for oil, however, and so far without success. The best opinion is that there is no oil and that those who buy stocks in companies formed to prospect in the state are throwing their money away. The most that can be said for such enterprises that they are speculative to a very high degree.

And speaking of oil stocks what has happened, we wonder,

And speaking of oil stocks what has happened, we wonder, to that oil enterprise about which we exchanged words a couple of years or so ago with a then Prineville resident. Seems to us he was selling his stock on an Oregon promotion anywhere but in Oregon. We wondered why and he replied with some heat saying eeffect, "You just wait and see."

We're still waiting. And referring again to that statute we suggest that oil cannot be found in Oregon by legislation.

Columnist Eleanor Roosevelt's pronouncement that the peaceful picketing of communist Robeson's concert was "unexcites a natural curiosity as to what her ideas may be on picketing in general.

There hasn't been enough frost yet to hurt the garden. Our biggest zucchini has literally "grown liself to death" and is starting to pop its skin. Some of the others have caught up with it, and there are several over 20 inches long.

Last night I canned a box of pears, to slore away with the box of peaches I canned last week. It takes a full evening to put up a dozen or so jars of fruit, but it's time well spent, I think. A box of clingstone peaches, to pickle, would be nice, too.

This morning from the picture window, we saw a light on Tumalo mountain, just north of Bachelor butte, that twinkled like a lose of the most commonly large and distinguished career of public service. And it marks the essential greatness of Mr. Hoover as a man, that on his 75th birth day, he can speak to his fellow countrymen about their problems without returning even the shadow of malice for malice.

On the principle that first things should come first, you would expect that the 220 new public laws would cover the most important subjects, settle the most vital issues, do the most Public iaw No. 1, passed Jan. 18 after one day of work, made Jan. 20 and Jan. 21 holidays for all federal employes in Washington. This was so they could attend the inauguration.

Having passed this miracle, the payt day congress raised the sal.

Having passed this miracle, the next day congress raised the salary of the president, vice president and speaker of the house. This was public law No. 2.

It would be boring to just list all the laws passed, one after another. To get the spirit of the thing, let's just hit some of the legislative high spots. Feb, 25. after congress had ben in session five weeks, it passed public law 9 — to issue a commemorative stamp on the 200th anniversary of Alexandria. Va. of Alexandria, Va.

There was a very important piece of legislation passed in P. L. 29, which permitted fourth-class postmasters to be upgraded to third-class postmasters, and third-class postmasters to be downward.

Republicans Seek Aid for China

Washington, Sept. 8 UP-Senate republicans today promised a "major battle" for military aid to China when the administration's $1,450,000,000 arms aid program st.450,000,000 arms aid program gets to the senate floor.

They renewed their attack on the China policy as a special 25-man committee considering the arms aid plan called Vice Adm. Oscar C. Badger, retiring navy commander in the far east, for questioning on tse hot China issue.

Next day P. L. 23 authorized the marine band to attend the G. A. R. encampment.

There was a very important piece of legislation passed in P. L. 19, which permitted fourth ostmasters.

The dispute over China policy reached such a torrid state that Connally declined to pose for photographs with Sen. William F. Knowland, R., Calif., with whom he clashed on the senate floor late yesterday. Connally refused to join Knowland and Badger be-by President Truman contemplat es military help for European countries outside the iron cur-tain and for some non-communist nations elsewhere. But it includes nothing for nationalist China. Sen. William F. Knowland, R.

Calif., who is leading the fight to earmark $175,000,000 in arms aid for Chinese non-communists, told reporters that "the administration has no intention of doing anything for the far east."
"That means there will be major battle on the senate floor on this issue," he said.
