OFTEN REBUILT

Boston 49 — Boston's Beacon Hill Monument is perhaps the only monument in America with a "pedigree."

It's directly descended from the original Beacon Hill monument which was erected in 1635, principally as a guide to mariners.

The monument was replaced in 1768, 1775, 1789 and 1865, but the present shaft is a replica of the original.

A 60-foot doric column topped by a weather-beaten eagle, the monument is situated behind the State house.
