Hydrogen Bomb Production Still Not Determined

By George E. Beedy Jr.
 (United Press Staff Correspondent)
 Washington, Jan. 28 (UP)—President Truman today faced one of his greatest decisions—to build or not to build the hydrogen bomb.

A rash of statements from people associated with—but not directly connected to—the atomic energy program urged him to say yes. But the president made it clear that the fateful decision was his and his alone.

Sen. Styles Bridges, N.H., top-ranking republican on the senate armed services committee, said military officials were unanimously in favor of its production. He described it as a weapon so dreadful that "it might be the instrument for stopping all wars."

"Every responsible military official I have talked to feels very definitely that for our own self-preservation, the only thing we can do is make the decision, go ahead with it and go ahead without too much delay," Bridges said. "With that, I concur."

Discussion Admitted
 Thus far, no administration official has even used the phrase "hydrogen bomb"—a hydrogen fueled "thermonuclear" atomic weapon many times as destructive as present plutonium A-bombs. But Sen. Brian McMahon, D., Conn., chairman of the congressional atomic energy committee, removed any doubts that it is being considered.

Following a closed meeting of his committee yesterday with atomic energy commissioners, McMahon faced a battery of reporters and said: "We have been discussing plans for advances in the technological improvement of atomic weapons and I anticipate your questions by saying that this includes all types of weapons that can be... no, just leave it weapons, period."

Other members of the committee were generally silent. But one said that the question discussed was the "most fateful in our history." He noted the large number of statements urging construction of the weapon and said they could well be "inspired."

Of Vast Importance
 "I believe the subject discussed today is of even greater importance than the decision that led to Hiroshima and Nagasaki," he said. "From the caliber of men who have been saying things, I would judge that we will hear something within a few days."

The statements urging hydrogen-bomb construction came from such sources as Dr. Harold G. Urey, a scientist who helped build the first A-bombs; Bernard Baruch, author of the American atomic control plan that Russia rejected in the United Nations, and Chairman Carl Vinson, D., Ga., of the house armed services committee.

In some quarters, McMahon's statement was interpreted as a broad hint that there are plans underway already for building the hydrogen bomb. But a committee member who was present at the meeting said: "I am positive that Sen. McMahon did not intend to go that far."

California Gets Heavy Rainfall

San Francisco, Jan. 28 (UP)—A Pacific storm swept east across the Sierras today, leaving north California rail and highway traffic disrupted by snow and dumping up to 2 1/2 inches of rain in the San Francisco bay area.

Winds up to 50 miles an hour were subsiding today, and the weather bureau predicted scattered showers today, with clearing and a new cold snap tomorrow.

Heavy snow was predicted for parts of the Sierras, and rain was forecast for most coastal and central valley points south and east of here. The storm dumped seven-tenths of an inch of rain at San Francisco airport up to midnight.

Other sections of the bay area got up to three times that amount, with Mt. Tamalpais, across the Golden Gate reporting 2.46 inches for 12 hours ending at 10:30 p.m.

Runs Cancelled
 The Southern Pacific railroad was forced to cancel today's Shasta Daylight-streamliner runs between here and Portland, Ore., because of blizzard conditions and derailment of a freight train in the Cascade mountains. Tracks were cleared about 1 a.m., but not in time to allow yesterday's trains to reach their terminals and be serviced for runs today. Some 1,300 passengers were delayed.

Heavy snowfall was reported over the Siskiyou and Sierra mountains to the north, and snow invaded the upper Sacramento valley, with a fall of more than five inches at Redding.

A hail storm pelted Butte county, and mixed snow and rain was reported as far south as Marin county.

The California Automobile association said chains were compulsory on mountain sections of U.S. highways 97 and 99 to Oregon and on highways 40 and 50 to Nevada.

teen inches of snow fell at Chemult in the 24 hour period. Seven inches of snow fell at Burns. Madras reported a fall of six inches. Ten inches of snow fell on the Ochoco summit, where the depth is just short of four feet. Four inches fell at Sisters and 10 inches at Lapine. The storm also reached east across the John Day valley, with high winds piling 13 inches of new snow into drifts in the Fossil country. The Shanks-Fossil road via Clarno, is blocked by snow.

Truman Still Refuses to Talk Of Hiss Trial

Washington, Jan. 28 (UP)—President Truman was assailed today as a stubborn man determined to suppress the facts of communist spying by United States government officials.

His republican critics centered new fire on the president's refusal now to discuss Alger Hiss or red herrings. There will be more. The GOP believes Mr. Truman's repeated refusal to take the Hiss case seriously can be built into a big campaign issue.

Here is the way it went at Mr. Truman's news conference late yesterday:
 Q: Mr. President, regardless of the outcome in the upper courts, will you "turn your back on Alger Hiss?"
 A: No comment. Then Mr. Truman said that was a nice question. There was a bit of laughter in the crowded, oval room.

A reporter barged in with a question about excise taxes. After a bit of back and forth, the conference got back to Hiss.
"Intent" Questioned
 Q: Mr. President, no point in asking other Alger Hiss questions?
 A: Mr. Truman replied that there was no point in asking any more Alger Hiss questions. He said they were not asked with good intent and that he did not intend to answer them.

Q: Mr. President, how about a red herring question?
 A: Mr. Truman said there would be no questions on that here.
 Q: Mr. President, do you approve of the statement of Secretary Acheson?
 A: There was no comment.

Acheson said he would not turn his back on Alger Hiss although his friend had been convicted of lying and by implication of spying for the soviet union while he was a high state department official.

Rep. Harold H. Velde, R. Ill., said the president's refusal to discuss his 1948 "red herring" statements about Hiss was "the attitude of a stubborn man who is still attempting to withhold information on an espionage plot in his branch of government from the people and the courts of the land."

Up to Congress
 "If Mr. Truman won't make the answers, it is up to congress to provide some answers," Velde said.

He said he would ask the house un-American activities committee, of which he is a member, to demand that Mr. Truman release the loyalty records of Hiss.
 Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R. S.D., said: "I believe the president would have been better off today if he had followed that (no comment) formula of silence at the time Hiss was first brought into the picture."

Sen. Joseph E. McCarthy, R. Wis., said: "I am not surprised that the president would rather not discuss his previous all-out efforts to hamstringing the house un-American activities committee."

Another Rabbit Hunt Scheduled

A second rabbit hunt between teams of local sportsmen will be held tomorrow despite recent snows. Lloyd Smith, president of the Deschutes County Sportsmen's association, announced this morning. Smith made a tour of the hunting areas, in the dry canyon and Grandview districts, this morning and found an average of only four or five inches of snow. Unless blizzard conditions develop tomorrow the rabbits should be out to feed, he said.

The hunt teams will be captained by Gail Baker for the Deschutes sportsmen and Vern Shultz for the Izaak Walton chapter. Hunters are to meet at the West Side Tavern at 8 a. m. to be assigned to teams and be briefed on rules of the contest.

Date for the cottontail feed, when the losers of tomorrow's hunt will be host to the winners, is yet to be announced.

un-American activities committee, which was trying to expose communists in the state department. If only he has learned a lesson and would now clean house in the state department, it would be easier to forget his past mistakes in that regard.

Called "Red Herring"
 From the time the Hiss story broke in August, 1948, a presidential campaign year, until after discovery of evidence which ultimately led to his conviction, Mr. Truman pooh-poohed the spy story. He called it a red herring used by the republicans for political purposes. He said the house investigators were headline hunters.

Now republicans charge him with deliberately withholding espionage facts for his own political purposes in the year he won election as president. Rep. Richard M. Nixon, R. Calif., put in the house record this week a memorandum, evidently from the FBI, which he said should have alerted Mr. Truman in late 1945 to a dangerous situation. The memo linked newly discovered communist espionage in Canada with the United States and with the state department.

A regular cops and robbers spy situation had been revealed in Canada and publicly reported men. Some of its participants were sent to prison. It was widely believed here at that time that Canada had suppressed the report of the United States government that espionage extended into the federal government here.

For the record the Canadian royal commission report about the situation there had this to say about conditions here:
 "The evidence we have shows that (the communist) organization was particularly anxious to obtain special technical information regarding devices which would be used in the postwar defense of Canada, the United Kingdom and the United States."
