He also recommended reading John Flynn's "The Road Ahead."

University Professor Says Pinballers in Need of Cure

By Eldon Barrett (United Press Staff Correspondent) Seattle (AP)—Two university professors agree that pinball playing can become habit forming, just like drinking liquor or biting fingernails.

Dr. C. R. Strother, professor of clinical psychology at the University of Washington, said "Just as with alcohol" some people can indulge occasionally and casually in pinball playing without becoming addicted, "but other persons develop what amounts to addiction."

"In many cases, compulsion to play pinball machines and to gamble is as much of a disease as alcoholism," the University of Washington teacher explained.

Some Need Treatment

Dr. Strother doesn't advocate a "pinball anonymous" organization for players who can't resist poking nickels in pinball devices, but he says many such cases need treatment.

"Psychological analysis of emotional needs and conflicts that may make them susceptible is necessary," he said. He added that some form of psychotherapeutic treatment also is needed that will solve mental problems, or "satisfy their needs in a more constructive social fashion."

Dr. Strother doesn't believe that outlawing pinball machines is the solution.

"The solution is to make them (the pinball addicts) aware that over-indulgence is a system of maladjustment; then, make available facilities for treatment."

Would Ban Machines

Dr. Hubert S. Ripley, head of the university's psychiatry department, agreed that pinball playing can become an addiction. But he differed sharply with Professor Strother on whether the devices should be banned.

"At times having easy access may tend to intensify a drive that exists," Dr. Ripley said. "We
