INCIDENT UNCANNY
Atlanta, April 21 (AP)—It was downright uncanny, Miss Lillian Henderson said today, that the confederate flag should fall at that particular moment. The "stars and bars" had been hanging for years outside the window of the department of federal pensions in the state capitol here. Yesterday, Miss Henderson, the department director, was listening to a radio program presented by the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

At the very moment the announcer said "... and General Alfred Holt Colquitt of the Confederate states died in Washington," the Confederate flagpole broke and dropped to the ground.

Vital Cancer Clue Reported

San Francisco, April 21 (AP)—Two University of California scientists came up today with what appears to be a vital clue in the attack on cancer.

It is the discovery of a deadly poison in cancer tissue that seemingly causes its victims to starve to death. The poison is called proteose.

The research on proteose was carried out at the California medical school by Dr. Kenneth G. Scott, assistant professor of experimental radiology and Dr. Robert S. Stone, professor of radiology.

Scott found last year that the thyroid metabolism of animals with cancer is upset. He learned a large tumor prevents the accumulation in the thyroid gland of tyrosine, an amino acid essential for the gland to produce the hormone, thyroxin.

Tests Made
Scott injected extracts of cancer tissue into animals and found the thyroid metabolism of these normal animals was disturbed just as though they had cancer.

Then Scott and Stone broke down the cancer tissue until they found the particular chemical that caused the thyroid disturbance. It turned out to be proteose.

The scientists think proteose possibly enlarges blood vessels around a tumor, robbing the body of blood it should otherwise have. In other words, proteose prevents the body from absorbing its normal supply of food.

Proteose can be digested by enzymes. The problem now is to find enzymes to reduce the proteose without damaging the body.

NO RECOMMENDATIONS
Washington, April 21 (AP)—Congressman Lowell Stockman of Oregon said today that survey teams have not yet made any recommendations to the air force regarding an air academy.

The Oregon representative said La Grande, Ore., made the strongest bid for the site of the academy in his district, but he added that survey teams still were looking over all prospects before submitting a report.

Lonely Hearts Racket Probed

Hollywood, April 21 (AP)—Investigators dug deeply today into the varied activities of lonely hearts tycoon George H. Ashley, 52, and his romance mill that allegedly swindled clients of $200,000.

Police hoped Ashley would return either for his wife, Christine, or the flashy, $8,000 car parked in his driveway.

The hunt for him extended as far as Reno, Nev., where sheriff's officers searched Ashley's apartment.

Officers said he had set up a mysterious corporation there called George Fayer, Inc., and when in the "biggest little city in the world" referred to himself as "Monsieur Georges."

Wednesday his lawyers hinted Ashley might be willing to give himself up if his bail were reduced from $25,000 to the more "reasonable" figure of $15,000.

Although authorities showed interest in the offer, he did not surrender.

The FBI said it was interested in Ashley because he ran out of a $6,000 fine imposed in a mail fraud case. His other brushes with the law included two prison sentences, the FBI said.
