Mothers Day Program Set For FOE Hall

The fifth annual Mothers' day program, sponsored by the Eagles lodge, will be held Sunday at 2 p. m. at the FOE hall. The public will be welcome to attend, according to those in charge.

Special honors will be accorded to Mrs. Benjamin F. Rhodes, aerle mother, and to Mrs. Kenneth Cale, who has been named by the Eagles as community "mother of the year," for her participation in youth work and other projects. Mrs. Cale has been active in Blue Bird and Camp Fire work, and will serve as president of the Kenwood PTA in the coming year.

The Mothers' day address will be given by E. O. Stadler, of Bend.

A program of recitations and musical numbers will be presented by children who will be guests of lodge members. Parents whose children would like to take part in the program are being asked to get in touch with a member of the committee.

Earl Wear, president of the Bend order of Eagles, will extend the welcome to the visitors.

Scout Smith is chairman in charge of program arrangements, assisted by Virgil Burgie.

Redmond Legion Auxiliary Elects

Redmond, May 13—Mrs. Russell Clemence was elected president of the American Legion auxiliary at a meeting held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Larry Weatherall. Other officers elected at the meeting were Mrs. Wesley McDowell, first vice-president; Mrs. Al Crosswhite, second vice-president; Mrs. Otis Eason, secretary, and Mrs. Carl Degner, treasurer. Installation date has been set tentatively at May 25.

Mrs. Jim Toney made a report on plans for the poppy sale. Mrs. Charles Dudley reported that Jack Johnson had won $3 in the poppy poster contest for making the prize winning poster and Jerry Jordan had won $2 as second prize. Both boys are students at the John Tuck school. Mrs. Otis Eason made a rehabilitation report.

The group will assist in making valances for the Roseburg veterans' home. Mrs. Jess Tethrow, child welfare chairman reported that $5 had been sent to Roseburg and $5 to Portland for child welfare work and that $5 had been donated to the local cancer drive. The hostess and her cohostesses, Mrs. Ed Shalhorn, preceded the business meeting.

On Thursday afternoon Mrs. Ray Rogers, Girls' State chairman, interviewed Joyce Van Metre and Alberta Sage, who are being sent by the auxiliary to the 8th annual Girls' State in Salem at Willamette university. Dates for this event are June 12 until June 18. Both Redmond girls are juniors in the local high school.

Mothers' Day Tea Is Well Attended

Children of the kindergarten and primary departments of First Presbyterian church, and their mothers, gathered Friday afternoon for a social affair at the church. Forty-five women and 49 children were present.

TIC Boys Receive Awards

Highlight of the seventeenth annual banquet of the Trades and Industries club and the Future Craftsmen, last night at the Elkhorn lodge, was awarding of two $50 prizes for contests in which TIC boys participated. Clarence Neumann, center, was winner of the essay contest, writing a treatise on "Trade and Industrial Education." In another contest, exhibits prepared by the boys to depict their occupations were judged. Prize money was divided between Eldon Neal, left, who made a model of the Fritz Horn service center, where he is employed, and Glenn Bateman, employed at Ries Radio shop. Glenn's entry was a model of the radio shop, with a radio tower, with flashing light on top. A 1,200-volt transformer inside the model building provided power for the arm.

Amateurs Given Chance to Record Own Earthquakes

By James B. Scott
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
St. Louis (UP)—William F. Sprengnether Jr. hopes to create a new corps of hobbyists in the near future—amateur seismologists.

With his father, the 40-year-old physicist operates the Sprengnether Instrument Co. here. The firm, founded by Sprengnether Sr. 40 years ago, claims to be the only one in the world specializing in the development and production of seismographic equipment.

Young Sprengnether has applied for a patent on a device which he believes will develop a lot of interest among hobby-minded Americans.

His invention is a home-model seismograph, a low-priced, simplified version of a regular quake-recorder.

Sprengnether hopes to have the instrument on the market "within the next six or eight months." He reported the gadget will cost "in the neighborhood of $75" and that it can be operated easily by any person of average intelligence, high school age or over.

Gold Wire Included
The physicist said the 40-pound instrument will come complete in every detail, down to a 14-karat gold wire from which the pendulum that touches off the wire-recording mechanism will swing.

Thrown in as an added attraction will be a set of graphs and scales for determining the distance of an earth tremor without having to perform any complicated mathematical calculations.

To whet the hobbyist's curiosity and test his mechanical ingenuity, the mid-sized seismographs will be sold partly unassembled.

Sprengnether noted that part of the fun in dealing with the gadget will be putting it together. A hobbyist will "pick up principles of optics and physics he never knew," Sprengnether said.

Has Wide Range
The physicist said his instrument will be able to record anything from a minor, localized dynamite explosion to a major earthquake thousands of miles away.

Looking into the future, he envisions the day when amateur seismologists will be able to furnish seismological and meteorological stations with pertinent information that the too-far-and-between posts are unable to gather currently.

As one example, Sprengnether cited the use of the home-model seismographs along the coast lines, where they could be used to trace hurricanes and thus warn ships of impending danger zones. Shortly, he plans to go to Washington, where he will try to interest members of the Seismological Society of America in helping organize an amateur society for the "seismologists."
