Special Session Now Expected To Delay Action

By Lyle C. Wilson
 (United Press Staff Correspondent)
 Washington, Nov. 20 (AP) - Administration enthusiasm for the special session of congress convening a week from today died with the general election returns.
 "This one already is tagged a 'do-nothing' session. Sen. Robert A. Taft, R., O., uttered the opposition verdict on it when he was asked what he expects the special session to do.
 "Adjourn," Taft replied.
 Mr. Truman's fair employment practices bill will be the star casualty of the 81st congress which will expire when the special session ends. The new 82nd, with considerable republican reinforcement, will convene Jan. 3. Republicans will prevent any significant action until the reinforcements arrive.
 FEPC was passed by the house. It was vetoed in the senate by a filibuster and died when its friends were unable to vote a closure motion which would have stopped debate.
 Not Held Over
 Favorable house action on FEPC will not hold over to the new congress. All pending legislation dies when the congress considering it comes to an end.
 Other house-approved bills now in the senate calendar which will die along with FEPC are those to admit Hawaii and Alaska as states and to rescind the orders of the postmaster general to curtail city mail deliveries as an economy measure.
 Another casualty will be the bill to repeal and reduce some wartime manufacturers' excise taxes. This bill was speeding through congress when the Korean war started. It was not long thereafter that all hope of tax reductions vanished and congress turned to tax increases. The excise tax reduction had passed both houses and was due for last-minute review before final enactment, when events caught up with it.
 It will be a long time before another tax reduction bill gets much congressional attention.
 Little Action Expected
 Authority for a federal program for health services to school children passed the senate and awaits house action. There seems little chance of action in the special session.
 In the same fix is a senate-approved project for construction grants to medical colleges and for scholarships.
 The senate also voted home rule for the District of Columbia, but the house never got around to it.
 One of the most controversial bills which almost made it but missed was to overrule the supreme court opinion which held that oil bearing tidelands belonged to the federal government instead of to the states whose seashores they composed. That one passed the senate and had been marked for early house consideration.
 Mr. Truman opposed that one. But he wanted many of the bills which now must die. Until the returns came in he had been of a mind to call congress back to meet today. But the returns convinced him that he could not expect anything from this special session even if it were extended a week.

Five Lose Lives In Accidents

(By United Press)

Five persons died as the result of highway accidents in northwest Oregon during the week end.

Portland recorded its 41st and 42nd fatalities when Harry K. Moore, 41, Portland, and Henry A. Smith, 34, also of Portland, died of injuries Sunday.

Moore was crushed under his car when it overturned after leaving the highway on Columbia boulevard. Smith died Sunday from injuries received in a two-car crash Friday night.

Mrs. Bessie Applegren, 77, Milwaukie, was killed when she walked into the side of a speeding car near Gladstone.

A two-car smashup near Scappoose claimed the life of Ida Williamson, 54, St. Helens. She was riding with her husband, Robert R. Williamson, superintendent of the Pope & Talbot plant at St. Helens.

An 83-year-old Tacoma, Wash., woman, Mrs. Dora Whaley, was killed Saturday when a car in which she was riding overturned on highway 99-east south of Albany.

'BANUNKEY' RIDES NORTH

Hot Springs, Ark. (AP) - A hitchhiking animal which apparently rode all the way from South America in a bunch of bananas has Hot Springs' amateur zoologists consumed with curiosity.

The little animal, about the size of a small rat, jumped out of the bunch of bananas in a downtown store. The store manager, Elwood Smith, issued the following description:
 Size, about that of a small rat; tail, about three times as long as its body; nose, sharp; ears, larger than a rat's and paper-thin; legs, slender; eyes, large, black and goggling. The tail is prehensile, but when not in use is kept rolled into a small ball.
 The animal has been named "Banunkey" because of its resemblance to a monkey.
