

New York Pays Bulk of Taxes, Shown in Survey

Washington, July 21 (AP)—New York, the nation's most popular state, paid nearly one fifth of all taxes collected by the federal government during fiscal 1951, the bureau of internal revenue reported today.

Nevada, the least populated state, stood at the bottom of the list. It paid only about .0001 percent of all federal tax collections.

The figures were revealed in a detailed breakdown of where the government got the $50,000,000,000 in taxes during the year ending June 30. More than half of it—$26,000,000,000—was paid by individuals in the form of income taxes.

Corporations paid $14,000,000,000, and the remainder came from miscellaneous forms of federal revenue, such as excise taxes.

Collections Set Record

Collections in each of the groups were the largest on record. In the preceding fiscal year, tax revenue totaled $38,000,000,000.

Personal income tax collections in fiscal 1950 were $19,500,000,000 and corporation taxes totaled $10,500,000,000.

Here is a partial breakdown of personal income, corporate income and total federal tax collections by states during the last fiscal year:

Sale of Federal Jobs Is Charged

Jackson, Miss., July 21 (AP)—A federal grand jury here slapped "job-selling" indictments on 12 pro-Truman Democrats in Mississippi, including the leaders who took over patronage during the 1948 state's rights revolt, the jury report showed today.

Most of those named in the alleged conspiracy to make cash a requirement for a federal appointment also figured in the earlier senate sub-committee investigation which set the stage for the grand jury inquiry.

They included Frank Mize, chairman of the state democratic executive committee, and former national committeeman Clarence E. Hood, Mize's brother, Federal Judge Sidney Mize, normally would have presided over the grand jury investigation, but excused himself and judge Allen Cox assumed the duties.

147 Witnesses Heard

The special 22-man jury convened here July 9 and adjourned Wednesday after hearing 147 witnesses. Its findings were made public late yesterday. The indicted dozen will be arraigned Sept. 5, U. S. attorney Joseph Brown said.

In addition to the conspiracy charges, the 22-page, 34-count indictment cited five of the group for perjury in connection with their testimony at senate hearings in Jackson and Washington under sub-committee chairman Clyde R. Hoey, D., N. C.

Sen. Karl Mundt, R., S. D., a member, said the group had uncovered "vicious rackets."

Indicted for conspiring in the actual sale of postmasterhips and rural letter carrier jobs were Forrest B. Jackson, Jackson attorney who served as legal counsel for the state committee; former committee treasurer Curtis Beasley, Pelahatchie; committee secretary Curtis Rogers, Sylva; Roy Brashier, Brookhaven, and Miss Laverne Yelverton, and James H. Wilkinson, Jackson.

Conspiracy Charged

The other six were charged with conspiracy to violate the U. S. code against accepting contributions in return for federal jobs.

Mississippi's democratic senators, John Stennis and James O. Eastland, made the job-selling charges which brought the investigating committee here.

A series of committee witnesses told of "contributing" anywhere from $300 to $1,000 to the state party in return for post office jobs and for office of price stabilization positions which never existed.

The pro-Truman group headed by Hood and Mize won patronage rights in Mississippi after the regular state democratic committee refused to support the Truman-Barkley ticket and threw in with the "Dixiecrats" backing former Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina for president and Gov. Fielding Wright of Mississippi for vice president.

Power Admitted

Musial conceded that the American league had some stand-out power hitters during the past 15 years.

"I'm talking about fellows like Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Al Simmons and Jimmy Fox," he explained. "But the National had some great hitters, too."

It was Musial's guess that a fellow like Ted Williams probably would do as well, no better or no worse, in the National as in the American.

"A good ball player will do well anywhere he plays," he went on, "whether it's the National, the American or the kilted league."

Musial was interested in learning who starts all the talk about the American league being superior to the National.

"Well," volunteered an informant, "American league players always joke about how they can go over to the National when they're near the end of their playing string."

Musial tilted his head back and laughed.

"Those fellows would do well to remember," he said, "that we send a lot of players over to the American league, too."

Portland Man Held for Assault

Portland, July 21 (AP)—John K. Stephens, 30, is being held here today under $15,000 bail on charges of assault with intent to rob and assault with intent to kill.

Portland detectives, who arrested Stephens yesterday, said he was linked to the strange shootings of two elderly hotel clerks.

Detectives said he admitted an attempt to rob a downtown drug store Wednesday night. They also said he "recalled" being in the Grove hotel on 421 West Burnside street at the time a 69-year-old night clerk, Charles C. Vetter, was shot and critically wounded.

Oliver Pohl, 59, the other hotel clerk, identified Stephens as the gunman who shot him in the Dike hotel (on 409 Southwest 12th ave.) early last Sunday. Pohl was not injured in the gun play. The bullet hit his middle and bounced harmlessly to the floor.

STARTED BY FIREMEN

Ocean City, N. J., July 21 (AP)—The city was sued for $36,000 damages today on grounds that a warehouse was destroyed by a fire that city firemen started.

The suit said the firemen started a grass blaze, which swept out of control over a half-mile area of swampland and set fire to the warehouse.

Deil Sample of Castle Rock, Wash., is visiting his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Harold and family. He came here Monday and will go on a week's camping trip with the Harolds within a few days. The Harolds are planning to spend their annual vacation in the Taylor burn vicinity. Harold is chief of police here.

Mrs. Margaret Hilliard and Little Lois Ann Harold were soloists at the entertainment highlighting the miscellaneous high school shower complimenting Mrs. Jim Case Tuesday night at the Grange hall. Mrs. Myron Blackwell played a violin solo. Participating in the mock wedding pantomime were Mrs. Lloyd Harold, substitute bride, and Mrs. Laura Brockett, groom. The shower was sponsored by the HEC club.

Lillian Hamilton, Lucille Ward, Ann McKay, Louise Harold, Sherry Downs, Lois Ann Bussett, Vera Lou Case, Marie Covey, and Delpha Charlesworth were group leaders at the annual girl's day camp this week at the Deschutes county fairgrounds. The girls worked under the leadership of Mrs. Lloyd Harold. They cooperated in presenting to a large audience the following skits: Gold-flocks, Little Red Riding Hood, Wizard of Oz, Alice in Wonderland, Snow White and Cinderella. There were 56 girls camped out Wednesday night, according to Mrs. Harold who with the help of the leaders prepared the breakfast Thursday morning.

"Beyond the Universe" a poem written by Alta Dixon, a member of the advanced class in Creative writing at Redmond Union High School, has been selected as one of the outstanding poems of the year. Permission has been asked by the board of judges to publish the poem in the National High School Poetry anthology. The poem first appeared in "Young America Signs" an Anthology of Northwest States, and again in the Creative Writing Yearbook "And the Bud Blossoms" Miss Dixon was also a talented young artist, who made the full page illustration in the year book, and who designed the cover. She received her training under Mrs. Tom Lee.

Camera Club Sets Trip to McKenzie

Cascade camera club members on a field trip arranged for tomorrow will drive into the McKenzie pass country. Phil W. Coyner, president of the group, has announced. The group will meet in front of the Deschutes county courthouse at 7:30 a.m. Members were reminded by Coyner that they should take their individual lunches.

All persons interested in photography are being invited to join in the field trip, one of a series arranged by the club.

Doctor's Error Causes Woman's Death, Charged

Denver, July 21 (AP)—A 23-year-old mother died after giving birth to her third child because the attending doctor accidentally injected the wrong drug into her spinal column, authorities said today.

Mrs. Ursula Martinez, wife of a Denver meat packing plant worker, died June 15 in Denver general hospital three hours after her six-pound, four-ounce daughter was born.

A coroner's inquest yesterday ruled that death came "from a severe swelling of the brain and spinal cord. We further find that the severe swelling was a result of an accidental injection of salyrgan into the spinal cord of Mrs. Martinez."

Dr. James P. Dixon, director of the hospital, said "it is an unfortunate tragedy which could have happened in any hospital and it is an undesirable reflection on Denver general hospital."

Cleared of Blame

The coroner's report identified the attending physician as Dr. Bruce M. Porter, a resident physician of the hospital who is doing post-graduate work.

Dr. Dixon said he had cleared the attending physician of blame after it was determined that the drug administration was "in effect an accidental misadministration of medication."

He explained that "by error a wrong drug was administered to Mrs. Martinez for the production of anesthesia during the course of her delivery. The error was dis-

"Salyrgan is packaged in an ampule that is essentially the same size, shape and color as the usual anesthetic, nupercainal, used for such cases. In reconstructing the accident it appears that ampules of both types were in the medication jar where they are kept sterile until used," he said.

"Although markings are different on both ampules, the doctor administering the drug to Mrs. Martinez selected the wrong one."

Hospital officials said there were no indications that the young mother suffered any violent pains or unnatural discomforts before she died and the newborn baby showed no ill effects.

Roundup of Wild Horses Planned

Prineville, July 21 (AP)—Lyle Woods, rancher of the Fife district, will start a wild horse roundup here the coming week to remove around 100 animals from cattle range in the Jerry mountain district on Camp creek some 65 miles to the southeast of here. Abe Hackleman, rancher of the south fork of Crooked river, has charge of the roundup, which is expected to gather in a substantial number of privately owned, branded horses. For these, owners will be required to pay $20 per head to repossess them.

Hugh Thayer, administrator of a north central Oregon district of the U. S. bureau of land management, who has charge of the public domain grazing areas where the wild horses roam, has given a permit for the roundup. Thayer says that the horses consume enough of the range grasses to carry 200 head of cattle.

The range pasture has been lush this spring and early summer and the horses are now fat, observers declare. Most of the animals, to be trapped at waterholes, according to Woods plans, are not suitable for salvage as work or saddle horses. They will probably be purchased by those who furnish a supply of horse-meat to Portland markets specializing in this item. Indeed, Thayer predicts the south Yamhill horse meat markets in Portland soon will be able to offer some very fine bunchgrass colt steaks.

Explosion Work Of Pranksters

Forest Grove, Ore., July 21 (AP)—Pranksters were blamed today for the mysterious explosion which rocked Forest Grove at midnight Thursday, jarring houses and rousing people from their beds.

Newsmen traced the source of the blast to a filbert orchard on the south edge of the city. David Otto, a farmer who lives in the vicinity, led them to a crater five feet in diameter.

Surrounding trees were stripped entirely of their leaves by the explosion. Remains of 30-foot fuse lay on the ground.

Otto said he could not spot anyone in the orchard at the time of the blast. He found the crater yesterday morning. Otto, who said he had experience with dynamite, estimated from 30 to 50 sticks might have been used.
