The three Bend women returned home last night, from the three-day session.

Bend Soldier Serves in Japan

WITH THE 24TH INFANTRY DIV. IN JAPAN — Cpl. Marvin C. Nicholson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Erick C. Nicholson, 619 Georgia St., Bend, is now serving in Japan with the 24th Infantry Division. The division, which was the first American unit to see combat at the outbreak of the Korean war, is now a part of the security force helping to guard the Japanese islands.

Corporal Nicholson received basic training at Sheppard Field, Texas, before arriving in Japan last June. He was employed as a lineman by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co., before entering the Army in January 1951.

Man on Vacation Dies at Elk Lake

Joseph Kenneth Swails, 69, of 4936 SE 73rd Street, Portland, died Sunday morning at Elk Lake, where he was vacationing with his son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Maurice E. Moore, Portland, and their family.

Mr. Swails suffered a heart attack at about 11 a. m., just outside the cabin which the party had engaged the day before. The body was brought to Bend by Niswonger and Winslow, and was sent last night to Portland, where funeral services will be held later this week, at the Mt. Scott Funeral Home.

Mr. Swails was a native of Iowa. In addition to Mrs. Moore, he is survived by another daughter, Mrs. Julia Mahan, Portland; two sons, Beryl C. of Sheridan and Derele H. of Portland, and a step-son, William Hamilton, Vancouver, Wash. There are 12 grandchildren. Also survived is a brother, James, of Portland.

Christmas Tree Suit Under Way

Trial of the damage suit of R. G. Proby against Consolidated Freightways was started today in circuit court before Judge Malcolm W. Wilkinson of The Dalles, who is sitting in place of Circuit Judge R. S. Hamilton.

Proby demands $3,083.50 for the alleged failure of the freight line to deliver Christmas greenery and decorations to Los Angeles on time last December. The complaint sets forth the company agreed to get the material to Los Angeles between Dec. 12 and 19, but failed to do so, and as a result Proby claims his market was lost to him.

The company contends that Proby failed to file a claim for damages within the regular nine months as was provided in the shipping agreement.

Picture Window—Blue Sky Hotel

Antelope Order

Calif., was honored as grand herd sire, and Henry Kleinschmitt, Redding, Calif., was the choice for grand orator.

Harold Gorman, Reno, Nev., is the keeper of the wampus and William Bishop, Portland, was named custodian of the tail used in ritualistic work. John Housnell, Hood River, was the choice for keeper of the waterhole, and Marion Walker, Red Bluff, Calif., was named keeper of the prongs. C. B. Johnson, Tillamook, is the new grand sager jumper and Fred Flock, Eugene, holds the title of desert navigator.

Only mishap This year's outing program largely followed that of former years. There were trips out into the antelope country in the desert east of Hart mountain, where pronghorns were seen silhouetted against the skyline or racing across old lake beds. Other trips took the Antelopemen into the high country west of the camp, where huge, sleek deer were seen in valleys covered with lush forage. Jeep trips took other members to high points, from which parts of four states could be seen. A hardy few found their way to the breezy summit of Hart mountain, from which the expansive Warner valley could be viewed from the fault-block mountain ramparts.

Several of the Antelopemen came by plane this year. These included Phil Dahl, Redmond, and Harold Barclay, Sisters, who piloted their own planes over the tilted mountains to landings on a field near Plush.

Bend sent a delegation of 11 to the convention this year. They were A. L. O. Schueler, who was in charge of the Bend waterhole before migrating south; J. L. Van Wormer, B. A. Stover, Dr. Grant Skinner, Lloyd Magill, Alvin Gray, Robert Foley, Charles Boardman, Ayla Goodrich, Don Thompson and Phil F. Brogan.

Action taken at convention business sessions included a proposal by Francis Lambert, Portland, a former chief white tail of the order, that an effort be made to introduce into the refuge some mountain sheep, probably a herd of 25 or 30 animals. He suggested introduction of a desert type of sheep, and recalled that an earlier effort to start mountain sheep in the Hart highlands failed. Lambert said he believed that the desert type of animals would survive.

One of the highlights of the session was the barbecuing of a steer, with Gib Fleet in charge. The meat was prepared in a huge pre-heated pit.

4-H Camp Opens At Suttle Lake

Registration of 85 4-H club boys and girls, from Deschutes, Crook, Jefferson and Wasco counties, had been completed at the Suttle lake summer camp up to 7 o'clock yesterday evening. Although Sunday was the official opening day of the camp, it is expected that registration this morning will boost the total to between 150 and 200. Groups of 4-H club members from Sherman and Klamath counties also are expected today.

A full program of events, including forest practices, wild life, water safety and other topics, is planned for this week. Tents have been set up at the lake to house the visitors, but many of the young 4-H clubbers last night preferred to put their sleeping bags "under the stars."

In addition to Douglas Messinger, Deschutes county; Jay Binder, Jefferson county, and Carl Schmaedke, Crook county, 4-H club agents for these areas, Miss Virginia Weiser, home demonstration agent for Deschutes county and Lois Christianson, who holds the same position in Crook county, were in attendance.

Numerous parents of the 4-H clubbers also are at the summer camp, and some are acting as life guards and as advisers.

About 100 4-H club members are expected to attend the camp from Deschutes county. The Wasco county delegation of 25, larger than had been anticipated, arrived Sunday.
