

College to Offer 3 New Studies

Central Oregon college has announced three new courses for the coming spring quarter. They are additional to the regular courses, most of which are continuations of winter quarter classes.

Ornithology, Z 371, three hours credit, will be taught by Dr. Aryan Roest. At least six persons must register to insure the course's being offered. The class will be limited to twelve. Lectures will involve study of bird structure, behavior, distribution, economic importance, and conservation. Emphasis will be upon local species, with field trips on Sunday afternoons as often as practicable.

Pottery, A 219, two hours credit, offered by Mrs. Barbara Steinhäuser, is intended for persons with little or no previous experience in ceramics and will cover the basic materials and methods of the art. Emphasis will be upon simple structures with an eye to combining the useful with the decorative.

Applied Accounting, BA 011, three hours credit, offered by Leo Goetz, is designed to teach practical bookkeeping methods to those interested less in accounting theory and more in handling the accounts of small mercantile or personal service enterprises.

Any of these courses may be taken with or without college credit, as may most courses at the college. Registration for the spring quarter begins March 28.

Airport News

By LEE FOSTER

Harold Corbett landed at the airport last week while en route from Seattle to North Bend. After refueling he took off again and the Civil Air Patrol resumed its meeting which was interrupted to watch him land.

R. A. McDonald and party, flying from Portland in a Piper Tri-Pacer, came in to refuel and found they had only one gallon of fuel left.

George Wakefield flew over from Sisters in an Ercoupe to refuel and visit a while before returning to Sisters.

John Jacobs, formerly a U. S. Navy pilot, has been giving some GI students instruction in flying, using an Aeronca Champion and the J-3 of the Gibson Air Service. They are students of Dick Ballantine manager of the Prineville airport.

The Bend squadron Civil Air Patrol has been having trouble with the Link trainer blowing fuses when some of the other airport equipment was in operation. A separate line has now been run for the Link and it should give no more trouble.

Plans are going ahead for the model plane contest and exhibition flying to be held at the Airport Sunday and an enjoyable time is expected.

The Bend airport is badly in need of more hangar space. With 11 ships on the field and hangar space for only six it means that five must be tied down outside. Owners hesitate to base their planes where they must be stored outside because it increases the upkeep costs.

The accumulation of weeds and other debris which has been collecting through the winter months is being cleaned up in preparation for the spring and summer flying season.

Older Workers Found Efficient

CHICAGO — (UP) — The Civil Service Assembly says a new study shows that older workers are as efficient or better than employees under 60.

The assembly cited a study made and evaluated by the University of Illinois, which rated a sampling of workers on overall performance, absenteeism, dependability, work quality, output, and ability to get along with others.

The university contacted supervisors in 20 companies who told what they thought of the competence of 1,025 workers in their 60's and 70's.

In over-all performance, supervisors rated 16 per cent of the older workers as excellent, 32 per cent very good, 36 per cent good, 15 per cent fair and 1 per cent poor.

The supervisors reported that 70 per cent were absent less often than younger workers, 23 per cent about the same and 7 per cent more often.

On dependability, 50 per cent were judged more dependable than younger employees, and 6 per cent less dependable.

Comparative percentages for work quality were 36 per cent better, 57 per cent about the same and 7 per cent poorer.

More than 75 per cent of the older workers had production records equal to or higher than those of younger workers.

Thirty-three per cent got along with others better than younger workers do, the study showed.
