State Historical Groups to Meet

Chester G. Springer, president of the Deschutes Pioneers' association, will attend sessions of the Oregon Historical Society and affiliated societies Friday and Saturday at the Library Hall, SW 10th and Taylor streets in Portland.

Springer said that he is especially interested in the scheduled talks by Mrs. Ella Blanchard of the Hood River Historical Society and Alex Walker, curator of the Tillamook County Museum of Natural Life. Mrs. Blanchard will speak on "Quarters for Local Museums," and Walker will discuss problems in setting up museums.

The Deschutes county group has been working toward establishing a museum, and Springer hopes to get some helpful advice at the Portland meeting, he explained. He urged other members of the Deschutes group to attend if possible. The talks in question will be on the Saturday morning program, from 9:30 to 12 noon.

Springer will leave early Friday morning by bus.

Lawmakers Get Protest Letters

Letters from Oregon's two senators and the representative from Central Oregon have been received acknowledging Bend's protest to drop the Bend-Redmond stop, City Attorney Harry A. English informed the city commission at its meeting last night.

He said each of the legislators—Senators Wayne Morse and Richard Neuberger and Representative Sam Coon—has indicated he has contacted the Civil Aeronautics Board on the matter.

The board is considering United's petition to withdraw service from several Northwest points. Also before the board is an application from West Coast airlines to service the points marked for abandonment by United.

Commissioners decided to continue its present application for intervention against United's withdrawal.

CHARGES DROPPED
Special to The Bulletin
REDMOND—Charges made last week against Alfred J. Taylor, Redmond, of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, were dropped at a re-opening of the preliminary trial in justice court later in the week. Testimony of witnesses and further evidence brought before Justice Donald Ellis resulted in his decision that there was no showing of probable cause to hold the defendant.

Horse was Just Passing Through

The Bend police blotter contains this laconic item this morning: "It seems a stray horse was seen in the intersection of E. 10th and Lafayette. A nearby householder called police to investigate.

The officer dispatched typed out this report on his return to the station: "Horse was gone on arrival. Contacted complainant and he stated that the horse was just passing through."
