Ideas Pay Off For Huron Wise

Special to The Bulletin
MADRAS—Huron D. Wise, North Unit Irrigation district shop foreman, has found that the old adage "Ideas are worth cash," is true in his case.

This week Wise received a check for $105 from the Bureau of Reclamation under its employe incentive plan, for two ideas which he developed and which have been put into practice on this project.

One idea involved the development of a special weed pool weed sprayer while the other was an improvement in operating controls of a Quickway shovel.

Wise is now employed by the project, but from January 1952, had been on the payroll of the Bureau of Reclamation. Although operation and maintenance of the project has since been transferred to the project, he worked for the Bureau at the time both ideas were developed.

The pool weed sprayer employs 200 feet of hose, and is set so that the operator may walk from his vehicle, carrying the nozzle. The hose, fitted with an automatic reel wind, may be returned to the truck with little trouble, after use.

The equipment is portable, fast, and foolproof, NUD Manager Carlos Randolph explained. "It was evident that use of the sprayer would result in considerable savings in time required to spray isolated areas, and make it possible to cover a larger area and more weed pools during the weed growing season," H. T. Nelson, regional director, said in a congratulatory letter to Wise.

The shovel improvement substituted a linkage system for manual pressure in the dragline control. Where formerly the operator manipulated three levers, he now sets the levers and has a hand to spare.

"Actual experience in using the new controls has indicated that it is possible to move up to one-third more material in a day since your attachment to the operating controls was installed," Nelson commented.

Wise plans to use the money to add another rifle to his already considerable collection. The foreman has had a lot of experience with inventions, and in 1921 invented the first star-drag for fishing reels.

Churchill Gives Hong Kong View

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill told Parliament Thursday the British government "are resolved to maintain their position in Hong Kong."

Churchill said the late President Roosevelt understated the situation when he told Josef Stalin at Yalta that Churchill would object to returning Hong Kong to China.

"The passage in the recently published American record of the Yalta talk refers to a meeting between President Roosevelt and Marshal Stalin on Feb. 8, 1945, at which I was not present," Churchill said.

"According to the record, President Roosevelt said he knew I would have strong objections to this suggestion."

"That was certainly correct and even an understatement," Churchill grinned as he said that and the House of Commons roared with laughter.

He was replying at the time to a question on the government's plan for the future of Hong Kong should Communist China exert pressure to push the British from the crown colony.
