Reunion Held By Brothers

Three brothers are joining here this week in their first reunion in some 35 years.

They are George M. Arnold, Chicago, Ill., engineer; Robert Arnold, of Los Angeles, Calif., and J. F. Arnold, long-time resident of Bend.

However, the Bend country is not new to Robert Arnold. He served as topographer with a railroad crew when the Hill and Harman systems built their dual lines up the Deschutes gorge more than 45 years ago, then came into Bend from Metolius over a single line.

The Bend man and his wife met the visiting brothers yesterday at the Redmond airport and brought them to Bend.

Bishop to Speak At OSC Session

Bishop Lane W. Barton, head of the Missionary District of Eastern Oregon, with headquarters at Bend, will be one of the leading speakers at the annual Oregon Town and Country church conference to be held at Oregon State college, Oct. 24-27.

The theme of this year's conference follows the title of the bishop's talk. It will deal with many aspects of work for the rural and town church. Speakers from as far away as Harvard University and Berkeley, Calif., will make presentations of programs of interest to churches working with rural people. A new approach to church elevation offered by the conference is to have people with different relationships to rural life tell what they think of the town and country church.

The conference has been designed over the years to afford a sounding board for the opinions of the laity and clergy alike. The past years have seen a growing number of lay people not only attend, but to participate fully in the planning and the execution of the program.

All major religious demonstrations in the state, as well as farm agencies, will be represented at the meetings. The conference offers one of the few opportunities for people of all faiths to work and plan together. Registrations may be made with Mrs. Mabel Mack at Oregon State college or may be made at the Memorial Union at any time during the sessions.

Plans Favored By Examiner

WASHINGTON (UP)—A Federal Power Commission examiner today recommended issuance of a 50-year license to the city of Eugene, Ore., for construction and operation of its proposed Beaver Marsh hydroelectric project on the McKenzie river in Lane and Linn counties, Ore.

The final decision is up to the full commission. The project is estimated to cost $8,538,000 and would have an installed capacity of 30,000 kilowatts.

The examiner, Francis L. H. 111, dismissed a request advanced by the Save-The-McKenzie-River Association. The association opposed granting the application on grounds the project would mar scenic and recreational values and fish life in the area.

The Oregon State Game Commission originally opposed the license, but withdrew its objections after reaching an agreement with the city of Eugene for the protection of fish life and preservation of the scenic areas.
