Maybe Wrong But No Doubts

A. B. (Happy) Chandler, no relation, Governor of Kentucky, was never known for mild statements.

Back in 1937 he said, "There will be a new President in this country some day, and I have as good a chance as anybody."

That was when he was alternately currying favor with F.D.R. and slamming many of the President's programs.

In 1944 he thought he had gained enough favor with Mr. Roosevelt to be his choice as a running mate. But Roosevelt chose Truman. Happy has never forgotten that his statement would have proven true had the choice come his way.

Now he is making a second effort, this time directly, to become the nation's President.

Monday he said he thinks he can beat both Adlai Stevenson and Gov. Averell Harriman for the Democratic nomination if Adlai doesn't win on the first ballot. Besides those two, Chandler's the only one with his hat officially in the ring.

He has 30 votes declared for him — those of all 30 delegates from his home state. He lags behind five declared candidates other than Harriman and Stevenson.

It took bullying politics to get those 30. He ordered 20,000 state employees to work and vote for him in local and county Democratic conventions. Otherwise they would lose their jobs.

"Politics you know, gets a little rough, if you can't stand the gaff you'd better get out of the game," he said about the incident.

Chandler was elected Governor of Kentucky for the second time in 1955. He served a previous term in the late thirties. Between the two dates he served in the U. S. Senate and, after failing to get the Vice Presidential nomination, became high commissioner of baseball in 1945. Major league managers fired him in 1951.

The Kentucky politician's slogan is, "I may be wrong but never in doubt."

For French Entertainment

Frenchmen annually consume well over 541,935,000 quarts of wine.

Undoubtedly, a small part of that is paid for out of American pocketbooks.

And a portion of the wine that Americans set up for Frenchmen serves a significant purpose, at least so our diplomats claim.

Money the government sets aside to pay for the wine is called our "booze fund" by certain lawmakers who claim it's an immoral and wasteful use of the people's funds.

Entertainment money for the Paris Embassy amounts to $16,130 a year.

Diplomats say it smooths our relations. They rely on it to the extent that they personally spend much of their own money in addition to government allotments.

Some complain about it. One young man at the U. S. Embassy estimates he spends $1,000 a year being nice to Frenchmen. He is allowed $200 in entertainment funds.

Perhaps he should learn to speak Japanese and get a transfer. There, problems are discussed over an inexpensive cup of tea. Better yet, maybe he could start a move to teach the Frenchmen to drink tea. Of course, that might fail. Mendes-France's milk campaign did.

Got a 'Pebble Pup'?

If you've got a "pebble pup" around the house, don't worry. He'll probably grow into a "rockhound."

This doesn't mean the world is going to the dogs, but rather explains the natural development of rock collectors. The "pups" are the youngsters and the "hounds" are the adult collectors.

There were six million registered "pups" and "hounds" in the United States at the last count, which now challenges photography and stamp collecting as the top hobbies in the nation.

And on Sunday mornings when the Deschutes Geology club is getting ready for a trip it seems that more than the normal proportion of "pups" and "hounds" lives in this area.

I can't say enough for those people, honest to God. The Marine Corps is full of guys like that. That's what makes it a great outfit. — S-Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon, sentenced to nine months at hard labor, a bad conduct discharge, reduction to private and fined $270 for leading six Marine recruits to their deaths in a night swamp march, on fellow Marines who presented him with a check for $275.

We're not leading the league yet. Guess we'll have to play it off. — Mrs. Babe Didrikson Zaharias, champion athlete, who has fought a courageous three-year battle against cancer, to her husband before undergoing a tough three-hour surgical operation Monday night.

I would say that our race must adjust itself psychologically not to an indefinite continuation of a segregated society, but rather to a continuation as long as necessary of that inflexible unflagging inflexibility which, in the end, will make the white man sick and tired of fighting it. — Novelist William Faulkner writing on the racial problem in Ebony magazine as if he were a Negro.

He's my son and I'll always love him and stand by him. He's a great actor and his father's a great actor. They're the greatest. — Gladys Robinson, who won an uncontested divorce and estimated $2 million from actor Edward G. Robinson, on her son, Edward Jr., who pleaded innocent to drunk driving in an adjoining courtroom.

Briefs

Here and There

A drivers license examiner from the Oregon department of motor vehicles will be on duty at the state building in Bend, at 131 1/2 Third street, on August 11 from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

ing Saturday has been postponed until the regular meeting time in September.

On Saturday August 11 the teachers and pupils of the junior department of the Methodist Sunday school are entertaining their parents at a picnic on the Craig-Coyne lawn at 57 Pinecrest at 4 p.m. Each family is asked to bring a picnic lunch for a potluck dinner.

The August meeting of Group One, Christian Women's Fellowship, has been postponed to Tuesday, Aug. 14. The picnic will be held in Shevlin park for members and their families as previously announced.

His Antics Too Much for Molly

SANTA MONICA (UP)—Former movie actress Molly O'Day, 40, was awarded a divorce yesterday from wealthy oil man James McGregor Konstam, 40, on testimony that their marriage was spoiled because of his unpredictable antics.

"One time he smashed a raw egg on my head at a dinner party," Miss O'Day told a superior court. "Then on Thanksgiving Day I was basting a turkey and he gave me a swift kick and my head landed in the oven with the turkey."

FINES ASSESSED

Inadequate hand brakes resulted in a $10 fine for John A. Procter of The Dalles yesterday.

Justices of the Peace Ole Grubb also reported the following fines: T. E. Stanton, Bend, $4.50 for no dog license; Sam Holmes, Bend, $5.50 for no stop light; Kenneth A. Fehrs, $10 bail for no tail light; John F. Sharp, Eugene, $79.50 for overload; Chester Davidson, Eugene, $14.50 for overwidth; and James M. Cook, Beaverton, $70.50 for overload.

The timber west of the Deschutes river and the W. P. Vandeventer and Cort Allen ranches. The fire was started by lightning. Fortunately on this side of the Cascades such fires do little damage, burning mostly in the underbrush and needles.

Mrs. Douglass Dies Wednesday

Dorothy Margery Douglass, 42, a resident of Bend for the past 31 years, died at her home in Bend at 548 Harmon, yesterday afternoon. Death followed an illness of several months.

Aside from her husband, Ned Douglass, she is survived by a son, Larry McCallum, of Portland, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ludvig Lovgren, of Sweden. A sister, Mrs. Eva Arthur, lives in Bend.

Mrs. Douglass was a native of Copeland, Ida. She was a member of the Lutheran church, and was affiliated with the Veterans of Foreign Wars auxiliary.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 10:30 a.m., at the Neavanger & Winslow chapel. Rev. D. L. Penhollow, Redmond, will be in charge.

Damage Action Filed in Court was filed against J. H. Meister by Elaine Mooers in Deschutes county circuit court Monday.

She was struck and injured while using the crosswalk at Wall and Oregon, July 29, 1955. She claimed that Meister was negligent, careless and reckless.

Mrs. Mooers also is seeking $138.55 and $48 special damages.

Fair Clean-up Nearly Finished

Special to The Bulletin
 MADRAS — Cleanup work at the Madras Fairgrounds is almost finished as time nears for the August 17 through 19 Jefferson county fair.

The building previously utilized for livestock is converted into a display building for the county-wide flower show which was previously held at the Madras community hall.

All open class, Future Farmers of America, and 4-H stock will be in an open display barn which is now in shape for its first year's use.

In addition to the flower show, the former stock barn will also house commercial displays, it was added.

Grass is growing on the grounds and should be in shape for the expected heavy foot traffic during fair time.

Water has been channeled, for the first time, to the chutes, and a drinking fountain is ready for use by contestants.

Ketchikan, Alaska, lies 500 miles closer to the Orient than any other part of the continental United States.

Expired License Brings Fine

Gene A. Amundson, 39, of Prineville, was arrested yesterday by city police on the charge of driving a car with a license that expired last April. He paid bail of $5 and $2.50 costs.

Raymond Conrad, 41, of St. Paul, Minn., was arrested on the charge of intoxication yesterday at he sat on a lawn at Davis avenue and Third street. He was held on $40 bond.

Kenneth E. Glantz, of 310 Congress street, was cited for overtime parking.

AD FOR HUSBAND

HOUSTON, Tex. (UP)—Vida Hutto still thinks it pays to advertise. A pretty stenographer, Vida, 22, advertised for a husband and got fired for her trouble. But she said today she isn't at all discouraged. "It's all part of the business," she said. "Besides, my telephone rang all last night with prospects wanting to know more details." Her demands: "He has to be fairly handsome, a Protestant, dependable, like to fish and eat at least $400 a month." The telephone number: Hillcrest 2-3788.

Only about 50 of some 2,500 species of North American wasps are likely to sting.

Ten New Cases Of Polio Noted In Past Week

PORTLAND (UP)—Ten new cases of polio were reported to the Oregon State Board of Health last week, the heaviest seven-day toll since last December.

The reports brought the state's total for the year to 61, compared to 109 for the same period a year ago. Highest previous weekly total was in December, 1955, when there were 11 cases.

Dr. Gordon C. Edwards, acting state health officer, said the reports "definitely confirm" the department's prediction that polio has started its annual increase of mid-summer.

The new cases occurred in Benton, Clackamas, Gilliam, Malheur, Marion, Multnomah and Umatilla counties. Four cases were analytic.

Dr. Edwards urged Oregonians in all age groups to avail themselves of vaccine supplies before the peak of the polio season is reached in September and October.

Detroit means literally "of the straits." The city, founded by Antoine de la Motte Cadillac in 1701, is located on a strait between Lake St. Clair and Lake Erie.
