

Eisenhower Budget Makes FRD, HST Look Like Pikers

By LYLE C. WILSON

 WASHINGTON (UP)—President Franklin D. Roosevelt was what the Broadway crowd would call a fast man with a buck. That means he was a big spender.

FDR's fat peacetime spending programs of $7 or $8 billion and thereabouts in a single year panicked the financial community.

President Harry S. Truman came along after that and set new spending records. And, now, President Eisenhower is spending at a peacetime rate which makes FDR and HST look like pikers.

On the basis of estimates for the current fiscal year, the Eisenhower administration will have a four-year spending total of $267 billion. That is for Mr. Eisenhower's first term. He has begun his second with budget estimates for continued big spending; in fact record peacetime spending.

FDR spent three full terms and spent in each of them, respectively $29 billion, $37 billion and $36 billion. Mr. Roosevelt's $36 billion tops Mr. Eisenhower's first term expenditure, but FDR's spending was largely for World War II. Mr. Roosevelt was in the red every year during his presidency.

HST Also Had Deficits
 Mr. Truman spent $172 billion in the four-year term he inherited on FDR's death in April, 1945. HST was in the red more often than not. World War II spending was being tapered off then, but not much. Mr. Truman won a presidential term in his own right in the 1948 elections and he loosened the purse strings thereupon.

In HST's second term, government cost $23 billion, plus a considerable accumulation of deficit.

spending which must be paid sometime by somebody. If Mr. Eisenhower's spending record is shadowed a bit by FDR's World War II spending, the present administration has a clear spending lead over Mr. Truman.

While he was spending that $267 billion, Mr. Eisenhower was a busy tax collector. Come next June 30, which is the end of the current fiscal year, and Mr. Eisenhower will have collected approximately $263 billion, an enormous sum of money which is not much under the tax take of all three Roosevelt administrations put together. The 12-year Roosevelt take was more than $300 billion.

Mr. Truman collected taxes with a heavier hand. His eight-year take was more than $395 billion. Mr. Eisenhower will run his tax take up to about $526 billion in eight years unless he reduces government costs sufficiently to make tax reductions feasible.

Complaints From Humphrey
 Secretary of Treasury George M. Humphrey is beginning to grumble where he can be overheard that taxes and government costs must be reduced — or else. The or else, Humphrey believes, would be a devastating depression. Mr. Eisenhower has a quick ear for the advice of his secretary of treasury, so maybe tax cuts are coming sometime, but not soon.

The spending figures put Mr. Eisenhower right up there with the New Dealers and Fair Dealers as a spender of other peoples' money. There is, however, a difference. Mr. Eisenhower is no New Dealer on government deficits. He does not like to spend borrowed money and he has put considerable effort into balancing the federal budget. It is balanced now.

Mr. Eisenhower has learned the hard way what others had to learn before him: That cutting government expenses is next to impossible. Few but the old timers around town will recall that Franklin D. Roosevelt made government economy a big issue in his first presidential campaign. He was going to reduce government expenses by 25 per cent, but he never was able to make good on that. He decided, instead, to spend the country out of depression. That did not work, either.

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower selected verse 12 of the 33rd chapter of Psalms as the Biblical passage on which to rest his hand in taking his oath for a second term.

It reads: "Blessed is the nation whose god is the Lord; and the people whom He had chosen from His own inheritance."

Vice President Richard M. Nixon selected the fourth verse of the second chapter of Isaiah, which reads: "And He shall judge among the nations; and shall rebuke many people; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

The President used a Bible given to him by his late mother when he was graduated from the U.S. Military Academy in West Point in 1915.

Nixon used a Bible that belonged originally to his great, great grandparents, William and Martha Milhous. The Bible was a King James Version printed in 1829.

MADRAS — The Madras city council is making plans for a February 7 meeting with officials of Portland General Electric company to discuss the possibility of saving Round Butte springs. The meeting, scheduled for 7:30 in the city hall, will also be attended by Jim Howland, engineer with the Corvallis engineering firm of Cornell, Howland, Hayes and Marryfield, which has been retained by the city of Madras.

The Round Butte springs site will be inundated by the waters backed up by Pelton dam when it is completed. The city of Madras has a water right to the springs.

Studies by the Corvallis engineering firm show that it will cost the city $50,000 more in capital outlay to pump water from the Deschutes river for domestic use than it would take from Round Butte springs and also that, based on an eventual population of 3500 persons, it would cost 8.5 a thousand gallons more to pump the water from the river.
