Harry Truman Should Take Along Text of Adlai Speech

By Lyle C. Wilson

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Harry Truman should have added one more item to his stock of reading matter on that Mediterranean cruise. He should have with him, to read and to relish, the text of a speech delivered last week in Chicago by Adlai E. Stevenson.

In it, Stevenson seemed to be trying to make amends for the slights and indignities which Truman thinks he suffered at Stevenson's hands in the 1952 presidential campaign. That was the year Truman hand-picked Stevenson to be the Democratic presidential nominee, and what happened?

What happened is set down in plain words in the second volume of Truman's memoirs. There are paragraphs of real praise for Stevenson in that book, and for some of his campaign performance. The praise goes flat, however, under pressure of other Truman paragraphs of which these two are a sample:

"But, Stevenson's attitude toward the President (Truman) whom he hoped to succeed was a mystery to me for some time, and I believe Stevenson made several mistakes. Whether this was due to the urgings of his advisers or bad information or perhaps to the contagion other good citizens were suffering as a result of reading the anti-Democratic press, I do not know.

First Mistake

"The first mistake he made was to fire the chairman of the Democratic National Committee (Frank E. McKinney of Indiana whom Truman had put in that job) and to move his campaign headquarters to Springfield, Ill., giving the impression that he was seeking to disassociate himself from the administration in Washington and, perhaps, from me. How Stevenson hoped he could persuade the American voters to maintain the Democratic party in power while seeming to disown powerful elements of it, I do not know."

There was more, adding up to evidence that Truman felt that Stevenson was brushing off the Truman administration as unfit and unclean. Truman also faulted Stevenson for failing to cooperate at the P. M. Minahan home in Bend Sunday evening. They celebrated Mr. Minahan's and Mrs. Stephen's birthdays.

Mrs. Armand Karver, Mrs. Gerald Evanoff, and Mrs. Dewey Wilson visited Mrs. Robert Hagerty at her home Friday evening.

Madras Parking Meters Damaged

Special to The Bulletin

MADRAS — Thirty-three parking meters in the downtown section of Madras were maliciously damaged by a person or persons wielding a blunt instrument some time late Sunday evening.

According to Madras chief of police Erv Willemas the damage, consisting mostly of smashed plastic glass windows in the meters, amounts to between $700 and $1000.

The broken meters were discovered around 8 a.m. Monday morning and were first thought to be a result of Saturday's heavy hail storm. Further investigation revealed that the damage was too extensive to be caused by hail. Dials inside the meters were bent and indicating flags were twisted. Nicks and dents in the metal areas around the plastic glass windows indicate the use of a heavy blunt instrument. No money was removed from the smashed meters.

Chief Willemas has announced that a $50 reward is being offered by the city of Madras to anyone with information leading to the arrest of person or persons responsible for the Sunday night vandalism.

Anyone obtaining such information can contact Chief Willemas at the Madras city police station.

The 33 damaged parking meters constitutes approximately one-third of the total number of parking meters in the city of Madras.

Changes Noted When Person Under Stress

By Delos Smith

NEW YORK (UPI)—Three scientists used the demands of federal tax laws to prove that the emotional stress which exists when people feel "a sense of urgency" and know the heat is on them, not only increases the cholesterol level of their blood but also shortens the time it takes for their blood to coagulate.

Science only lately has come upon clues which indicated a definite mental influence upon blood chemistry. This new work is the definite proof of that.

People whose blood coagulates very quickly are set up partially for blood clots in the coronary arteries—in short, for "heart attacks." It has been a common observation for centuries that extreme stress will keep over a few of the people who feel it. Now it has been shown how such "accidents" happen.

Drs. Meyer Friedman and Ray H. Rosenman and Vernice Carroll of the Harold Bruhn Institute, San Francisco, took 50 accountants and kept them under close chemical observation for five months, beginning in January. That period included two tax deadlines. Twice weekly the men were bled and their blood was subjected to careful analysis. Their diets and the amount they exercised (or didn't exercise) remained the same throughout the five months.

The only factor which varied was the amount of heat which was upon them—the extent of their "sense of urgency." As tax deadlines approached, the "sense of urgency" was scowled down upon them heavily.

Road-Building Ban to Be Lifted

PORTLAND (UPI) The Interior Department said today a notice of intention to remove a ban on road building in a large area of the Warm Springs Indian reservation will be published soon.

The department shortly before World War II ruled the 105,000-acre area in the Mt. Jefferson region should remain in wilderness condition, with roads and trails prohibited.
