Judge Howell to try case against county

A civil suit brought by Jack Robinson, a local contractor, against Deschutes county and Sheriff Forrest C. Sholes, tax collector, is scheduled for April 8 in Deschutes county circuit court. It will be heard by Judge E. H. Howell, Canyon City, who is on general assignment to the 18th judicial district.

Circuit Judge Robert H. Foley has disqualified himself because of his recent association with the law firm representing the plaintiff, and because the co-defendant is a county officer.

Most recent development in the case was when Judge Howell this week denied a motion for dismissal by Deschutes County District Attorney Louis Selken, Richard H. M. Hickok, Robinson's attorney, opposed the motion.

The litigation was started when Robinson's attorney filed suit in circuit court, claiming no responsibility for a personal property judgment and property lien filed against him by the county. His contention is that the tax is owed by a corporation which Robinson heads, not by him as an individual. A judgment lien was filed against Robinson's residence for $1792.84, the amount of the tax not paid. The judgment was partly satisfied when Robinson's bank account was garnished.

Easter Sunday completes the 1959 attendance crusade at the Methodist Church. Statistics show that last year's outstanding attendance record has been exceeded.

The average attendance for the period before Easter, 1958, was 329 each Sunday. This year the average has been more than 350. This increase in attendance necessitated holding two services each Sunday for the month of March. Two services of worship will be continued during April and May.

A youth choir is being organized to serve at the 8:45 a.m. service. The adult choir will continue to sing at the 11 o'clock service.

Disease report issued for area

A case of infectious hepatitis, an inflammation of the liver, was reported to the Tri-County Health Department from Jefferson county for the week ended Wednesday. This was one of 37 cases of communicable diseases in the area reported for the week.

Nineteen of the 33 reporting sources in the area returned forms to the health department in time to be tabulated. Jefferson county, with three reporting sources, responded 100 per cent. Five of Crook county's eight reporting sources were included, and half of the 22 in Deschutes County.

From these incomplete reports, there were 17 known influenza cases in Crook county and five in Deschutes county. Jefferson county had 14 cases of influenza, in addition to the hepatitis. The same number of new influenza cases — 36 — was reported in the tri-county area last week.

Local women to attend 'Little UN'

Bend will be represented in a "Little United Nations" General Assembly April 23 in Eugene, in connection with the state convention of American Association of University Women, local members have disclosed. The international relations group sponsored by Bend-Redmond branch of AAUW has been assigned the role of Colombia, South America. Topic of debate is, "Should Red China be admitted to the United Nations."

"See if you can divorce yourself from U.S. foreign policy and try to feel the situation as one would who lived in Colombia," read the instructions received by Mrs. E. L. White, chairman of the local study group.

In preparation for this, the study group's program this week, arranged by Mrs. White, featured a report on Colombia by Mrs. William Niskanen and background material on UN by Mrs. Don Empey. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. E. A. Moody.

Eickemeyer rites Monday

Special to The Bulletin
PRINEVILLE — Funeral services for Fred C. Eickemeyer, a resident of Past for many years, will be held Monday, March 30, at 2 p.m. at the Prineville Funeral home. Rev. Noble Streeter will conduct the services.

Death came to Mr. Eickemeyer at the age of 79, at Pioneer Memorial hospital. Among survivors are his wife, Grace, and his brother, Herbert.

In the Post country, southeast of Prineville, the three have been known affectionately as "The Eickemeyers", for many years. They lived at their cinnabar mine, on top of Maury mountain, and worked the diggings themselves.

At the mine, the Eickemeyers smelted the ore and extracted the mercury, which was subsequently shipped in heavy flasks. A steep and winding road led to their homes and mine workings, but through the years they had many visitors glad to share their friendliness and hospitality.

Other survivors include a sister, Mrs. F. W. Walthers, Milwaukie, Ore.; a niece, Mrs. R. F. Horrigan, Portland and several other nieces and nephews.

The funeral service will be a closed-casket ceremony, the family announces, but the body will lie in state before the funeral in order that friends may stop at the funeral home. The family has also asked that any memorials be made in the form of gifts either to the Pioneer Memorial Hospital, or to the Community Church.

Court case ends in non-suit

A district court jury of three men and three women was not required to bring in a verdict on a civil case heard Friday before Judge Joe Thalhofer. The judge granted a motion for an involuntary order of non-suit following presentation of evidence by the attorney for the defendant, William B. Shelley, a Redmond real estate broker.

The plaintiffs, Alfred R. Lovell and Grace Lovell, doing business as Lovell Equipment Co., Prineville, sought payment of $105.09 for goods ordered by Don Hollister, who was employed on a ranch that was being sold by Shelley. The deal failed to materialize, and responsibility for the bill was not established.

Drawn for the jury were Raymond Thompson, Marlene Harrison, Ellen M. Clark and Melvin Wilson, all of Bend, and Barbara A. Corwin and Stanley M. Edger-ton, Redmond.
