Last of West's 'bad men' dies

TARZANA, Calif. (UPI) - "Al Jennings - Outlaw."

Had he died in a gun fight in his days as a train robber that might have been his epitaph.
But Al Jennings, head of the feared Jennings gang, is dead at 98, the last survivor of a legendary band of badmen who put the 'wild" in the Wild West of a cen tury ago. Jennings died Tuesday of natural causes in his modest San Fernando Valley cottage. At his side when the end came was the wife of a nephew, Mrs. T. V. Eg-gleston, who had been caring for him since the death of his wife, Maude, a month ago.

It was only through the kindness of President Theodore Roosevelt that the onetime outlaw escaped a prison death. Sentence to life in prison in 1895 for train robbery and assault with intent to kill, Jennings was given a pardon in 1907 by President Roosevelt.

Shortly after his release from Leavenworth Prison be married Maude and practiced law. Later he ran for governor of Oklahoma Thereafter Jennings became an actor, writer and evangelist, moving to Tarzana in 1939.

Jennings spent his last years living on a small government pension and recalling the good old days of the Wild West.
