

Girl, 14, is raped, brutally beaten at Madras

Police given description of assailant

MADRAS — A 14-year-old girl was brutally beaten, raped and threatened with death about 11 o'clock Friday night when on her way home in the south part of Madras following a visit with friends.

The attack occurred two months to the night on which Judi Reeder, 17, was killed in Bend. However, no connection between the two cases was established in the preliminary investigation.

Hysterical, the Madras girl was taken to the Redmond District Hospital.

Officers in their preliminary investigation were able to obtain little information from the girl, aside from a fairly good description of her attacker, apparently a middle-aged man.

Description Given

The attacker was described as about 5 feet 8 or 5 feet 10, with dark hair. He was smooth shaven, and wore a leather jacket with zipper pockets. He was wearing levis, and a belt with a large buckle.

The girl indicated the man carried a light revolver, and apparently had a knife which he threatened to use if necessary.

Investigating officers said the attack occurred in a brushy portion of Vista Addition, which overlooks the Cascades from the higher country just south of town. The girl was walking through the area at the rear of quarters occupied by a realty firm when she was accosted.

Severely Beaten

She was severely beaten over the head, possibly with the revolver, and also suffered other injuries. She bled considerably. Her attacker possibly was scratched about the face and hands.

Dazed and hysterical, the girl made her way from the uncultivated, brushy area at the rear of the realty firm to her grandmother's residence, where she makes her home. Officers and the city ambulance were immediately called.

Officers Alerted

State, county and city officers were alerted. The search for the attacker continued through the night, but no arrests had been made up until noon today.

The girl was to be questioned again today.

Despite the fact that officers do not connect the Madras case with the Bend murder two months ago last night, similarities were noted. Like the Bend girl, the Madras youngster was beaten over the head.

And like the Bend case, the Madras girl was alone. Both attacks occurred in late evening of a Friday night.

Catholic school boycott is urged

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A top Louisiana segregationist Friday night urged fellow Roman Catholics to boycott the more than 150 parochial schools marked for desegregation next fall and to withhold all financial support to the huge archdiocese of New Orleans.

Leander H. Perez Sr., speaking from a podium draped with a Confederate flag, told a rally of the Citizens Council of Greater New Orleans, that white parents should "take their children out of every Catholic school...cut off their water (church contributions)...make them stop serving the cause of communism."

Perez denounced the desegregation order earlier this week by New Orleans Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel as a "black curse on the 75,000 white Catholic children" affected.

Mrs. Motschman's case continued

Mrs. Aloha Motschman, 61, who was committed to the Oregon State Hospital at Pendleton after she was charged with shooting her husband, Harry, on January 25, still is not able to assist in her own defense. Circuit Judge Robert H. Foley ruled Friday afternoon. Her arraignment on a second degree murder charge was continued.

Mrs. Motschman was transferred from the Pendleton hospital to the Salem institution about three weeks ago. She was accompanied here yesterday by Dr. John A. Waterman, psychiatrist for the State Board of Health, and a hospital attendant.

She was returned to the Salem hospital last night.

Chamber helps on reservations for Seattle fair

The Bend Chamber of Commerce office is now in the business of making housing reservations for visitors to the Century 21 Exposition in Seattle, and plans are in the works to expand the facilities.

Manager Marion Cady Friday told Chamber directors of plans to install a direct "hot" wire phone to Expo-Lodging headquarters in Seattle.

This direct line will be open 14 hours a day. Visitors to Bend can use it to make reservations in Seattle at the Chamber office during the summer months. Other such direct phone lines will be placed in Grants Pass, Eugene, Newport and Portland.

Forms at Office

However, Cady asked local residents who plan to attend the fair to make reservations now via mail. Forms can be secured at the Chamber office.

The direct line will work as follows: If a visitor arrives from California in Bend and tells his motel or hotel host that he doesn't have lodging reservations, all he has to do is ask the Chamber here to make such reservations. The visitor will be given a confirmed reservation slip and can drive on to Seattle with the knowledge that his room is being made ready.

Cady said that the line will be kept open 24 hours a day if traffic warrants. A possible agreement with Pacific Trailways, for night operation when the Chamber office is closed, has been discussed with William Niskanen, general manager.

Of Great Help

"We think the direct line will be of great help to our visitors this summer," Cady said.

Peggy Sawyer, Cady's assistant, will visit Seattle in the near future to take a training course in use of the Expo-Lodging phone and reservation kit.

WEATHER

Fair through Sunday; highs 60-65; lows 20-25.

No lodging shortage, gouging at Century 21

"Contrary to what you might have heard, there will be plenty of lodging and little, if any gouging, at the Century 21 Exposition in Seattle," Bend Chamber Directors were told at their weekly meeting Friday.

Speaker was W. W. Marsh, public relations consultant from Portland. Marsh was in Bend in behalf of Century 21.

"Rumors about lack of lodging are totally untrue and could damage the exposition," Marsh said. "There will be an excess of lodging at reasonable prices. All we ask is that people in Oregon get their housing reservations in as early as possible," he said.

Special Committee

Marsh also said that price-gouging will be controlled by a special exposition committee.

He painted a glowing picture of benefits Oregon will receive from tourists en route to the Seattle show.

"We will get two chances at them, once coming and once going home. If we welcome them and give them good service, many of them will return to Oregon for their vacations," Marsh said.

He said that letters received indicate that most people will be taking their entire vacation to spend traveling to the exposition, visiting, and returning home.

"This could mean many hundreds of extra days spent in Oregon," he said. He urged Chamber members to welcome the visitors and encourage them to stay an extra day.

"Oregonians themselves will be missing the chance of a lifetime if they don't visit the exposition," Marsh said. He said that the educational aspects of the science and industry exhibits alone are worth the trip and especially encouraged parents to take their children.

Warning Issued

About 30 per cent of the people visiting the fair will have reservations. The remaining 70 per cent will be traveling to Seattle without reservations. Marsh said that Expo-Lodging, the company setting up lodging, will be able to take care of everyone. But, he warned, a visitor will be guaranteed of desired lodging only through making an early reservation.

In other business, the directors, meeting at West's Coffee Shop, agreed to join the proposed Eastern Oregon Chamber of Commerce; discussed a proposed highway information booth; and accepted an Alpine Industries offer to pay for space for the Chamber in the Lions Club Home Show in May.

Construction of road in Cove recalled

Deep in the gorge of Crooked River, close to the Cove Palisades State Park camping area, there is much activity these spring days.

Under construction is the new highway which will swing up stream on Crooked River in a huge "hairpin" along the high water mark of the big lake that will take shape in the area on the completion of the Round Butte Dam. It is a lake that will flood the present Cove Park camping sites, and the highway that crosses Crooked River near the PP&L power plant, which will also be inundated. The road work revives for a Bend man memories of just 50 years ago.

He is Walter May, who in March, 1912, undertook the construction of the present road through the park bottom, then west across the "saddle" between Crooked and Deschutes Rivers and up the steep western slope of the Deschutes to Grandview.

JFK names Byron White to high court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — All-time football great Byron R. (Whizzer) White's Supreme Court appointment had the blessing of congressional leaders today.

President Kennedy Friday night appointed White, the 44-year-old deputy attorney general, to succeed retiring Justice Charles Evans Whittaker.

Kennedy said he chose White because of his "character, experience and intellectual force."

Key members of Congress agreed with Kennedy. The appointment, which must be confirmed by the Senate, appeared destined for smooth sailing. There was, however, some negative reaction.

It was the high point in a meteoric rise which brought White from hoeing beets and waiting tables to get through college to glory on the gridiron and a Rhodes scholarship.

Believed More Liberal

It was not immediately clear how the appointment would tip the present balance of a liberal-conservative conflict on the court, although White was generally felt to be more liberal than his predecessor.

Whittaker, who has been ailing for some time, officially leaves the bench Sunday on the advice of his doctor.

The appointment, Kennedy's first to the high court, would mean that it would be made up of six Democrats and three Republicans. White would be its youngest member.

In Denver for speaking engagements, White said "I'm very honored."

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of the Judiciary Committee which must confirm the appointment, said there were many areas of disagreement between him and White but he would make "an able Supreme Court Justice."

He said White was "an able lawyer, honest and conscientious. I will support him."

Backed By Bar

White, All-American back at the University of Colorado and later an all-pro player who reached the Football Hall of Fame, also had the warm support of the American Bar Association for the $35,000 a year position.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., said he "could not be any happier" with the appointment.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., said White is "one of those solid people" who makes a decision and stands by it. But Rep. George Meader, R-Mich., said Kennedy had appointed "a totally unqualified political minion." He said the President had "shown his contempt for the Supreme Court, the law, the legal profession and the people of the United States."

White and Kennedy have been friends for 20 years, ever since they met in London while Kennedy's father was U.S. ambassador there.

Continued fair weather expected

Fair weather is to continue over the weekend.

This was the good news from the U.S. Weather Bureau in Portland today as Central Oregon enjoyed its third consecutive day of sunshine.

Not a cloud appeared Friday as the mercury reached 60 degrees. Even higher temperatures are in prospect over the weekend, forecasts indicate.

All mountain roads were in good shape this morning.

Tornado-carrying storms rip across Southland, USA

Doran, Rose ordered to Pendleton Hospital

The "confession" of Donald Ben Doran, 34, that he killed Judi Reeder here on the night of February 2 appeared nearing an end today, with two men expected to be en route to the State Hospital in Pendleton by this evening.

They are Doran and Albert Lee Rose, 34, driver of the car in which Doran was riding when the men were picked up and questioned in connection with the slaying of the Bend girl. Doran "confessed" and Rose was held on a traffic charge. A third man, Leonard C. Estes, 37, was released.

Investigating officers ascertained Rose was in Watertown, S.D., on the day following the death of the Bend girl. Yesterday, District Attorney Louis Selken moved to dismiss the first degree murder charge that had been filed against Doran. District Judge Joe Thalhofer signed the release order.

On the advice of his attorney, Doran requested psychiatric treatment at the State Hospital, and was voluntarily committed.

In the meantime, Rose became irrational and a hearing was held Friday with Dr. John A. Waterman, Oregon State Board of Health psychiatrist and Dr. R. L. Cutter present. The hearing was held in the district court room and Rose was committed.

Rose was described as being highly irrational this past week. At the hearing, Rose refused to answer questions.

Okay given mountain area program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman Friday announced approval of a forest service statement of objectives and policies for management of the high mountain areas of the national forests in Oregon and Washington.

Freeman said the forest service statement was the result of a thorough study of its existing policies.

"I believe it will assure protection of the valuable scenic assets of the high mountain country and provide for development of timber and other resources," Freeman said.

Last June Freeman requested that no resource development be started in the Minam River, Waldo Lake and North Cascades areas pending his review and approval of a management policy.

Freeman said some recreation organizations opposed forest service proposals to make these areas accessible to multiple-use management with emphasis on family recreation such as camping, picnicking, hunting, fishing, and boating. These organizations wanted the areas preserved as wilderness with access limited to horse or foot travel.

Under the policy approved by Freeman, in those parts of the high mountain areas classified for recreational purposes, they are to maintain a thrifty, healthy forest cover that is aesthetically pleasing.

This means that in the high country area there will not be commercial timber cutting in the usual sense. This policy does not apply to the basic timber production areas at lower elevations where recreational values are not predominant.

The forest service statement emphasized the great increase in recreation use. If present trends continue, recreation use may reach 25 million visits in 1975, and 70 million visits by the year 2000.

Florida town of Milton is heavily hit

By United Press International
Tornado funnels hit communities in the Southland today on the southern end of a storm front which stretched from Maine to Louisiana.

Winds which were described as a tornado smashed at the town of Milton in northwest Florida. First reports from the sheriff's office said at least one person was dead and several were injured. Property damage was reported high.

Buildings were knocked down and house trailers were tossed about by the Milton winds. The winds tore through the town on a northeasterly course, hitting both business and residential neighborhoods.

Picks up Car

Byrd Mapoles, manager of radio station WEBY, was driving to work when the winds hit. He said, "I lay down in the seat as the wind picked up the car and turned it around several times. It threw me against a big gas truck."

A nearby building was "completely gone," Mapoles said, and five men were left standing unharmed where the building had been. Mapoles said, "we looked for houses we know are supposed to be there, but they're gone."

Earlier, the weather bureau reported a tornado near Walker, La. The weather bureau issued warnings of possible tornadoes in parts of Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Florida and Georgia. Heavy rains were also in store for Dixie. Early downpours included 3.45 inches of rain in six hours at Meridian, Miss., and 1.33 inches at Huntsville, Ala.

The storm broke out along an advancing cold front which extended from Maine into southeast Louisiana. A band of rain up to 400 miles wide ushered the cold weather into the East.

Behind the storm front, midwest flood fighters slogged through snow and rain as they shored up levees against new crests.

The worst of a weeklong flood onslaught appeared over in Iowa, Nebraska, and Minnesota. But there was no time to relax. New flood crests were pouring down the Big Sioux River aimed at Sioux City, Iowa, and along the Cedar River, aimed at the tri-city area of Cedar Falls, Waterloo and Evansdale, Iowa.

In Minnesota, Olmstead County was declared a flood disaster area and the ice-jorged Minnesota River posed a threat.

Spring snows fell from the eastern Dakotas into Minnesota, in Upper Michigan, and from eastern Wyoming into western Nebraska. Another snow blanket spread from Ohio into Indiana, and Marion, Ohio, measured three inches of snow by early morning.

Foreign foods benefit dinner planned tonight

The Bend High School International Relations League and the Bend chapter of the American Field Service will co-sponsor an international dinner tonight at the high school cafeteria. The menu will feature dishes from many different countries. The dinner will be served from 5 to 8 p.m.

Tickets will be $1.50 for adults, one dollar for students and 75 cents for children under 12. Proceeds will be used to help finance a trip abroad this summer for Judi Skorpen, named as the AFS visitor this year. While foreign exchange students to the United States are sponsored by the AFS, American students abroad must pay their own way.

Liz steps out with Burton

ROME (UPI)—Elizabeth Taylor and British actor Richard Burton defied the gossip and went nightclubbing together in Rome until the early morning hours today.

Miss Taylor, smiling and chic in a leopard-skin coat and leopard skin cloche hat, arrived at Bricktop's Night Club on the Via Veneto, Rome's Broadway, arm-in-arm with Burton. They stayed at the club until almost 3 a.m.

With pick, shovel

The project supervised by May in the gorge just 50 years ago called for the construction of two bridges, each 100 feet long. They were steel structures. One was over the Deschutes, the other over Crooked River.

May also recalls the cost of the entire project of building the first road across the Cove: It was $22,000. This compares with an estimated $356,000 for the work being done by Portland General Electric to replace roads being flooded in the area.
