Clay pledges U.S. to defense of West Berlin

BERLIN (UPI)—Gen. Lucius D. Clay, sent here eight months ago as President Kennedy's representative to implement the "get tough" policy on Berlin, left Tuesday with a pledge that the United States will defend the divided city "at any price."

In a brief farewell speech at West Berlin's Tempelhof Airport, the veteran of Berlin crises said Berlin "is the keystone of freedom in the Free World and if the city of Berlin is lost, freedom of the world will be lost."

"But the freedom of Berlin will not be lost because we have pledged to hold it at any price," he told West Berliners.

Clay, on leaving his post here, assured West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt that if an emergency arises and Brandt sends for him, "I'll be back on the first plane."

Brandt expressed the thanks and affection of the city for the blockade hero who twice lifted their morale and gave them leadership in the face of Communist body blows.

"You are flying home with the thanks, love, trust, and hope of Berliners," Brandt told him.

Clay, who had tears in his eyes, said he would not say goodbye but only "auf Wiedersehen." He plans to return to Berlin for a visit in July.

Clay, who directed the allied airlift that saved the city during the 1948-49 Soviet blockade, was called back to Berlin after the East German Communists sealed off their sector with the antirefugee wall Aug. 13.

Although the wall remains, the United States has won its point that its officials have freedom of access in all parts of Berlin and that Western communications lines to the city by air and land are not to be tampered with by the Communists.

Merger may be at least year away

NEW YORK (UPI)—The giant New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads received stockholder approval Tuesday of their proposed merger into a $5 billion, 22,000-mile combine.

It was expected to be at least a year, however, before one of the biggest corporate mergers in American industry could take place.

Company officials awaited a signal for the start of hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC), which must issue final approval or rejection of the merger proposal.

The two rail systems announced the vote results Tuesday in separate meetings at Albany, N.Y., and Philadelphia.

By Wide Margins
Pennsylvania stockholders favored the merger by 84.07 per cent. Central stockholders were 77 per cent in favor.

In shares, the Pennsylvania vote was 11,175,420 to 161,791 at Philadelphia. Central shareholders at Albany voted 5,023,206 to 31,708.

Under the terms of the merger, each Central stockholder would receive 1.3 shares for each NYC share. Each Pennsylvania stockholder would receive one for one in a road to be known as the Pennsylvania New York Central Transportation Company.

The proposal was approved two weeks ago by company directors and the plan laid before the ICC. The executive council of the Transport Workers Union of America opened a three-day meeting here at the same time the merger was receiving stockholder approval.

It issued a statement saying that the merger "threatens a wholesale slaughter of railroad jobs" and that the union was determined to obtain "absolute job security" for TWU members. The TWU said the Pennsylvania meeting was "completely dominated by a Wall Street clique and money-manipulating management."
