Hot Springs golf king humbled in Open prelim

NEW YORK (UPI)—Al Johnston of Montreal can tell you now why they call golf a "humbling game."

On Sunday the young Canadian pro won the Hot Springs Open and a $2,800 jackpot. On the same course Monday he flunked his preliminary test while trying to qualify for the U.S. Open championship at Oakmont, Pa., June 14-16.

Johnston was the No. 1 casualty among more than 2,000 golfers who swarmed over the fairways in 54 cities Monday in the first of two elimination rounds to determine the starting field for the Open.

A total of 359 passed their first tests and another 84 will qualify today for the second series in 13 cities June 4-5. New York area golfers will shoot for 47 places, 26 will qualify at Chicago, where rains cancelled the second round Monday, 10 will make it at the rain-delayed trial in Indianapolis and there's a playoff for the last remaining spot at Denver.

Counting nine who qualified at Oakland, Calif., on Friday, there will be 432 first-round survivors. Then in the early June sectional trials, they'll be joined by 45 other old pros like Sam Snead, Ben Hogan and Cary Middlecott in a scramble for 131 starting positions at Oakmont. Nineteen others, including Gene Littler, Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Jerry Barber, were exempt from both qualifying tests.

Bob Shields, a hot-shooting pro from Quincy, Ill., led the nation Monday with a sizzling 63-66-129 at Springfield, Ill., for a four-shot margin over Bob Zimmerman, 21-year-old Dayton, Ohio, pro, who had 69-65-133 at Cincinnati. Joe Moore of San Antonio, Tex., and Jim Campbell of Hobbs, N.M., had 133s Moore scoring at Houston and Campbell in the tough section at Hot Springs, Ark., where most of the touring pros — including Johnston — tried to qualify.

Has Two Eagles Johnston missed by two shots with a 147 despite posting eagles on the 18th hole of each round. Marty Furgol, a tournament veteran, had to withdraw because of a back ailment but otherwise most of the name players made the grade.

Safely in at Hot Springs were a total of 28, including Moon Mullins, South Africa's Harold Henning and Bobby Verwey, Australia's Bruce Crampton, Bruce Devlin and Bill Dunk, Butch Baird and George Bayer.

At Indianapolis, where rain washed out most of the second round, Joe Campbell was low among the 30-hole finishers with 69-70-136. Mack Mann led with 136 at Burlington, N.C., where veteran amateur Billy Joe Patton just made it as the last of eight qualifiers. Stan Leonard was among the Seattle qualifiers and Frank Stranahan led at Phoenix.

Labron Harris Sr. and Jr. made it at Oklahoma City and Robert T. Jones III led the Albany section.

Among those who missed were Jug McSpiden at Kansas City, Jimmy McHale at Philadelphia, former major league pitcher Lou Kretlow at Oklahoma City, Rex Baxter and Jerry Steelsmith at Hot Springs, and Skip Alexander at Tampa.

Minus Mantle, Yankees not nearly so tough

Today's Sport Parade By Oscar Fraley UPI Staff Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Yankees are a solid ball club from stem to stern but those clubs from stem to stern today that for all of this they are just another team when they lose the services of Mickey Mantle.

Nobody is pushing the panic button because the Mick will be on the sidelines for approximately a month with a torn grain muscle. They feel they can hold their own until he's back in service.

But without him there's no hope of an anticipated runaway and there's always the uneasiness of what this latest injury will do to his effectiveness.

"We'd have the devil of a time winning the pennant without him," said one. "It would make a real scramble of the race and whether we could win it or not would then depend primarily on our pitching. We couldn't count as heavily on our power."

There are several reasons why you ask for an explanation as to why not.

First Maris Less

The first is that the pitchers don't have the respect for Roger Maris that they do for Mantle. This is not to hint that they don't always pitch carefully to Maris. But when Mantle is coming up right behind him, they can't give Maris anything too good to hit and yet they can't pitch so carefully that they walk him and risk two runs.

"With Mantle out there," asserted one expert, "they don't have to worry too much about walking Maris."

Mantle also means many intangibles to the Yankees. He has, within the last couple of years, come into his own as the real leader of the team. All of the players like him and he sets an inspiring example by competing despite physical handicaps, frequently playing when he is only 75 per cent up to par.

Another factor is that Yogi Berra long swung another blazing bat which menaced rival pitchers. But they have lost much of their fear of the aging Yogi and, when you derrick Mantle, too, they breathe a lot easier.

The contenders have evolved a costly system for beating the Yankees. Coming up to a series with the perennial champions, they usually manipulated their rotation to have their best pitchers available. In the process, by changing their rotation, they simply were dewatering their rotation because in any subsequent series their pitching staffs were jumbled and lost highly necessary effectiveness. Everybody was doing it and getting hurt in the process.

With Mantle out, you may not see this happening.

The Mick has had more than his share of injuries and ailments. Happily a year passes that something doesn't happen to halter him.

Weather cold, tracksters hot

By Bill Thompson Bulletin Staff Writer

It looked like anything but a day for setting records as Intermountain Conference track and field qualifiers readied for the district 7 A-1 meet at The Dalles last Saturday afternoon.

The sky was dull and overcast. The wind, blowing hard from west to east, was almost bitter cold.

And the track, high above the city center on the outskirts of The Dalles, didn't look especially fast. But, three hours later, seven Intermountain Conference records and six district 7 A-1 marks had been shattered in an exciting meet.

Since the Intermountain Conference was not formulated until the fall of 1959, IC records are only three years old. But district 7 A-1 marks go clear back to 1910 when Peare of La Grande ran the half mile in 2:02.
