

Exhibit planned for Pow Wow

Special to The Bulletin
PRINEVILLE — A variety of exhibits in creation set will be featured in an exhibit by students and associates of the Bridge Art Studio of Prineville during the Rockbound Pow Wow, July 4-8. The exhibit will be on display in a room adjacent to the restaurant in a building at the Crook county fairgrounds where the Pow Wow is to be held.

The art show, according to Mrs. Mike Miksche, director of the Bridge Studio, will include a variety of expression-media, including sketches and designs in felt pen, charcoal and watercolor as well as the more traditional oils. Several items in collage and sculpture are also expected to be

The exhibit will be the work of Mrs. Miksche's students and one or two neoriskies who have worked at the studio.

The Bridge Studio, according to Mrs. Miksche, was named both for the bridge just north of the early-day house where the studio is located and also for the school of painters who named themselves the "Bridge Artists" during the nineteenth century in the first break in the art world from the traditional school of realism.

A highlight of the show will be the display of a large mural painted by a New York artist at the studio while on vacation in Prineville, recently.

School prepares for overload

Special to The Bulletin
PRINEVILLE — A crowded class schedule, to include noon-time classes, will be the agenda at Crook county high school this fall. Registration next September will total at least 700 pupils, according to an estimate based on last year's high school attendance plus the county's eighth grade students.

Teachers' work loads will be heavier, school officials said, and administrative difficulties at the school will be increased proportionately.

In view of the expected overcrowding, the school board will begin to make concrete plans for building additional rooms at the Prineville junior high school, at its July meeting. The addition to the junior high school will be made in line with a plan to teach the ninth grade in the junior high school, adding one grade to that new building and reducing the high school population by one grade.

The possibility is expected to be discussed by the school board of the construction of the new rooms would presumably be of a specialized type, to include the shop and home economics training and similar subjects which are a normal part of the ninth grade studies.

The school board will also have a number of applicants to consider for teaching vacancies at its

July meeting. Applications are being received for eight vacancies, with the four rural school vacancies threatening to pose a problem. A lack of desire on the part of teachers to teach in rural schools was noted by school officials.

Man has close brush as pipe hits power line

Special to The Bulletin
PORT ROCK — Joseph E. Olson escaped serious injury Monday when the aluminum sprinkler pipe he was handling came in contact with a high voltage power line. A farm hand on the Charles C. Miles place here, he had placed one end of a 40 foot length of pipe against a fence post and was up-ending it in order to get a rat out when it touched the 14,000 volt line. He suffered burns on hands and feet.

The fact that his gloves, the pipe and the ground were dry and that the electric current passed into the fence were credited with saving Olson's life according to Howard Seed, line foreman for the power company.

A fire started some 600 feet from the scene of the accident at a point where the fence wires grounded. The contact with the line was strong enough to trip the circuit breaker at the substation, Seed said.

One of Olson's regrets was that the rat, too, survived the heavy electric charge.

Young services held at Madras

Special to The Bulletin
MADRAS — Funeral services were held here today for Custer J. Young, 67, a retired gold dredge operator and resident of Central Oregon since 1939 who died on June 18 at the Prineville Hospital. He had been in failing health for some time.

Mr. Young, a native of Ola, Idaho, was married on Feb. 22, 1915, to Dorothy Menden, in Nampa, Idaho. His immediate survivors include his widow and a son, Ray Young, Madras.

Also surviving are a brother, Joe Young, Portland, and the following sisters: Linnie Holbrook, Emmett, Idaho; Ethel Schmitt, Lebanon; Pansy Acordogoffia, Carlin, Nev.; Ellen Woolery, Caldwell, Idaho, and by a step-mother, Betolla Young, Caldwell, Idaho.

During the war, Mr. Young spent some time in Alaska logging.

The Rev. Doyle Collins of the Madras First Baptist Church was in charge of the services, with William Simmons soloist and Judy Simmons, organist. Burial was in Mt. Jefferson Memorial Park.

Palbearers were Tom Bulkley, Don Bulkley, Lawrence Friend, Byron Friend, Jerry Croxson and Grady Lewis.

Funeral arrangements were handled by the Madras Evergreen Chapel.

Building gets face-lifting

The Bucknum Building at the corner of Brooks Street and Newport Avenue is undergoing extensive face lifting.

This building houses the Bend Chamber of Commerce office, at the Newport - Brooks corner, with offices extending west on Brooks. The entire outside of the building is being renovated, with Neal Contractors in charge.

Precast material resembling native rock will be used on the lower part of the building, with colored paneling on top. Flower planters will be modernized.

The contractor has a month to finish the work, but expects to have it completed in about two weeks.

Seifert services due on Friday

Funeral services for William Seifert, 51, who died at his home at 204 Riverfront Wednesday morning, will be held tomorrow at the Niswonger & Reynolds Chapel at 10 a.m. The Rev. R. E. Ylvisaker will officiate.

Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery beside the grave of his wife, Edith A., who preceded him in death in May, 1947.

Mr. Seifert, who was born in Germany in 1880, came to the United States in 1907. He had been a resident of Bend for more than 30 years.

There are no survivors.
