Theft of blue chip stocks began as joke; only one left to laugh

NEW YORK (UPI)—The theft of $1.2 million in blue chip stocks started as a joke. With eight men already under arrest, about the only one with anything left to laugh about today is a still-missing, mysterious "Mr. X."

And, authorities say, they know Mr. X's identity, so any laughs may be short-lived in the fast-breaking case of the securities that disappeared from the big brokerage house of Bache & Co. here.

The case — replete with stock smuggling under clothing, a buried treasure in securities, and an FBI man who posed as a crooked stock buyer — came to a head Friday with four arrests in two states.

Among those seized were the alleged "inside man," the so-called trusted employee who carried the stocks from a vault and out of the office concealed under his clothing, and the brother of a delegate to the 1957 Apalachin, N.Y., gangland convention.

Arrested in New York were Gordon A. Tallman, 30, a stock record clerk in Bache's Wall St. office, which disclosed the million-plus theft earlier this month, and Robert J. Dodge, 24, an unemployed truck driver. Both are from New York City.

Buyer FBI Agent

FBI agents in Newark, N.J., arrested Joseph George Martinelli, 48, Jersey City, N.J., and John Lombardozzi, 36, Brooklyn, brother of Carmine Lombardozzi, who attended the Apalachin gangland convention. Martinelli and Lombardozzi were seized after supposedly closing a deal to sell $200,000 in stolen blue chip stocks. The buyer turned out to be an FBI undercover man.

New York Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan said the $1.2 million theft started out as a joke.

Tallman and Dodge, the district attorney said, got into a "joking" conversation in a barroom about what they could do if they had all the money represented by stocks which Tallman handled every day.

"So they decided to see what they could do about it," Hogan said.

The first effort, in mid-May, turned to naught. Hogan said Tallman took 100 shares of General Motors stock and gave the certificates to Dodge. But because the stock carried an individual's name, it required establishing a false identity to sell. That proved too difficult and Dodge allegedly burned the shares.

Hogan said that's where Mr. X moved into the picture.

"Mr. X boasted he could dispose of stocks and a deal was made," Hogan said. "Early in June, Tallman stole another certificate for 100 shares of GM. He gave it to Dodge, who passed it on to Mr. X."

Hogan said that soon Mr. X told Dodge that the stock "passed like a dream," got a million dollars worth.

That, said Hogan, is what happened.

Tallman allegedly picked out more than $1 million worth of such blue chip stocks as Du Pont, International Business Machines, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Motors, American Telephone and Telegraph.

Tallman allegedly turned the stock over to Dodge, who secreted it in an oil can and buried it in a shallow hole in a Bronx vacant lot, where it remained for a week before being dug up and turned over to Mr. X.

In all, authorities said, Tallman and Dodge got only $4,300 from Mr. X — although they were to share 5 per cent of the eventual sale price.

Bache discovered the stock missing about the beginning of June, and reported the loss. The stock, which Bache estimated as worth $1.2 million at current market prices, began turning up all over the country.

Isadore Gorlitzky, 41, New York, was arrested here July 2 when he tried to sell some of the allegedly stolen shares through a broker. Alan Louis Fisher, 50, New York, was taken into custody in Denver when he tried to sell missing shares.

Arrest Disbarred Lawyer

The FBI arrested Michael Lokacos, 51, Brooklyn, described by police as a disbarred lawyer, and his nephew, Michael Levas, 32, at Miami Beach earlier this week.

Then came the arrest Friday of Lombardozzi and Martinelli at a Newark hotel after they allegedly closed a deal to sell 1,800 shares of various blue chip stocks to the FBI undercover agent. They were released on $25,000 bail each after arraignment before a U.S. commissioner on charges of transporting the stolen securities from New York to New Jersey.

Tallman and Dodge both were charged with grand larceny and were to appear in felony court today.

Authorities said that Tallman contributed to putting himself under suspicion when he volunteered that a list of the missing stocks compiled in the Bache office was incorrect, saying it included a block of stocks that was not missing.

EIGHT DWARFS?

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — The Memphis Children's Theater will present the story of Snow White and the Eight Dwarfs.

A spokesman explained the casting committee selected one dwarf too many and expanded the cast to include "the sleepy twins" rather than "the slumberer's feelings."

GOING UP FAST — Construction activity is booming in the new North Pilot Bridge Addition off Jones Road in Bend. Western Development Co. has 46 new homes scheduled.

Galligan rosary set for Monday

Special to The Bulletin

REDMOND — Rosary for William Bentley Galligan, 51, Redmond, will be recited Monday at 8 p.m. daylight time in Zacher's Chapel. Funeral services are scheduled for Tuesday at 9 a.m. in St. Thomas Catholic Church, with the Rev. Francis McCormack officiating. Burial will be in the Redmond cemetery.

Mr. Galligan died Thursday at The Dalles General Hospital, after being stricken while driving to The Dalles from Redmond. Born June 17, 1911, in Boise, Idaho, he was a graduate from Idaho University. He came to Redmond in 1939 from the state of Washington.

Accident takes life of woman

SALEM (UPI) — One woman is dead in the wake of a crash of a truck carrying 14 migrant farm workers near Salem Friday.

Mrs. Marie Cantu, 39, died this morning in a Salem hospital as a result of internal injuries. Still hospitalized were her husband, Genaro, 42; a daughter, Gloria, 15; a nephew, Amador, 17; Benjamin Villarreal, 16, and his two sisters, Virginia, 17, and Belia, 13.

All were reported in satisfactory condition.

Seven other members of the two families escaped with cuts and bruises.

Their truck plunged over a 35-foot embankment Friday afternoon in the Eola Hills, three miles west of here. The two families were picking cherries. They lived in the Independence area.

Increase noted in bond sales

Special to The Bulletin

PRINEVILLE — Purchase of U.S. Savings bonds by Crook county residents increased during June over the amount for June, 1961, according to recently released statistics. The comparative figures are $9,508 and $7,229.

Purchases for the year thus far are well ahead of the first six months in 1961, according to Jim McWilliams, county bond sales chairman. The current statewide bond purchase trend shows increased buying over last year, throughout Oregon.

Worm hunters draw warning

Children gathering nightcrawlers on private property should obtain permission from the owners, Police Chief Emil Moen cautioned today.

He warned that there is an element of danger involved when youngsters are mistaken for prowlers.

Many complaints are being received at the police station from home owners. Most of the complaints are based on the belief of persons reporting that prowlers are on their property.

3 blazes keep firemen busy

Three minor fires on a day in which temperatures reached 89 degrees kept Bend firemen busy Friday.

They were called to extinguish grass or brush fires at Aubrey Butte near Wilmington Avenue, at Bond and Florida and at Juniper Park.

A parking gas tank at Cascade Auto Parts also brought firemen to wash down the fuel.
